GERMANY NOW AT WAR WITH RUSSIA; FRANCE NEXT?

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1—The German emperor, in the name of his government, sent to the Russian minister of foreign affairs at 7:30 o'clock this evening a declaration of war.

PARIS, Aug. 1—An unofficial but credible report is current in diplomatic circles that Austria-Hungary has offered to withdraw her troops from Servia and to submit her grievances to an international conference.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—A Central News dispatch received late this evening announces that Germany has declared war on France.

No confirmation of this report was received from any of the European capitals.

CENTRAL ROADS GET 5 PER CENT RATE ADVANCE

DENY GENERAL RAISE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—An increase of certain freight rates by the railroads between the Mississippi and Buffalo and Pittsburgh is allowed by the interstate commerce commission in its decision made public today. This is known as Central Freight association territory.

The 5 per cent increase of charges asked by the railroads east of Buffalo and Pittsburgh in trunk line territory and New England territory is disallowed.

No Lake and Rail Raise.

No increases were granted on lake and rail rates.

All class rates within the Central Freight association territory were advanced 5 per cent. Commodity rates got a like advance, excepting coal, coke, brick, tile, clay, starch, cement, iron ore, and plaster.

The commodities upon which no advances were allowed compose approximately 35 per cent of the total volume of traffic in the Central territory.

Incomes Increased 1½ Per Cent.

The new rates are expected to increase the incomes of the railroads approximately 1½ per cent. All the principal east and west systems will benefit by the increases, as their lines traverse the territory affected.

Commissioners McChord and Daniels at the last moment gave a dissenting opinion.

Commissioner McChord held no difference should have been made between the territories east and west of Pittsburgh and Buffalo. Commissioner Daniels held that a 5 per cent increase should have been granted generally.

The increases allowed on class and commodity rates to the railroads in Central Freight association territory may, in the readjustment of the schedules prescribed by the commission, average even higher than the 5 per cent mentioned.

Revenue Gain $10,000,000.

How much additional profit this means to the railroads in this territory is largely a matter of speculation. Five per cent of the operating revenue of the twenty-eight principal roads would be about $14,000,000. Making allowances for rates in which no advance is allowed, it is estimated that the increase will give these twenty-eight roads about $10,000,000 more revenue. But with the readjustment throughout of the freight rate schedules and with the economies proposed by the commission it is not unlikely that a net gain of $50,000,000 will be the ultimate result of the decision.

President Wilson is disappointed that more liberal increases of revenue were not allowed to the railroads and that the carriers in New England and in trunk line territory were given nothing save the suggestions regarding economies. The president, however, declined to comment on the action of the commission.

Daniels Upholds Wilson.

The dissenting opinion of Commissioner Daniels is said to represent closely the views which the president hoped would prevail in the commission.

It is expected that the western railroads now will apply for rate advances. They know now just what they can expect from the commission. If their rates are lower than those in trunk line territory, as the commission found to be the case in Central Freight association territory,

PLAN TO BRING TOURISTS HOME

Wilson and Bryan Working to Protect Americans in War Zones.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Active measures for the relief of many thousands of Americans in distress in Europe for lack of money or means to return home have been begun by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan.

The president and the secretary of state conferred tonight on getting money to citizens abroad.

The administration has under consideration sending army and navy transports to carry American refugees, and a special request to congress for an appropriation is expected to be made.

SHIPS MAY BEAR GOLD.

The president and Mr. Bryan discussed several plans, but will not make final decision until tomorrow, when they will confer again and get the opinion of the bankers who usually serve the state department abroad in normal times.

If necessary, the Washington government is prepared to send American vessels abroad with gold for the relief of Americans.

Immediately after the conference with the president Mr. Bryan cabled all consulates, legations, and embassies to spare no pains in caring for Americans who remained in the war zones and giving every facility to those who wish to leave.

FACE SERIOUS PROBLEM.

State department officials admitted that the most serious problem confronting them was the plight of Americans abroad. They estimated that at least 100,000 and perhaps as many as 300,000 are scattered throughout Europe.

The disorganization of European exchange has made it practically impossible to cash checks or letters of credit. American consulates, legations, and embassies are devoid of funds for the emergency which has suddenly confronted them. They are being besieged on all sides with requests for financial assistance.

UNABLE TO GET PASSAGE.

With the cancellation by several steamship lines of their sailings many Americans find themselves unable to get passage on the overcrowded boats of American register. American warships would be of little use, as they have hardly any capacity for passengers.

Naval officers have suggested that the government could charter immediately some of the big ocean liners of the foreign register to bring Americans home. By special arrangement officials believe the American government could obtain the use of foreign ships, securing exemption from seizure if used only for transportation of Americans.

The only American warships in Euro-

Tourists Ask Truce on Seas for Safety.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Cable messages from Americans abroad received by the Associated Press tonight, suggested action by the American government of some character that will assist them to return home.

A message from Howard Carroll, a well known New York author and business man, sent in behalf of himself and other Americans and dated Dover, England, recited the plight in which they find themselves by reason of the paralysis of the transatlantic passenger service.

It suggested that Washington take steps to arrange with the European powers a truce for passenger sailings from the various European ports to America. Mr. Carroll's message follows:

"The alarm and excitement among Americans anxious to return home cannot be exaggerated. Permit me through the Associated Press to suggest that in this crisis the United States government make such representations to the European powers as will insure for passenger steamers sailing for ports of the United States a truce of from six to eight weeks pending the return of Americans to their homes.

"Otherwise incalculable hardships will be imposed upon an army of innocent people, whose only fault is that they have visited Europe as usual to spend countless sums of money."

ARMY OF FRANCE GOES TO COLORS

All Troops Ordered by Decree to Mobilize Before Midnight Tonight.

(Special Cable to The Tribune.)

PARIS, Aug. 1.—France has ordered the mobilization of its entire army. The official decree commands that the movement be completed before 11:59 o'clock Sunday night.

Immediately after the order for mobilization went forth from the ministry of war President Poincaré and the members of the cabinet issued a joint proclamation to the French nation, in which was the phrase:

"Mobilization is not war."

TEXT OF THE PROCLAMATION.

The text of the proclamation follows:

"For some days past the states of Europe have been considerably aggravated and notwithstanding the efforts of diplomacy the horizon has darkened. At the present hour a great part of the nations have mobilized their forces. Even the countries protected by neutrality conventions have deemed it their duty to take this measure as a precaution.

"The powers whose constitutional or military legislation differs from ours have, without issuing a decree of mobilization, begun and carried on preparations which in reality are equivalent to mobilization and are but the anticipated execution of it.

READY FOR EVENTUALITIES.

"France, who always has affirmed her desire of peace, who on many a tragic day has given to Europe counsels of moderation and a living example of decorum and who has multiplied her efforts to maintain the peace of the world, has now prepared herself for all eventualities and has taken from henceforth her first indispensable dispositions for the safeguard of her territory.

"But our legislation does not per-

A Day's Progress Into War; The Plunge Told in Bulletins.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Aug. 1.—It is reported in diplomatic circles that Russia has announced that she is ready to demobilize if the other European nations do likewise.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—A German patrol near Prostken was fired on this afternoon by a Russian frontier patrol. The Germans returned the fire. There were no losses.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—Count von Pourtales, German ambassador, and the entire embassy staff left St. Petersburg tonight after the declaration of war by Germany had been delivered.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—A semi-official statement issued tonight says that the preparations for hostilities necessitate that military measures be taken for the protection of the German frontier and railway lines. Restrictions, therefore, on the postal, telegraph, and railway services are inevitable owing to the requirements of the military authorities.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Germany, Great Britain, and France have formally asked the United States to take charge of their embassies throughout the theater of hostilities "in case of emergency." The United States will act for the powers involved and American ambassadors and ministers abroad are being instructed.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—An official decree orders a general mobilization of the French army beginning tomorrow.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

YMUIDEN, Holland, Aug. 1.—Wireless dispatches from the Norddeich station intercepted here order all German steamers to proceed to the nearest neutral port immediately.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The Russian ambassador, M. Iswolsky, called on Premier Viviani at 11 o'clock tonight and informed him that Germany had declared war on Russia.

LONDON, Aug. 2, 5 a. m.—A Paris dispatch to the Central News, by indirect route, reports that Premier Viviani has made changes in the French cabinet whereby Thophile Delcasse becomes minister of war and Eugene Georges Clemenceau, the ex-premier, joins the ministry.

LONDON, Aug. 2, 5 a. m.—The Daily Telegraph in a special Sunday edition says that Austria on Saturday afternoon signified her formal acceptance of Sir Edward Grey's proposal for a conference.

"This acceptance, of course, has had no effect," says the paper, "since Germany has declared war, and was a step taken at the last moment by Austria, probably with the view as far as possible of putting herself right before the world, well knowing that the situation was beyond redemption."

RUSS CHEERS GREET GERMAN WAR DEMAND

Patriotic Scenes in St. Petersburg When People Hear News.

MARTIAL LAW IN FORCE

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—Germany's declaration of war against Russia has provoked in the Russian capital a wonderful demonstration of patriotic enthusiasm.

The German ambassador, Count von Pourtales, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, in the name of his government, sent to the Russian minister of foreign affairs official notification of the declaration of war and two hours later an announcement to this effect was made to the people.

MOBS FILL THE STREETS.

Tonight the capital presents a spectacle of extraordinary animation.

The Nevsky Prospect and all the leading thoroughfares are filled with war frenzied people, marching in processions carrying portraits of the emperor, with flags waving and torches blazing.

From time to time there is an outburst of cheering and singing.

PATRIOTISM RUNS WILD.

Speakers fired with patriotic fervor harangue the crowds.

In front of the Kazan cathedral each procession halts and sudden hush falls over the processionists; then the strains of the national anthem, sung in perfect harmony by a section of the procession, rises in the air, the crowds listening silently with bared heads.

Then the procession moves forward and the demonstrations are resumed with renewed ardor.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED.

Prior to the receipt of the declaration of war by Germany, St. Petersburg and its suburbs had been placed under martial law.

In anticipation of some warlike move on the part of Germany, enrollment of the reservists of the Russian army started at a hundred centers at 6 o'clock this morning.

Crowds of women and children accompanied their husbands and fathers to the assembling stations, while priests everywhere blessed the reservists as they marched through the streets singing hymns.

CZAR TAKES ALL BLAME.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—[Delayed.]—The moment Russia decided to face a European war all constitutional form of government and the representative elements introduced in the system by the manifesto of Oct. 15 were completely brushed aside.

Neither the speaker of the duma nor its committees on foreign relations, finance, or army were consulted. The only body which shared in the decisions of the czar's personal advisers was the war council, over which Grand Duke Nicholas presides. He is a martinet, addicted to the ceremonial parades of the imperial guards, and his influence has been against the seriously capable men who tried to reorganize the army.

ARTILLERY IN BAD SHAPE.

The infantry is believed to be thoroughly good, but there are great misgivings about the artillery. The titular head of the artillery is Grand Duke Sergius Michaelovitch, and his depart-

ALL EUROPE FACES PERIL OF WARFARE

London Fears Other Powers Will Be Plunged Into Strife.

CRISIS COMES QUICKLY

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Events in the European crisis developed today with startling rapidity. The German ultimatum to Russia demanding that Russia cease mobilization of its army expired at noon, and at 5:15 o'clock in the afternoon the German emperor signed a mobilization order.

At 7:30 o'clock the German ambassador at St. Petersburg, Count von Pourtales, delivered a declaration of war in the name of his government to the Russian government and the entire staff of the embassy immediately left St. Petersburg.

Hopes for Delay of War Shattered.

Although, after the warlike speeches deliverd by the German emperor and the imperial chancellor at Berlin on Friday, no other result could be expected, hopes that the dread event might be averted had been raised by the intervention of King George in St. Petersburg and the fact that the German reichstag was not to be convened until Tuesday. Hence the actual declaration of war had not been expected for another day or two.

Now Europe is to be plunged into a general war, which has been the apprehension of European statesmen for generations. It is now only a question of how soon a state of actual war will exist between Germany and France.

France Calls Out Its Entire Army.

Late tonight placards were posted in Paris calling for general mobilization, and the German ambassador, although he had not been handed his passports, was preparing to leave the French capital.

It is not known at exactly what hour Germany's ultimatum to France, asking that country to define what attitude it would assume in case of a war by Germany and Austria against Russia was to expire, but it is believed it will not be long before diplomatic relations will be ruptured or war declared.

German Chiefs Deny Fault Is Theirs.

The German emperor and his advisers have maintained to the last that they made supreme efforts for the sake of peace.

They assert that the last of the series of earnest appeals from Emperor William to Emperor

Nicholas was a telegram repudiating responsibility for the calamity threatening the world, on the ground that while Germany was engaged in mediating with Austria-Hungary, at Russia's request, Russia by its general mobilization, was threatening Germany's safety.

The first shots in the Russo-German war were exchanged between patrols this afternoon near Prostken, 120 miles to the southeast of the Konigsberg.

ITALY MAY KEEP NEUTRAL.

The only redeeming feature of the darkest prospect which Europe has been facing for half a century is that Italy has declared its neutrality. But how long that neutrality can be maintained is an exceedingly debatable question.

Great Britain's position already has been defined by Premier Asquith in the British parliament. He declared that it is under no formal obligation to go to the assistance of France in the event of an European war. The British government, however, has made full preparations in both services for whatever may happen.

HOPE TO CONFINE HOSTILITIES.

The present position, therefore, is that Russia, France, and Servia are arrayed on one side against Austria-Hungary and Germany on the other. How long the warfare will be confined to this plane it is impossible to foretell; nor can it be foretold whether Belgium and Holland will be able to maintain their neutrality against their powerful neighbors, or whether Great Britain will find herself compelled to send an expeditionary force to attempt to preserve that neutrality.

Another factor, which has not been given much consideration, is the attitude of Turkey, which, if she has sufficiently recovered from the effects of her late war with Italy, may be able to throw considerable weight into the scale. It is generally understood that Germany has an effective understanding with Turkey which may lead to interesting developments.

NEWS SHOCK TO LONDONERS.

Pleasure loving Londoners, issuing by thousands from the theaters tonight, were confronted by screaming newspaper placards announcing that Germany had declared war. For the first time the full significance of the fate overhanging Europe appeared to strike the ordinary citizen with full force and he began with real seriousness to ask himself what part England was to play in the great drama or tragedy.

Leading business and commercial men for days had been in a state of apprehension over the course events were taking and saw themselves face to face with great losses, perhaps ruin, but the customary life in the great city had gone on, undisturbed by the echoes of war until tonight.

Then people stopped on the sidewalks in anxious groups discussing the unexpected news, but there were no unusual demonstrations, except here and there collisions between little bands of Germans and Frenchmen as the result of their patriotic ardor.

"The Pass along, please' of the imperturbable London policeman was heard when these outbreaks occurred and the crowds slowly dispersed.

ICAGO GERMANS RAISE A VOLUNTEER REGIMENT.

Two Thousand Sign Names to Rolls to Fight for Fatherland Land as Crowd Sings "Watch on Rhine."

Two thousand Germans, swearing allegiance to the kaiser, enlisted in a volunteer regiment last night at a massmeeting held at Sieben's hall at 1457 Clybourn avenue. As the men came forward to sign their names to the regimental roll the crowd sang "The Watch on the Rhine."

Charles Schoepfer, elected colonel of the regiment, said last night that already $2,000 had been subscribed for the transportation of his men back to the fatherland. Another meeting is to be held next week at which more money is to be raised.

John C. Steiss, who was influential in organizing the regiment, asserted that the German consul had consented to cooperate in taking the regiment to Germany.

FRANCE CALLS HER WHOLE ARMY TO THE COLORS

mit the completion of these preparations without a decree of mobilization. Conscious of its high responsibility and feeling that it would fail in its sacred duty if it did not take this measure, the government has signed the decree.

MEANS OF ASSURING PEACE.

"Mobilization is not war. Under the present circumstances it would appear, on the contrary, to be the best means of assuring peace with honor.

"Strong in its ardent desire of arriving at a peaceful solution of this crisis the government, under cover of these essential precautions, will continue its diplomatic efforts and still hopes to succeed. It counts upon the coolness of the people not to give themselves up to unjustified emotion. It counts upon the patriotism of every Frenchman and it knows that there is not a single one who is not ready to do his duty at this hour.

"There are no longer any parties. There is an eternal France—a France peaceful and resolute. There is a fatherland of peace and justice, all united in calm vigilance and dignity."

CRY "ON TO BERLIN!"

Thrilling scenes were witnessed tonight after the yellow cards were posted announcing the mobilization. Throngs appeared as if by magic and formed processions on the boulevards, carrying flags and singing the "Marseillaise." Here and there in the marching crowd were groups of men who raised the cry, "On to Berlin!"

The soldiers marched in the streets with the English, Russian, and French flags flying.

The response to the order of mobilization was instant and the stations of all the railways, particularly those leading to the eastward, were crowded with departing reservists.

The troop trains departed at regular intervals and the Paris streets were nearly empty tonight. All the auto buses had disappeared, having been requisitioned by the army to carry meat, the coach work of the vehicles being removed and replaced with specially designed bodies. A large number of taxicabs, private automobiles, and horses and carts also were taken over by the military for transport purposes.

PEOPLE RUSH TO LEAVE.

At th hotels the news of the ordering of mobilization caused the greatest commotion. Visitors began to leave the hostelries en masse, but found it difficult to obtain conveyances. Cabmen offered the services of their vehicles at auction, accepting as fares the highest bidders.

At 6 o'clock a report that the gates of the Northern railroad had been closed caused consternation among the throng of persons eager to leave Paris. It was impossible to get into telephonic communication with the station, and when the long lines of cabs and other conveyances arrived there great excitement prevailed.

No porters were obtainable; none of the employés was visible. Every man had stopped work to defend his country. The approaches to the platform where the Brussels express usually leaves were packed with a seething mass of humanity, consisting mostly of Germans, Russians, and Dutch.

SOLDIERS ARE ON GUARD.

There was no certainty whether the train would actually start, and eight soldiers, with fixed bayonets, drawn up on the platform was not a reassuring spectacle to the would-be travelers.

At last, however, the barrier was opened and there was a wild rush by the throng to board the train, women and children being ignored in the stampede along the platform. The train was filled to overflowing in a moment. There were many heartrending scenes in the station as women with tears streaming down their cheeks bade good-by to husbands and family ties were broken.

To add to the gloom of the journey there was no dining car attached to the train, all the attendants having gone to join their regiments. Hence there was no prospect of food or drink on the journey. The only subject of conversation on board the train was the coming war.

One American passenger, eager to catch a steamer at Antwerp, said he had paid 30 francs to an old railroad porter merely to put his trunks in the baggage car.

GERMAN ENVOY READY TO GO.

The German ambassador to France had packed and was ready to leave for Berlin this afternoon, when a dispatch reached him from his superiors making the kaiser's final suggestion, which the French government took into consideration and about which it exchanged views with London and St. Petersburg.

It was stated after the receipt of the German communication that there was only the most slender hope that it would have any result. In some quarters the communication was interpreted as merely a device by Germany to gain time to complete its mobilization, as it was accompanied by a condition which was unacceptable.

SEE WAR AS INEVITABLE.

At the foreign office officials declared they considered it would be folly to rely on any hope of a peaceful outcome of the crisis. England's efforts at Berlin yesterday, they said, had failed, and any glimmer of hope which had appeared had been immediately extinguished.

Arrangements were made last night by Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador, acting under instructions from Washington, to take over the affairs of the German embassy, while Alexander H. Thackara, the American consul general, is to look after the affairs of the German consulate.

SUMMARY OF NEGOTIATIONS.

Diplomatic events since yesterday afternoon can be stated briefly as follows:

Baron von Schoen, German ambassador to France, called on the French premier, Rene Viviani, at 7 o'clock last evening and formally notified him Germany had addressed an ultimatum to Russia desiring to know by 12 o'clock today whether the St. Petersburg government would discontinue mobilization of the Russian army.

Baron von Schoen was directed by his government to ask what were the intentions of France should Russia's reply to Germany be a refusal to demobilize. The German government fixed "before 1 p. m. today" as the period within which France must answer.

FINAL APPEAL BY PREMIER.

Baron von Schoen called at the French foreign office at 11:40 a. m. to receive France's reply. Premier Viviani made an earnest appeal to the German ambassador, asking if Germany could not do something to avert war.

The baron promised to communicate with Berlin and to return to the French foreign office at 4 p. m., which he did.

The German reply, whatever it was, was submitted to the French cabinet council, which within a few minutes afterward ordered a general mobilization of the French army.

TIME LIMIT IS EXTENDED.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—A Central News dispatch from Paris says by common agreement the time limit of Germany's ultimatum to France has been extended for forty-eight hours until noon on Monday.

INTERESTS URGE ENGLISHMEN TO OPPOSE GERMANY

ALL READY FOR WAR

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Germany has declared war against Russia. France must now join her ally.

Will England abandon her friends? That question still remains unanswered tonight. The pacificists still insist that England's position, as repeatedly stated by Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, and Premier Asquith, is one of complete freedom.

In plain language, Premier Asquith and Sir Edward Grey have stated England has not signed or otherwise pledged herself to go to war with any nations of Europe. Therefore, urge the pacificists, she must consider no interests except her own and must refuse to be dragged into the conflict.

Interests Lie Against Germany.

This is undoubtedly England's viewpoint in what may be called a strictly legal aspect, but, on the other hand, she is urged by the demands of honor to support her friends of the triple entente, in doing which she is acting also for her own best interests.

The government's intentions are less clear today than they were on Thursday. The extremists have put forth every effort to urge the king and the government toward peace, but the news that Germany has declared war means failure for this propaganda, and the cabinet at tomorrow's meeting must prepare to meet the house of commons on Monday, when the laborites and other pacificists are expected to make a strong demand for a declaration of neutrality.

War Preparations Completed.

Whatever the cabinet decides at the fateful meeting tomorrow, they have not wasted a moment in preparing for war. The great preparations are more perfect than ever before.

All around the coast the lightships have been removed and the buoys have been removed from all rivers and harbors. Notices have been posted that navigation hereafter is at the navigator's own risk along the whole eastern coast from south to north.

Troop trains have carried troops by night until a cordon of reinforced coast guards has been formed, even extending up the rivers, while further inland the uniformed police are doing military duty. These, again, are reinforced by nonuniformed police, newly sworn in with police reserves. These wear armlets to indicate their organization in lieu of uniforms.

Searchlights Sweep Sea.

Throughout the night the only light at sea was the ceaseless playing of searchlights from every harbor fort, fortress and waterway. These searchlights do not stop their ceaseless duty from dusk to dawn.

The crisis found the biggest fleet ever assembled as one great unit for the Spithead review. This fleet now has taken up positions from one end of the North sea to the other. The whole navy is on a war footing and naval circles believe if, as they hope, the government intends that England shall fight, she will without waiting, but in the most rapid manner possible, strike with her fleet.

The regular army of England, of course, is small, but it, too, is standing at arms and the reservists have been notified to hold themselves in readiness.

Territorial Forces Assembled.

As the crisis found the fleet assembled, so it finds the territorials all ready for their great annual fortnight maneuvres in camp as always at the beginning of August. The territorials of the south of England will concentrate tomorrow as usual on Salisbury plain.

Their officers are expectant of notices that will change the disposition of their men to the eastward and coastward but it is understood that Salisbury plain is considered the best rendezvous as there they can be kept all together and thence can be moved easily without going through large towns to any point desired.

All the officers have equipped themselves, as they fully expect to be absent in camp at least three months.

Troops Guard Cable Termini.

The cable termini at Penzance and elsewhere are guarded by troops. The Indo-European cable has been closed to ordinary use and has been taken over by the government.

Ulster has offered an expeditionary force, armed, uniformed, and equipped with machine guns, to go anywhere.

England is thus prepared as far as possible, and much more completely than ever before for immediate hostilities. Yet there is no sign of this that can be detected externally in London or elsewhere except where troops on duty actually are in view and except for the precautions along the coast and in the harbors.

British Diplomats Busy.

There was no cessation of diplomatic activity in London throughout the day. This evening Premier Asquith gave a small dinner party at his residence in Downing street, the guests including the Russian ambassador.

Sir Edward Grey remained at the foreign office until a late hour and then went to Buckingham palace to consult King George. The Japanese ambassador had a long conference with Sir Edward Grey during the afternoon.

The English people as a whole plunged today in their usual numbers and with their usual zest into the festivities of an August bank holiday and week end. Yesterday the streets of London were absolutely normal and today outgoing trains are crowded with their customary thousands of persons going to the seaside and to the country.

ment is still notoriously an Augean stable.

It was in connection with contracts for the Russian artillery that the scandal of magnificent presents to the imperial ballet dancer Keshinsya, given by rival representatives of the Krupps and the Creusots, was provoked.

War Minister Gen. Roediger was dismissed for allowing duma leader Alexander Goutchkoff to make a public attack on the corruption over the artillery contracts. One political side of the department of the interior came out strongly for risking war, and asserted that the situation demanded a war.

The ugly internal unrest would not abate before police repression, and the only means left of diverting the ferment, and seeing that reform in a liberal direction was not to be granted, was to strike out for military glory.

The anger of the democracy is greater now than it was ten years ago, but against this the department of the interior puts the fact that whereas the Russians were wholly indifferent as regards the Japanese, there is really a deep racial antipathy between the Slav and Germanic races.

The ministers of finance and agriculture were the only two persons consulted who declared against the war policy. Minister Krivochein, who is responsible for the vast new agrarian system now being set up in Russia, warned the committee of the risk of an enormous peasant crisis if the full strength of the army reserves was taken from the land for a long time and the money for the land purchase stopped.

ANGRY AT ENGLAND.

The war party is angry over the equivocal attitude of England. The proposal made by former Foreign Minister Mouravioff during England's worst period in the Boer war is heard again. This is that a good way for securing European continental peace would be for the continental powers to unite against the British empire, Russia taking its reward in Asia and India, Germany in Africa, and France in Egypt. The original proposal broke down because France insisted on the rectification of its eastern frontier by the recovery of Alsace-Lorraine, and that barrier still exists.

The czar is confident and even lighthearted over it all. He hears nothing alarming about the internal situation, as Rasputin, who was a peace influence during the last Balkan war, still is hors de combat. The other recent powerful private adviser of the czar, Prince Mestchersky, was a reactionary in the internal administration, but a cynic in the foreign politics, who vented his sarcasm especially on the "little Slav brothers" in the Balkans. He died last week, else he would have counted for peace.

GERMANS SEEK U. S. AID.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Official advices received at the White House today report the German ambassador leaving St. Petersburg.

Ambassador Herrick at Paris reported that a proposal to place German interests in France in his hands was being discussed there.

No action has been taken by this government on this proposal, but officials expect that such duties will devolve upon American diplomats generally in Europe, and will be assumed by them.

Ambassador Herrick has been ordered to remain at his post at Paris throughout the present serious international situation and until his successor, William G. Sharp, arrives and takes up his duties, probably the latter part of this month.

ITALY, NEUTRAL, DEALS ALLIANCE A DEATH BLOW?

"Pact Is Solely for Defensive Purposes," Says Rome Announcement.

NOT HONOR-BOUND TO AID

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Aug. 1.—It was announced here today that Italy will remain neutral in the European conflict. The following reasons are given for this decision:

1. The terms of the triple alliance do not permit one of the nations concerned to involve the others in a war without reaching an agreement with the other two.

2. This principle was reaffirmed in regard to the Balkans and Austrian failed to advise Italy of the nature of the demands on Servia.

3. The triple alliance is solely for defensive purposes and the preservation of territorial integrity.

4. Not having been advised of the Austro-Servian situation Italy was unable to take the necessary steps to protect certain vital interests which would be placed in immediate danger were she to go to war. For this reason Italy not only has the right but is in the imperative necessity of remaining neutral.

MAY RENOUNCE ALLIANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Since the present European situation reached the critical stage the question has naturally arisen, as it has always arisen in critical times—what will Italy do as a member of the triple alliance? Italy's hatred of Austria is too well known to be insisted upon at this time. An Italian diplomat passing through London two days ago said to the correspondent:

"One of the chief services of the triple alliance toward European peace has been in preventing Italy and Austria from going to war."

Tripoli Army Menaced.

To begin with, Italy has a large army in Tripoli which is exposed to the risk of being cut off if Italy fights on behalf of the triple alliance. More serious yet is the internal situation in Italy. The recent railroad strike was more revolutionary than industrial and many experts on the European labor situation say that for the Italian government to enter into another war would simply mean the beginning of a revolution against the monarchy.

The question remains, how can Italy refuse to fight in the circumstances? It realizes, more than any of the powers concerned, that war would be disastrous. There is only one way. That is for Italy to renounce the alliance with Germany and Austria-Hungary and proclaim its neutrality.

Will Renounce Alliance?

Indications that Italy will try this method of escape from the dilemma are seen in the text of a dispatch from Rome telling of Italy's notification to Germany of neutrality.

The dispatch says:

"It is authoritatively announced that the Marquis Di San Giuliano, Italian foreign minister, has informed the German ambassador at Rome that Italy will remain neutral, its obligations under the triple alliance treaty applying only to a defensive war. Italy, therefore, considers itself released from its engagements, the war waged by Austria-Hungary, supported by Germany, being essentially an offensive war."

U. S. CERTAIN TO PROSPER DESPITE WAR

VAST SUPPLY OF GOLD

BY EUGENE HECTOR.
[Financial Editor of The Tribune.]

It is the opinion of those competent to interpret conditions that the beginning of the war in Europe finds the United States in a splendid position and probably the most favored country on earth. It has not near or remote connection with the governments at war, and instead of being injured is expected to profit at the outset by the demand which will be created for the things raised and manufactured by it. If long continued the war will cause bad economic results everywhere.

But regardl ss of these considerations is the natural and normal prospect of a revival in business due to big harvest, soundness of money, and flexibility of credit conditions.

CROPS MEAN ADDED WEALTH.

With the greatest wheat yield ever harvested, 930,000,000 bushels, worth $896,000,000, and, in prospect, the largest corn yield ever harvested, 2,868,000,000 bushels, worth $1,806,000,000, there is present and in sight actual and certain new wealth. To move the crops will require every wheel the railroads can turn and they must soon buy equipment and rails on a scale that will start up the steel industry.

The freight rate decision rendered by the interstate commerce commission yesterday, removing uncertainty and allowing, among other things, a 5 per cent increase in rates between the Mississippi river and Buffalo and Pittsburgh, will prove a great tonic sentimentally to the big financial interests behind the railroads and other large industries.

NATIONAL FINANCES STRONG.

Of the greatest importance at this time is the strength of the United States treasury and the satisfactory character of the currency laws of the country.

According to the official report of the condition of the treasury on July 28, that strong box of the government holds a stock of more than $1,040,000,000 gold to secure the gold certificates in circulation. It also has $487,000,000 silver to back those certificates in circulation. Also the report showed a free balance of $145,248,1997 in the general fund. No other government can make such a showing.

From the general fund the secretary of the treasury is prepared to deposit money with the banks to prevent any possible stringency.

CURRENCY ACT EFFECTIVE.

How abundant is the remedy at hand is demonstrated by the fact that last year the secretary deposited less than $50,000,000 with the banks and it has all been paid back. Interest rates did not rise above 6 per cent.

These are cash fundamentals in the money situation. But to handle the crops, to make the credit and money outlook still more reassuring and to furnish the dollars with which to do business, there are the new federal reserve act under which the banks are being organized and the extended Aldrich-Vreeland act under which the banks are already organized.

This latter is an emergency measure passed eight years ago to be held in reserve until a new law could be enacted Such a new law has been enacted, but organization under it has not yet been completed.

READY TO ADD CURRENCY.

The Aldrich-Vreeland measure has been availed of and the national banks are divided into twenty-five currency associations. Under the law it is possible to issue $500,000,000 notes. Already $50,000,000 of these notes have been printed and are resting in the United States treasury. When issued they will be the same as national bank notes and undistinguishable from them. They will be secured by more than $11,000,000,000 assets of the national banks of the United States. The credit behind them will be good as that behind the notes of the Bank of England.

All this money and credit machinery is in a mobile state and the president of the United States, the secretary of the treasury, and the leading bankers of the country are in harmony and will be in conference tomorrow to consider all phases of the situation brought about by the European war.

CONFIDENCE SOLE NEED.

Such conferences would not be necessary if the public would but stop to think. It is merely a matter of having confidence in what exists rather than getting frightened over something that does not exist.

The stock exchanges of the country were closed last Friday morning, not because there was anything wrong with the United States, but because it was regarded as simple self-protection to prevent excited foreigners destroying the market value of American securities.

When the speculators in Berlin, London, and Paris began to throw stocks on the New York market, apparently without regard to values, they wanted money and wanted it quick. They acted no differently than would a householder in selling a $100,000 property for $50,000 merely because he wished some ready cash.

BANKS TO GUARD RESOURCES.

The banks of the country for some time will hold their resources well together. They will do this until after the danger of the scare shall have passed. But they are going to cause no sacrifices on the part of their borrowers. The banks of New York City had yesterday $2,058,755,000 in loans and the weekly statement showed that throughout the two panicky days of Friday and Saturday instead of reducing loans they increased them by $1,182,000.

As to Chicago banks, the soundness of their position goes without saying.

UNITED STATES NEUTRAL; NOT TO OFFER MEDIATION.

American Diplomats Abroad Warned to Keep Hands Off Until Asked to Act by Administration.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—From an authoritative source it was learned late tonight that President Wilson was strongly disinclined to take any steps toward mediation in Europe, and, in line with the traditional policy of the United States, would pursue a course of absolute noninterference.

This information was imparted after Germany, Great Britain, and France had formally asked the United States to take charge of their embassies throughout the theater of hostilities "in case of an emergency."

As American diplomats abroad have been active on their own initiative, sounding out the various governments about peace measures, cautionary telegrams were sent all legations and embassies requesting that no steps of importance in this direction be taken without previous consultation with the Washington government.

For the present the attitude of the United States will be that of a neutral observer, and unless it appears that the contending powers would accept a tender of good offices and mediation no formal effort will be made by the United States toward a pacific settlement.

MRS. POTTER PALMER AMONG THOSE MAROONED IN PARIS.

Many Americans Ask Funds or Means of Getting Out of France at Once.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The American embassy just now presents the curious spectacle of throngs of Americans who have been touring Europe and are unable to get money for the passage home or accommodations on steamships even if they had the necessary funds.

Among them were Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Katherine Duer, who came up from Fontainebleu.

It is only natural that there should be a panic among Americans here, as many of them are women traveling alone, and the mobilization order means that all railroad transport is limited to the moving of troops for at least two weeks.

Intermarriage Fails to Check War of Powers.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

So many royal hearts have been sacrificed to considerations of international policy, so many marriages of members of the reigning houses of Europe have been dictated not by affection but in the belief that they would serve to cement offensive and defensive alliances between the countries to which the bride and bridegroom belonged, that it comes somewhat as a shock to see what a small and insignificant rôle unions of this kind play in an imbroglio such as that which is now involving all the great powers of the old world in war.

The latter, indeed, serves to show that matrimonial alliances have exercised little influence on political alliances and that the fact that because a monarch or a prince of the blood happens to have as consort a foreign born princess does not in any way prevent him from casting down the gauntlet to the nation from which she sprang.

That the czarina, as well as a number of the grand duchesses of the reigning house of Russia, are of German birth has not deterred Emperor Nicholas in any way from embarking upon a war with Germany, while the circumstance that the wife of King Constantine of Greece is a princess of Prussia has not weighed with him in deciding to mobilize his army for service in aid of Servia against the Austro-German coalition.

England is siding with Russia and France against Germany. Yet the royal duchesses of Connaught and of Albany, sisters-in-law of Edward VII., and who married sons of Queen Victoria, as well as her sons-in-law, the now octogenarian Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, a naturalized Englishman and a general of the British army, were all Germans up to the time of their respective marriages.

In Germany we find the widowed Duchess of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, who makes her headquarters at Coburg, a Russian through and through, as the only daughter of Czar Alexander II., while the similarly widowed Grand Duchess Anastasia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, mother of the German crown princess, is a daughter of the late Grand Duke Michael Michaelaivitch of Russia.

As for the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, sovereign of one of the German independent states forming a part of the confederation known as the German empire and a general of the German army, he passed the first sixteen years of his life as a prince of the reigning house of England, at the court of his grandmother, Queen Victoria, and was a schoolboy at Eton when summoned, much against his will, to ascend a German throne.

Nor does the circumstance that the kaiser and his brother, Prince Henry, are the sons of an English mother who was the eldest sister of Edward VII. and who are both in the line of succession to the English crown, cause them to hesitate in the slightest degree about taking up arms against Great Britain, and from appealing to the God of battles against her.

It is nothing new, after all, for when the saintly Princess Clothilde of Italy, at the age of 15, was compelled to give her hand in marriage to Prince Jerome Napoleon, her senior by over thirty years, she only accepted this alliance because her father, Victor Emmanuel II., and his prime minister, Count Cavour, pleaded with her that it was indispensable in order to secure the support of France to their designs for the creation of a united Italy. She gave way to their appeals to her patriotism.

Yet it was a useless sacrifice. For it did not deter France from taking possession subsequently of the Italian duchy of Savoy, the cradle of the reigning house of Italy, as well as of Nice and of the formerly Italian Riviera, while in 1870, when Prince Napoleon was sent to his father-in-law, Victor Emmanuel II., to entreat for the assistance of Italy in France's war against Germany, he met a humiliating refusal.

So much for the value of matrimonial alliances between members of the various reigning houses of Europe as a factor in determining international relations or those terribly grave issues of peace and war.

No more delicate or painful position can be conceived than that of a princess in the land of her adoption when the latter is engaged in fighting against the land of her birth.

The Empress Alexandra of Russia and her sister, the widowed Grand Duchess Sergius, are sisters of the sovereign Grand Duke of Hesse, who holds a command as general in the German army and who, as such, has taken up arms against his brother-in-law, the czar.

Another German princess in Russia is Grand Duchess Elizabeth, wife of the Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovitch, whose father was the ruler of the German sovereign duchy of Saxe-Altenburg.

Grand Duchess Victoria, wife of Grand Duke Cyril, who is second in line of succession to throne of Peter the Great, is a daughter of the late sovereign of the German duchies of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, while Grand Duke Cyril's mother, the widowed Grand Duchess Vladimir, is by birth a princess of the German reigning family of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and was so thoroughly identified with the land of her birth that the late Emperor Alexander III. used to insist that she was the principal agent of Bismarck in Russia.

He sought by every means in his power to prevent her from knowing anything about the policy of affairs of the empire, and distrusted her so much that he actually took steps to eliminate his brother Vladimir, solely on her account, from the succession to the crown, and from all participation in any regency that it might become necessary for one reason or another to establish.

All these imperial ladies will be regarded with popular disfavor in Russia, while the latter is at war with Germany.

If Germany is defeated they will be compelled to witness, and will be expected to share in, Muscovite exultation over the disasters that have overtaken their brothers and those who were their countrymen until their marriage.

If, on the other hand, Germans are victorious, Russian popular resentment will turn against them; while under any circumstances they will be regarded as aliens whom it is necessary to prevent from acquiring possession of any Muscovite state secrets.

Precedent Is Cited.

That this is no figment of imagination on my part is conclusively demonstrated by the treatment of the late Empress Frederick in 1870, during the war between Germany and France.

England was a neutral power during that conflict, but was regarded by Germany as sympathizing with France, in behalf of which it endeavored to intervene in a purely diplomatic fashion.

Just because Empress Frederick, then crown princess of Germany, happened to be an English princess and a daughter of Queen Victoria, Bismarck insisted at Versailles that no military or state secret should be communicated to the crown prince, although he occupied one of the principal commands in the field, for fear that he should communicate it by letter to his consort at Berlin, who would certainly, so Bismarck alleged, impart the information to her mother and her eldest brother in England, through whom it would reach the French.

In fact Bismarck did not hesitate to hold up the English wife of the only son and heir of his sovereign, old Emperor William, as capable and even as actually guilty of betraying Germany through England to France.

Fortunately for Austria, all the members of the imperial house of Hapsburg are married either to princes and princesses of that dynasty or else to scions of sovereign families of Germany, such, for instance, as Saxony and Wurtemberg, Coburg, etc.

There are several cases of Hapsburg matrimoniay alliances with the royal dynasty of Braganza, which formerly occupied the throne of Portugal and with the Bourbons of Spain and of Italy. But none whatsoever with Russia or with Great Britain.

So there is no princess in Vienna who finds herself at present in the predicament of Empress Alexandria and of the German born grand duchesses of Russia at St. Petersburg.

Even were Italy forced by popular sentiment to refrain from joining her partners in the Triple Alliance, and to actually take up arms against Austria, Archduchess Zita, wife of the heir presumptive, and the other Italian Bourbon members of the reigning family of Austria, would not be in the slightest degree embarrassed, since the Italian Bourbons, after having been driven from their thrones in Italy, have become completely alienated from the people over whom they formerly reigned.

King George recently decreed that the princes of Battenberg were to be regarded as members of the royal family of England.

But Prince Louis of Battenberg, a full fledged admiral of the British navy, of which he is one of the chief rulers, as first sea lord of the admiralty, was born and bred as a German, bears a German title, and is married to a sister of the German Grand Duke of Hesse, and is brother-in-law of Prince Henry of Prussia, the ranking officer of the Germany navy.

Whether under the circumstances Prince Louis will now be allowed to retain his place at the head of the British admiralty remains to be seen.

There has always been a considerable amount of popular criticism in England about the idea of initiating a German prince into the innermost secrets of the British navy, and of the British government, and now that England is about to find itself at war with Germany this feeling may become so pronounced as to make his position quite untenable.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—A telegram from Rome to Le Matin says that the Rome newspapers, Le Patrie and Le Presse, have already felt the shortage of print paper. They appeared this afternoon published on single sheets. Le Patrie says that the demand by the public for news has been so great that it would have been obliged to print 1,500,000 copies to supply all who wished to buy. The firm handling the print paper saw that it would not have enough to supply all its customers and so rationed out what it had.

BOOM FOR ARMS BUSINESS.

Americans Expected to Revive Dangerous but Paying Method of "Gun Running."

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Already the arms and ammunition industry in this country has been stimulated by the present crisis in Europe, and before many days pass it is believed that the old method of "gun running" will be revived.

Thus the young Americans who are willing to "take long chances" and who are in search of adventure will have golden opportunities to execute deeds of daring. The Balkan states will need munitions of war and may call on American firms for shipments.

It is a hazardous business to attempt to ship arms from one country to another in time of war, as the vessels are liable to seizure at sea or to armed conflict.

FOOD IN BRITAIN SOARS BY LEAPS

FEAR RAID ON SUPPLIES

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Prices of meat, flour, bread, butter, eggs, bacon, cheese, and sugar have risen about 8 per cent. Heads of provision stores are advising the public against attempts to make accumulations of foodstuffs and orders have been given to refuse to supply abnormal demands.

Competent authorities believe that the British government will take control of the food supply in the event of this country becoming involved in war, so as to prevent an unequal distribution. If the war is general, there is likely to be a great shortage of eggs, the supply of which comes principally from the nations now actually at war. Bacon also will be lacking.

The manager of a big provision store said today that there is no cause for a panic for two or three months, as the supplies of groceries and butter in the United Kingdom are sufficient for six months. There are large quantities in cold storage and the supply of canned food stuffs is large.

The most serious rise in prices was in flour, which jumped to $1.25 a sack this week. There was hardly any fruit or vegetables at the Covent Garden market this morning for the first time in the history of the market. This was attributed to lack of railroad or other transportation on the continent and the scarcity of money.

The supplies of English grain are exhausted. Wheat is at $1 a quarter higher. The Newcastle corn market was excited today and closed in a state of paralysis. Flour was $1.50 higher. The Northampton corn market had no wheat offers. The dealers refused to make prices. On the Greenock exchange, the principal Scottish sugar market, that commodity was $7.50 a ton higher.

WAR CRISIS PUTS END TO TOUR OF ALDERMEN.

Chicago Civic Commission Leaving Antwerp for New York and London.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

ANTWERP, Belgium.—Aug. 1.—The European war crisis has blocked the plans of the Chicago civic commission for touring the remaining countries which originally were included in its itinerary.

The members of the commission have seen enough of the war fever to convince them that Europe may not be the healthiest place for Americans within the next few weeks, especially Americans who have any desire to return to their native land anywhere in the near future.

With the announcement tonight that Germany had declared war on Russia, the majority of the commission developed distinct symptoms of "cold feet" over further peregrinations in Europe. Messrs. Beckwith, Shannon, Larson, Block, Shoop, Richert, and Littler immediately made arrangements to leave Antwerp tonight on the liner Finland for New York.

The other members of the commission will return to London tomorrow with the exception of Ald. Healy, who has declared that he is not to be scared off by any old war, even a great European cataclysm. He will attempt to go to Berlin.

Torepdo Boat Unable to Wreck Line of Communication Near Denmark.

RIVAL FLEETS CLOSE.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 1, 10 p. m.—A German torpedo boat destroyer, operating outside the Danish sea territory, made an unsuccessful attempt today to cut the cable communication to Russia by way of Roedvig, Denmark.

The Fehmarn belt is crowded with German dreadnoughts and other big warships, which are accompanied by transport vessels.

A number of Russian vessels also have been observed in that vicinity.

SIGHT BRITISH FLEET.

According to a telegram from Bergen to the government paper, Politiken, the British torpedo destroyers are watching the seas outside the Norwegian coast as far as Kap Stat.

Eight destroyers are anchored outside Bergen close to the shore.

It is also stated that a big German fleet is maneuvering outside Lister, from Jaederen to Bergen.

BOATS LAY UP AT DOCKS.

Nearly all the steamship lines between Germany and Denmark have stopped their boats.

The large military force concentrated on Seeland, the largest and most important of the Danish islands and containing the capital, was increased tonight by 20,000 men for the protection of Copenhagen.

DANES TO MEET SITUATION.

The Danish parliament met tonight in extraordinary session to pass legislation necessitated by the situation.

The German government has ordered the immediate return of all the German automobiles, numbering 400, at the Malmoe, Sweden, exhibition.

SWISS COLLECT FORCES; FOOD SHORTAGE PERIL.

Army Being Mobilized, but May Not Have Supplies Enough to Meet the Demand.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

GENEVA, July 31.—[Delayed.]—Switzerland began to mobilize today, but the newspapers are not reporting any military movements. The great problem for the Swiss is to have a sufficient quantity of wheat and corn for the army and people, which she has not at present. Therefore, large orders have been placed in America during the last few days.

Food in this country already has risen 10 to 20 per cent and American visitors are finding their hotel bills augmented proportionately.

English newspapers have become contraband in Austria. At Buchs, on the Swiss-Austrian frontier, the custom house officials add to the ordinary question, "Have you anything to declare?" the phrase, "including newspapers, especially English." When asked the cause of this question, the officials declare the English papers contain too much news.

Gold cannot be obtained in the Swiss banks, as over $50,000,000 in gold has been sequestered by the National Swiss bank for the use of the country in the event of war. The visitors at the Swiss resorts are greatly embarrassed by this measure.

GERMAN ARMY MOBILIZED TO MEET RUSSIA

Emperor Signs Decree for All Forces to Take Field.

PUTS BLAME ON CZAR

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Germany has declared war on Russia. At 5:15 o'clock this evening, after the formal declaration of war had been presented to the Russian government in St. Petersburg, Emperor William signed an order mobilizing the Germany army.

An official communication published today in the North German Gazette says the Russian emperor on July 29 telegraphed to Emperor William, urgently requesting him to help in averting the misfortune of a European war, and to try to restrain his ally, Austria-Hungary, from going too far.

Emperor William replied that he would willingly take up the task of mediator, and accordingly diplomatic action was initiated in Vienna.

PROTESTS RUSSIA'S COURSE.

While this was in progress the news that Russia was mobilizing reached Berlin, and Emperor William telegraphed to the emperor of Russia that his rôle as mediator was by this endangered if not made impossible.

The communication adds that a decision was to have been taken in Vienna today in regard to the mediation proposals in which Great Britain had joined Germany, but that meanwhile Russia had ordered the full mobilization of her forces.

Upon this Emperor William addressed a last telegram to Emperor Nicholas, emphatically declaring that his own responsibility for the safety of the German empire had forced him to take defensive measures.

KAISER BLAMES THE CZAR.

The German emperor continued that he had gone to the utmost limits in his efforts to preserve the world's peace, and that the responsibility for the calamity threatening the world did not rest on him.

He declared that he had always been faithful to his friendship for the Russian emperor and the Russian people, and that the peace of Europe could still be maintained if Russia would cease to threaten Germany and Austria-Hungary.

CHANCELLOR MAKES ADDRESS.

The German imperial chancellor today addressed a great procession of demonstrators from the window of his official residence, making a stirring speech. He said:

"At this serious hour, in order to give expression to your feeling for your fatherland, you have come to the house of Bismarck, who, with Emperor William the Great and Field Marshal von Moltke, welded the German empire for us.

"We wished to go on living in peace in the empire which we have developed in forty-four years of peaceful labor.

"The whole work of Emperor William has been devoted to the maintenance of peace. To the last hour he has worked for peace in Europe and he is still working for it.

CALLS CAUSE RIGHTEOUS.

"Should all his efforts prove vain and should the sword be forced into our hands we will take the field with a clear conscience in the knowledge that we did not seek war. We shall then wage war for our existence and for the national honor to the last drop of our blood.

"In the gravity of the hour I remind you of the words of Prince Frederick Charles to the men of Brandenburg: 'Let your hearts beat for God and your fists on the enemy.'"

Enthusiastic cheers and the singing of the national anthem greeted the close of the imperial chancellor's speech.

ASKS RUSSIA TO QUIT.

ROME, Aug. 1.—The German government in its ultimatum to Russia asked it to suspend its mobilization within twelve hours.

In the demand sent by Germany to France the government at Berlin requires France to inform it within eighteen hours whether, in case of war between Germany and Russia, France would remain neutral.

The German ambassador to Italy today also asked to be informed as to Italy's attitude in the event of war between Germany and Austria-Hungary on the one side and Russia and France on the other.

Germany's Order Suspends Whole International Railway Service.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The German government has given orders that no trains shall cross the French frontier. The whole international service has been suspended in consequence.

YANKEES ABROAD IN PANIC; CAN'T FLEE NOR STAY

MEET MANY HARDSHIPS

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Steamship line offices here are besieged by Americans who want to take early passage home. Many are willing to go by the Canadian steamships, but few berths are available before September.

Scores of Americans booked to sail from continental ports are marooned and many of them fear that their supply of money will not be enough for the enforced stay.

May Be Requisitioned.

There is considerable nervousness among passengers regarding the sailing from this port of the Aquitania on Aug. 15 and of the Mauretania on Aug. 22. In the event of Great Britain going to war it is probable the admiralty, which pays an annual subsidy, will claim them. Rumors were afloat all yesterday regarding the possible cancellation of the Mauretania's present trip.

The White Star and allied lines will not disclose which boats are filled, as some reservations are being canceled even now, but it is learned on good authority that it is impossible now to book a berth on any transatlantic steamer, including those of the Canadian lines, before Aug. 25.

Relief Plan Won't Pay.

Discussing the possibility of the Royal Mail line or other big steamship lines putting on boats for transatlantic service temporarily, a shipping expert explained that such service would not pay, as the boats would be filled only one way and would carry no freight.

Many women traveling alone and not in touch with the latest developments did not know the steamship situation until they read the morning papers.

The Hamburg-American line has told passengers that all its sailings up till and including Aug. 10 have been canceled. They gave credit checks to other lines.

Herded with Soldiery.

Americans caught in the various countries in the war area who are fortunate enough to reach London after much discomfort were herded in third class carriages with the swaggering soldiery overwhelming all. Railways, motor roads, and other lines of transportation bear evidences of unpleasant experiences.

One crowd coming from southern Germany by way of Holland today suggested a band of refugees fleeing a zone of actual war instead of a party of happy holiday makers. Some of these people were without food two days and a number are minus baggage lost between Munich and Rotterdam.

Four Thousand Get Away.

Four thousand Americans were fortunate enough today to secure passage on eight liners leaving British, Holland, Scotch, Italian, and Spanish ports. With their joyful departure on the Mauretania, Kroonland, New York, California, Minnetonka, Ivernian and Montreal, all taking maximum lists, twice as many Americans poured into London wearied after a six days' struggle with patriotically hysterical, insolent, bullying soldiers, railway guards, and tearful hotelkeepers, whose harvest was devastated at the height of a bountiful promise.

Mails and Wires Tied Up.

Americans arriving at London have found their mail gone astray and telegrams sent by them from Germany, Austria, and Russia last Sunday and Monday not yet received. They were somewhat placated on learning that London newspapers suffered from the same demoralization of the continental mail service and the strict censorship of telegrams, particularly in Russia, Austria, and Germany.

The Savoy, Cecil, Ritz, Carlton, Morley's, and other hotels were overrun with Americans, with a prospect of being absolutely swamped by those making their way from the continent by motor and other conveyances at hand.

Crisis for Woman Tourists.

Young girl students, teachers, and other women traveling alone face a serious situation. Shortly after 10 a. m. there were three long lines before each cashier's window in one of the ship offices looking for gold which was given in small quantities on letters of credit issued by Brown, Shipley & Co. and Henry Clews. All foreign money of every nature was refused. They could not even sell American money when it was quoted at 75 cents on the dollar. Several instances are reported where its value was only 62½ cents.

A leading retired judge of the Supreme court of New York walked the streets of Paris last night with $6,000 in United States bills in his pockets, but he could not buy a dinner.

U. S. Certificates Worthless.

It is a novel experience for many annual visitors to find that American gold certificates have no market value. Although there was a slight run on the Bank of England, it cashed its own checks with gold. Many thoughtful American women when they could not change United States money today or get gold in any hotel went shopping and paid their bills with £5 notes to get a few sovereigns.

Americans in Paris who couldn't get checks cashed yesterday sent registered letters to friends here asking them to get gold for them. Many cases were unsuccessful.

Chicagoan to Berne.

Franklin Martin of Chicago, secretary of the clinical congress, has given up all thought of getting home, and with Mrs. Martin left this afternoon for Berne to aid his niece who is held up in Munich. Swiss waiters in all London hotels are leaving tonight in response to orders that they must report within twenty-four hours.

Prominent American residents met here today and organized a mission to assist their compatriots who may be stranded on the continent through the paralysis of the ordinary banking facilities. They will send men to the continent provided with money to help Americans reach home, if the continental governments will permit the agents to enter.

PARISIANS MAD, SAYS W. H. CRANE

American Actor Asserts City Is Seething with Hatred of Germany.

MONEY TIEUP SEVERE.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—W. H. Crane, the American actor, who has just arrived from Paris, has this to say of conditions on the continent:

"I never saw such scenes in my life. The Parisians are a demented race; demented with a hatred of Germany. They have resolved to avenge the insults of the last thirty years.

"The taxicab man who drove me to the station, when I asked him whether he was going to fight, vehemently answered: 'I'd leave everything I possess in the world—wife, children, home—and put out for German soil to kill a German.'

"I intended to stay over till Tuesday, but last evening Consul General Thackara telephoned me to leave by the first train, as in twenty-four hours more there would be no trains.

Herrick Is Pessimistic.

"Ambassador Herrick said to me on Wednesday, when I asked his opinion of the situation, 'I think this is the blackest outlook Europe has faced in all its history. Civilization is not merely a failure, it's a hypocritical show.'

"The money situation in Paris is far worse than here. You can get no change anywhere. If you haven't the exact amount of your purchase you won't get it. I went to the Cafe de la Paix with my brother, a resident of Paris for fifty years and well known at the cafe. He tendered a twenty franc note in payment for a drink. The waiter said he couldn't change five francs even, and lent my brother a franc to pay his bill.

French Wrath Aflame.

"I never saw such a terrible look on faces of human beings as were on those of Parisians yesterday, as they waited about newspaper offices for bulletins. It was a savage excitement all the more terrible for its suppression. The French are blind with war fever and with a desire to get at German throats. If they fail, as they did in 1870, none can foresee the consequences. These few last days at Paris gave me the most wonderful experience of my life."

No Change in London.

Sir William Osler and his brother, Sir Edward Osler, a Canadian Pacific magnate staying at Brown's hotel, today tendered a five pound note to pay a small bill. The cashier said he couldn't give change. Finally the two brothers had to borrow a sovereign from the hall porter to discharge their bill. There was intense indignation among Americans, old patrons of London's costly hotels. American gold certificates can only be cashed at a ruinous discount. This really is quite unjustifiable, as banks are giving all the gold they need to customers. Many Americans tendering five pound notes at cable offices in payment for tolls have them returned across the counter on the plea that no change can be given. Many have been unable to cable their friends at home.

SUFFRAGISTS URGE PEACE.

International Alliance Sends Kaiser Plea and Request for a Hearing.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The International Woman Suffrage alliance, representing twenty-six countries, sent a message to the kaiser today appealing to him to take steps to avert a European war and asking the German monarch to receive a deputation from the alliance to that effect.

pean waters are the little gunboat Scorpion, station ship at Constantinople, and the battleship Maine, at Villafranche, with Annapolis midshipmen and the officers and crew of the battleship Idaho, which was taken over at that port by the Greek government. The Maine will leave Villafranche on Tuesday for Annapolis.

A special appropriation would be required to charter steamships to bring home Americans. Congress always has acted promptly in such emergencies, and is expected to do so again.

TOURISTS' FRIENDS ANXIOUS.

Many applications were received at the state department today from persons in the United States desirous of having American consuls investigate and report upon the safety of their friends and relatives in Europe.

The state department is returning the uniform answer that under their general instructions the consuls will look after and report the case of any Americans in distress in their respective districts, and consequently that no special instructions are needed.

ALIENS MAY QUIT FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—All foreigners may leave Paris or France before the end of the first day of mobilization by train, but not by automobile. Those desiring to leave France may do so by certain trains, the time tables of which are posted on the walls of Paris tonight, or by sea.

Americans citizens or British subjects may remain in France, except in the regions on the eastern frontier and near certain fortresses, provided they make declarations to the police and obtain a special permit.

No foreigner will be permitted to leave France after the first day of mobilization without a passport signed by the prefect.

WILL PROTECT AMERICANS.

American, English, and other foreigners may remain in Paris by obtaining a special permit from the police. The police will make exceptions in the cases of Austrians and Germans, who will be taken to special refuge depots in western France, where they will be lodged and fed, and, if possible, provided with work. Later they will be allowed to leave by a neutral frontier. Any person breaking these rules will be arrested.

Suggestions were cabled to the state department at Washington from Paris today that the United States government send transports to French ports to take away Americans who desire to leave France and can find no means of transportation.

KITCHENER TO LEAD BRITISH?

Believed He Will Have Full Command of English Land Forces in Event of War.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—That Lord Kitchener will have full command of the British land forces in the event England is drawn into the impending international war is the belief in London today. It became known this morning that last night Lord Kitchener and Premier Asquith were summoned by King George and that a long conference ensued.

JAPS' POLICY, "HANDS OFF"

Prof. Starr Says Island Nation Will Keep Out of War.

EDUCATORS GIVE VIEWS.

Italian Instructor Declares His Country Is in Alliance It Hates.

Matters of policy will restrain the Japanese from being drawn into a general European war, even if the war should involve her ally, Great Britain, according to Prof. Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago. Mr. Starr, who is a noted anthropologist and explorer, and an authority on Japanese and Corean affairs, scouts the idea of Japan's taking advantage of the crisis in foreign affairs to press any demands upon the United States. He predicted yesterday that the island nation would, however, seize the chance to further her interests in the far east while Russia is occupied with the trouble in Europe.

No Probability of Trouble.

"There is not the slightest possibility or probability that Japan will take advantage of the uncertainty to give us trouble," said Prof. Starr. "Japan is not watching for the opportunity to work harm upon us. She is not likely to press her claims regarding California, or in any other way to cause us trouble on account of the European difficulty.

"The spirit of Japan on the whole is very friendly to the United States. In fact, Japan has been our stanch friend for more than fifty years, ever since the time of Commodore Peary's visit.

Will Not Aid Great Britain.

"Under no circumstances will Japan take an active part in the European war in aid of Great Britain. Great Britain certainly would not ask or expect her to do so, and it is unlikely that Japan would feel called upon to take part because of her alliance with Great Britain.

"This alliance is rather peculiar in view of the fact that Great Britain is related to Russia through the triple entente. It is inconceivable that Great Britain would be placed in a situation where she would feel it necessary to call on Japan to aid her, which would be aiding Russia.

"Great Britain is not unwise enough to summon Japan as an ally in a war in which all Europe is involved, and thus extend the chaos to include Asia."

Italy Dragged Into War.

Dr. Pietro Stoppani, an instructor in the romance department of the University of Chicago, is of the opinion that Italy is being dragged unwillingly into a warfare on the side of Austria. Dr. Stoppani, who early left his home in Milan and studied in the universities of Milan, Genoa, and Berlin, is a member of the Italian reserve forces. He said he will return to Italy to take up arms with his countrymen if a call comes, however distasteful the idea of battling with the Austrians against the French, because the Italians feel obliged to carry out their treaty obligations.

"Italy as a nation does not like the idea of the alliance with Austria and Germany," said Prof. Stoppani. "The alliance is an unnatural one. Italy and Austria are foes at heart and a great majority of the Italian people dislike the idea of being called upon to support the Austrians. Their sympathies are all with the French people."

Race Hatred Given as Cause.

Prof. James Westfall Thompson, who holds the chair of European history at the University of Chicago, declares that in seeking to analyse the causes of the Austro-Servian controversy the student of history must look back more than 1,000 years to the growing race animosity of the Teuton and Serb peoples.

"The cause of the present war goes back to the old historic question of the slow pressure of the Slav race upon the German people," he said. "The question is one that is over 1,000 years old."

CHICAGOANS SAIL FROM LIVERPOOL

Mrs. Samuel Insull Among Women Safely on the Way Home.

THOUSANDS ARE LEFT.

Relatives of Chicagoans in the war district flocked to the local steamship companies yesterday for information. Not much, however, could be told, as advance bookings, in many instances, have not been received here.

The Mauretania sailed from Liverpool at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. It contained a full list of passengers, including many who had transferred from German and French and Russian boats. Many Chicagoans are on board, including Mrs. Samuel Insull and Dr. John B. Murphy.

Book Only to Liverpool.

The Cunard and White Star line companies have discontinued booking of continental passengers to eastern points because they cannot guarantee forwarding them beyond England. They will book to Liverpool, but no further east.

These Returning Home.

The Austro-American Fabre line reports the following persons as returning to the United States:

Miss Julia E. Ferguson, Evanston, sailing Aug. 19 from Palermo, Italy.

Miss Luther of Evanston sailing on the same vessel.

Mrs. Mary Moore of Evanston sailing on same vessel.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Brown of the Little theater, sailing Sept. 1 from Palermo.

Mrs. H. Wetterer and Miss O. Wetterer sailing Aug. 7 from Naples.

W. A. Oldfather, professor of Greek and Latin at the University of Illinois, sails on Sept. 1 on the Kaiser Franz Josef from Palmero.

Mrs. Wetterer is the wife of Dr. Herman Wetterer of 1441 North La Salle street, a dentist. She and her daughter Olga have been abroad since June 1. Dr. Wetterer received a postcard from them Friday, which said they would board the steamship Canada, bound out of Naples for New York, on Aug. 7.

"I haven't heard anything since then," he said. "The postal was dated a week ago, and I am making inquiries. I am worried about them."

Two Ancient Rivals May Meet in New Jena or Sedan Clash.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

WHEN the top finally blows off the pot of European hell broth these two ancient rivals, Germany and France, are likely to be again pitted against each other on the field of battle.

History cannot fail to repeat itself, but will it be Jena or Sedan?

In the first great battle the old kingdom of Prussia was crushingly defeated. The capital, the very monarchy, lay prostrate at the feet of the triumphant French conqueror.

In the second battle the armies of Napoleon III. were almost annihilated. The emperor himself surrendered, and his army of 124,000 men laid down its arms.

No two battles between two great nations have been so strangely alike in their inception and in their progress and yet so exactly opposite in their result.

As a result of the first battle the French army marched in triumph through the streets of Berlin.

As a result of the second Kaiser Wilhelm I. was crowned German emperor at Paris.

History offers no such close parallel; no such utter contrast.

THE BATTLE OF JENA.

In 1806 Prussia and the Prussian arms were still living on the reflected glory of Frederick the Great, then dead for twenty years.

Napoleon was at almost the height of his power. His grand army had been welded into a military weapon of unequaled efficiency and strength.

Prussia had stood by while the smaller states of Europe were swallowed up by the French. Napoleon had held out to it magnificent hopes of territorial aggrandizement. Prussia had even entered into an offensive and defensive alliance with the Corsican.

But all the time the Germans appear to have been secretly ashamed of the subservient attitude they had been led to adopt.

When the Prussian leaders heard that their ally was negotiating for peace with England, on the basis of turning over to the island kingdom the province of Hanover, and that he was attempting to prevent Saxony and Hesse from joining the German confederation, they suddenly—and apparently without much forethought—called their people to arms.

They recklessly challenged Napoleon to battle and sent their army, commanded by old and poorly selected generals, forward to meet the all-conquering foe.

The Prussian army was divided into two or three divisions, led by as many rivals and personally hostile leaders. Apparently it had no plan of attack. It rushed out of its defensive position to meet a victorious force, united under the greatest military genius who ever lived and which outnumbered it by more than 50,000 men.

The Prussian army seems to have depended almost entirely on tradition. Its organization was that of Frederick the Great. The soldiers were loaded down with great quantities of baggage and other impedimenta.

One division was commanded by the Duke of Brunswick, the beaten warrior of 1792; the second by Prince Hohenlohe, and the reserves by the Prince of Würtemburg, the two last of no military reputation. Each was jealous of the fame of the other.

The Prussian army numbered, in all, 150,000 men unused to war, untrained in what were then the most modern military methods.

Against it Napoleon led a magnificent force of 190,000 warriors trained to the minute, used to victory, full of absolute confidence in their general.

The result was certain. As Napoleon began his advance the Duke of Brunswick took most of his army into a retreat, leaving only about 50,000 men to face the invader and be defeated.

Meanwhile a part of the French army, moving on Auerstadt, had caught up with the Brunswick retreat and, though greatly outnumbered, attacked and drove the Prussians into a rout.

The Duke of Brunswick was mortally wounded; his routed army surrendered at discretion. The French victory was complete and overwhelming. In less than thirty days the issue was decided.

Technically, Napoleon was not the aggressor, though he had goaded the Prussians into war. Auerstadt, especially, was a blot on the Prussian arms which it took the triumphs of 1870 to wipe out.

THE BATTLE OF SEDAN.

Look now at the strangest parallel and contrast in history.

In 1870 France was still living in the glamour of the Napoleonic tradition. "Napoleon the Little" was on the throne. Every effort had been made by Napoleon III., who called himself the man of destiny, to revive and increase the glory of his Corsican ancestor.

Meanwhile Kaiser Wilhelm I. of Prussia, with Bismarck as his civil and Moltke as his military arm, was laying plans for the creation of a German nation. "Napoleon the Little" looked on at the gradual consolidation of the German power. In 1864 he abandoned Denmark and two years later Austria. All the time Bismarck dangled before his eyes dreams of imperial acquisitions.

It was in the seven weeks' war against Austria and its German allies, in which Prussia was victorious, that finally convinced the emperor of the French that he must take the offensive. But Moltke and Bismarck were more than ready for him.

As in the campaign of Jena it was Prussia which was forced into taking the offensive, now it was France which was driven to start hostilities.

On July 19, 1870, war was declared. In less than two weeks Germany had nearly 1,200,000 men under arms. The German army in the field was composed of about half a million thoroughly trained men under the command of skilled leaders and working in accordance with an exact plan.

As the Prussians, more than sixty years before, had been poorly led and marched back and forth without apparent plan, now it was the French army which lacked generals and plan of campaign.

Where at Jena the Prussians had been handicapped by lack of equipment and discipline, now the French were decidedly inferior, even in numbers. Against the half million soldiers of the kaiser they had only 340,000.

As at Jena the Duke of Brunswick had led his troops in retreat, now Marshal MacMahon retired with his army to the fortified town of Sedan. His soldiers were tired with long and fruitless marches; they were short of food and ammunition. And as Napoleon the Great relentlessly followed the fleeing Prussians, now the great German general, Moltke, hemmed in the French.

Riding up on a height which overlooked the French camp, Moltke, on Aug. 31, gave his final commands.

"The trap is now closed," he said, "and the mouse is in it."

All day on Sept. 1 there was tremendous fighting. As the Prussians had made a heroic defense at Jena, now the French army distinguished itself by feats of valor. But superior force and greater skill were not to be denied in the one case more than in the other.

The German guns commanded all the heights about the town and poured such a rain of shells into the camp that early the emperor, Napoleon III., was convinced there was no hope of escape. He ordered a white flag flown above the town in token of surrender and sent a note to the kaiser asking for terms.

SHIPPING STOPS; STEAMERS HELD IN THEIR PORTS

Great Atlantic Lines Refuse to Chance Capture of Vessels at Sea.

RELY ON BRITISH MIGHT

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The world's shipping was practically halted today by restrictive orders to the great ocean transportation lines.

Not a propeller controlled by the big German lines moved except to race to cover. The sea rangers of the British lines were ordered to refuse all bookings to ports on the continent of Europe, although the service to England, it was promised, will go on. Feeling secure that England is arbitress of the seas, these lines will continue to book passengers for London and Liverpool.

The only boat that sailed today with passengers for the continent was the Zeeland of the Red Star line. It was flying the Belgian flag. It carried 800 of the detained Vaterland's list. The White Star liner Oceanic got away at noon with the same number of the Vaterland's passengers, but British ports were their destinations.

Russia Seizes Two Ships.

Still further restrictions followed in the announcement by the Russian-American line that it had canceled all sailings and that two of its liners, the Russia and the Kursk, had been seized by the Russian government.

There was every indication that within a few days the transatlantic lanes that usually are crowded with great liners would be lonelier than the vast reaches of the Pacific.

On top of the recall by wireless of four more German owned steamships, the British lines made a formal announcement early this afternoon of traffic limitations.

Orders Three Ships Back.

The North German Lloyd line, which announced yesterday that no more vessels would sail from either side of the Atlantic, completed its tieup by ordering back to port today three vessels—the Friedrich der Grosse, the Grosser Kurfuerst, and the Neckar—which sailed on July 29 from Baltimore, New York, and Galveston respectively. In addition, the line ordered the steamer Willehad, now at the British port of Montreal, to proceed at once to Boston and remain there till further orders.

The transatlantic service between New York and continental Europe was suspended today by the Cunard line and the International Mercantile Marine company, which controls the White Star, Red Star, American, Leyland, Dominion, and Atlantic Transport lines. Sailings for British ports via these lines was not interrupted.

Sailings of the seven vessels comprising the Atlas service of the Hamburg-American line between New York, the West Indies, the Panama have all been canceled. The Allemania of this service, which sailed yesterday, will be recalled by wireless.

Only one vessel of the Cunard line, the Saxonia, was to sail today. Its destination was the Mediterranean. An hour before its sailing time officials of the line announced that it would not depart on time and that whether it would sail at all would depend upon instructions from England.

La Lorraine in Port.

La Lorraine of the French line reached port today possibly to swell the great fleet of liners, which will remain inactive at their docks in the Hudson till the foreign situation clears. La Provence of this line has been requisitioned by the French navy and officials of the line could not assert positively today whether La Lorraine would sail for Europe next Tuesday, as scheduled, or not.

The seven vessels of the Hamburg-American liner's Atlas service, whose suspension was ordered today, are the Prinz Joachim, which was to have sailed at noon today with fifty-five passengers; the Gracia, due here next Wednesday from the West Indies, the Allemania, which sailed yesterday, the Prinz Sigismund, last reported at Santiago, Cuba, on July 30; the Prinz Eitel Friederich, now at Fortune island; the Prinz Auguste Wilheld, due at Port of Columbus tomorrow, and the Virginia.

Orders were issued to the commanders of these vessels, with the exception of the Allemania, to complete their present sailing routes so far as practicable, and to remain in American ports as soon as they were reached during the regular itinerary of their trips. It was considered likely that the entire fleet would be ordered eventually to New York.

Hundreds Wait in Hotels.

At hotels in this city are scores of foreigners and Americans who had booked passage on the ships which have been held up. Among those who sought hotel quarters when the Vaterland was held up are many foreigners of rank, several of whom are officers in the armies of their respective countries. Many did not know their trip had been postponed until late in the afternoon, and there was a scramble to get their baggage to hotels from the Hoboken piers.

It was said at the Hamburg-American line office that the Imperator, scheduled to sail for this port yesterday, had been booked almost to her capacity, and that the loss of the line in passage money alone would be at least $250 000.

This makes the combined loss of the two biggest ships afloat $500,000, exclusive of the expense of maintaining in this port the officers and crew of a ship practically out of commission.

A prominent marine official said today that the next twenty-four hours may witness a rush to American ports of hundreds of freight and passenger steamships registered under the flags of the various countries involved or to be involved in the European crisis. He explained that, if war becomes a certainty, the only absolute protection to be offered merchant vessels registered under the flags of the warring countries will be in neutral ports.

Takes German Line's Passengers.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1.—The American line steamship Merion, which flies the British flag, sailed today for Liverpool and Queenstown with many of the passengers of the Hamburg-American liner Rhaetia.

BURLESON PUTS GUARD ON CASH

Postmasters Given Order to Limit Amount of Postal Orders.

ACTS BY TREATY RIGHT

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Postmaster General Burleson issued a war order today when he instructed postmasters that it is not necessary for them to accept large foreign money orders.

The rate on exchange has become so high in the last few days that many firms and individuals doing foreign business turned to the postal service to transmit their money. The postmaster general said in regard to this:

"The treaties concluded by the United States with foreign countries give each postal administration power to suspend, temporarily, the exchange of money orders 'in case the course of exchange or any other circumstance should give rise to abuses, or cause detriment to the postal revenue.'

"The sudden and extraordinary advance in bankers' exchange due to the public apprehension of a general European war may lead to 'abuses' of the money order system, because of the much lower rates of conversion obtainable at postoffices.

Bar Against Speculation.

"In these unusual circumstances, and until the return of normal conditions, postmasters may decline to accept applications for international money orders when made for unusually large sums, and when there is reason to believe the orders are wanted for speculative purposes. In every case, however, immediate report of the facts should be made to the office of the third assistant postmaster general, division of money orders."

The high rates of foreign exchange and the closing of the New York stock exchange bears on the international money order business of the postoffice department to some extent. But the sale of international money orders for purposes not speculative is being continued and American money orders in the average volume of $500,000 a day are being redeemed abroad.

Balance Against America.

American money orders payable in Europe exceed European orders payable in the United States to the extent of about $300 000 a day. Under normal conditions the postoffice department purchases foreign exchange weekly to cover the balance against the United States. These purchases will not be made for the present.

The accounts with the European countries having money order conventions with the United States and which are involved in the present unsettled situation will be kept open until foreign exchange may be obtained at a reasonable rate. It is expected that the international money order service will be continued as usual notwithstanding the abnormal conditions.

Mail Service Not Stopped.

Stoppage or material delay of the European mail service as the result of the threatened war in Europe has not occurred at the American end. The general European mail, which was to have gone by the Vaterland at 11 o'clock today, was transferred to the Oceanic, owing to the cancellation of the former steamship's sailing. This mail left New York on schedule time. The German mail will be landed by the Oceanic at Plymouth, England. Mail for southern Europe will be taken to Cherbourg, the same port at which the Vaterland would have landed it.

Next Tuesday's mail schedules for carriage in the Kron Prinz Wilhelm will be transferred to the Lusitania, if the Kron Prinz Wilhelm does not sail. If British and French steamships also were withdrawn from the transatlantic service, of course, a serious situation will exist.

MAY GAIN ENTRY TO U. S. REGISTRY

Congress Will Take Action on Foreign Built Vessels.

GRAIN MEN URGE HELP.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C. Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Measures opening American registry to foreign built vessels will be introduced into congress on Monday and probably will be passed immediately.

Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain today furnished the information on which the congressional leaders will plan their bills.

Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that if all Europe becomes involved in war there will remain in the entire noncombatant world vessels enough to carry only 17 per cent of the American overseas trade. Mr. Chamberlain also estimated that over 50 per cent of the vessels carrying American foreign trade are of British registry, while about 17 per cent are of Germain. The remainder are scattered.

Canadians Seek Entry.

Canadian coastwise vessel owners today urged the United States to accept their vessels in the American registry during the conflict in Europe. Such a thing will not be thought of for a moment unless the Canadians are willing to come in on the same terms as all others.

President Wilson pointed out to his advisers today that the United States cannot be put in the position of offering a harbor of safety to vessels of any of the combatants merely by changing flags and then changing them back again at the close of the conflict. The legislation which will be proposed will be above subterfuge in every respect.

GRAIN MEN ASK AID.

Grain interests of the country are taking an unusual interest in maritime affairs, inasmuch as the European war threatens to check the enormous export business in wheat, which is just getting under way. This country has more than 50,000,000 bushels of wheat sold for shipment abroad, according to exporters.

With Europe in urgent need of the wheat ways and means are being devised to guarantee the unimpeded movement of the grain out of the country.

Big Shipments Recently.

In the last two weeks about 18,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour have cleared from American and Canadian ports.

As a result of the situation brought about by the war prospects abroad, the directors of the board of trade at a special meeting yesterday passed a resolution and directed that the text of it be wired to President Wilson and to the Illinois senators and representatives.

President Asked to Assist.

The resolution follows:

WHEREAS, War involving every first class European power being imminent; and,

WHEREAS, Unless the United States government takes prompt action, in event of a general war it will be impossible for any foreign commerce to be handled whatsoever; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, By the board of trade of the city of Chicago, that the Washington government be and hereby is requested to make every effort to at once amend the navigation laws, if needful, removing the restrictions on foreign vessels which wish to enter the American registry, permitting foreign officers and crews to man vessels flying the American flag, and to do all things needful to keep alive, and to prevent as far as it may be possible serious interference with the movement of the necessaries of life across the seas.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the president of the United States.

BANKERS LEAVE TO AID WILSON

PUT UP TO TREASURY.

Three members of the Chicago clearing house committee will leave at 12:40 this afternoon for Washington, D. C., to confer with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo regarding the effect of the European wars on American financial conditions. Clearing house representatives from all the reserve cities in the country will be present.

James B. Forgan, chairman of the committee and president of the First National bank; George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National bank, and Ernst A. Hamill of the Corn Exchange National bank will go to the national capital today. John J. Mitchell, president of the Illinois Trust company, is expected to follow tomorrow. Orson Smith, president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust company, is on his way to Europe.

Finances May Improve.

The conference does not necessarily indicate fear on the part of the federal officials that American finances will be harmed, according to Mr. Reynolds. With proper circumspection, he said, no evil effects could come to the United States. The opposite effect might result instead.

"The conference, as I see it," said Mr. Reynolds, "is simply to prepare for any emergency. It has no special significance as to the present condition of the nation's finances. In fact, there is little indication in the west of the need of the conference.

Will Help U. S. Adjust Itself.

"The meeting of the bankers with the federal authorities will enable this country to adapt itself to any specific condition which exists abroad. At present we are ranging in the darkness. We do not know where we stand, because of the uncertainty. The declaration of war by Germany has cleared the atmosphere somewhat and was to be expected.

"As far as the European situation having a detrimental effect on the finances of this country is concerned, it may be said the condition of business in this country and the means at the control of the treasury department provide the machinery with which to fortify ourselves against anything. Business will adjust itself to the new order of things and will soon be regulated, it is to be believed."

CARUSO AND OTHER STARS MAY HAVE TO GO TO WAR.

General European Conflict Might Make Soldiers of Opera Singers and Disarrange Season.

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The great tenor, Enrico Caruso, may soon be warbling arias to Gatling obligatos, while his fellow countrymen, Scotti, Amato, Toscanini, and others, march along with him to the front.

This is only another way of saying a general war in Europe may make soldiers of many opera stars, as well as disarrange the plans for the coming season of theatrical and musical comedy managers.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera house, is an Italian citizen and a graduate engineer of the naval training school. Caruso, who is now in Italy, is within the age limit of those on whom the government may call for service. Among the most prominent Italian opera stars in addition to those named are Reschiglian, Rossi, and Polacco.

Austria is represented on the roster of opera stars by Rudolph Berger and Carl Burrian; Germany by Albert Beiss, Otto Goritz, Herman Weil, Carl Braun, Richard Hageman, and Hans Morgenstern; France, Dinh Gillick, Paolo Ananian, and Leon Rothier, and Russia by Karl Jorn and Adamo Diduri.

BRITAIN TO LIFT ITS BANK ACT?

Chancellor of the Exchequer and Prominent Bankers Confer.

GOLD RUN UNABATED.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The British chancellor of the exchequer had a prolonged interview with a number of prominent bankers today, as a result of which it is anticipated that the government will ask parliament on Monday to take action to "deal with the financial situation," or, in other words, to suspend the bank act.

The scenes witnessed at the Bank of England yesterday during the rush to obtain gold in exchange for bank notes were repeated this morning, but on a still larger scale.

The bank porters had been sworn in as special policemen so they could more easily handle the crowds and in case of necessity arrest anybody causing a disturbance. A strong force of the city police also was on duty to deal with the crowd outside the bank premises.

Although some were restless, as they wanted to get their money so as to proceed to country and seaside resorts for their usual holiday at the beginning of August, the first Monday of which is a national holiday, there was nothing which could be described even as excitement.

Crowds Are Orderly.

It was noticeable today that the line was largely made up of clerks and included many women who had received their wages in notes and wanted to change them into gold, as they realized that with a continuance of the crisis notes would become unchangeable.

Throgmorton street, where stock brokers usually assemble, was deserted today, the brokers having gone away for the holiday. The traffic to the holiday resorts was heavier today than it ever had been, many who had intended to take short trips to the continent having decided to remain in the British isles.

The Bank of England today raised its discount rate to 10 per cent.

German Bank Rate Raised.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—The bank rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany was raised to 6 per cent today. The rate of interest for private loans was raised to 6 per cent.

French Discount Rate Raised.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The Bank of France today raised its discount rate from 4½ to 6 per cent, and its rate for loans from 5½ to 7 per cent. The bourse was open, but there were no quotations.

Belgium Discount Rate Up.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 1.—The national bank raised its discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent.

Holland Bank Rate Increased.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 1.—The bank rate of the Netherlands has been increased from 4½ to 6 per cent.

STOCK MARKETS MARKING TIME

Wall Street and New York Brokers Buy Despite Closing of Exchange.

REOPENING IN DOUBT.

New York, Aug. 1.—With the stock and commodity markets still closed, the financial district marked time today. To all outward appearances Wall street was almost as busily engaged as under normal conditions. The street was crowded and stock exchange brokers and an army of employes came to their offices in larger numbers than is usual for a Saturday in midsummer, although they knew that the exchange would not be opened.

At the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. representatives of some of the largest financial institutions in New York and Philadelphia met. No information was obtainable as to what took place beyond the fact that the present troubled situation was discussed with a view to taking precautions.

Exchange Reopening in Doubt.

It is understood that no definite time for the reopening of exchanges was agreed upon, since little could be done until receipt of definite information from Europe.

Although the time of the reopening of the exchange rests entirely in the hands of the board of governors, it was everywhere assumed that trading would not be resumed for some time. It was felt that it would be unwise to reopen the market until the London board, at least, should take up business again. Otherwise New York would again be placed in the position of bearing the financial burdens of the world, perhaps to its own severe cost.

A meeting of the newly formed Association of Partners of Stock Exchange Firms was held and a statement was made urging all exchange members not to engage in outside dealings in securities.

Gold Still Flowing Abroad.

Further engagements of gold were announced today. London took $600,000 and Canada $3,850,000. Large amounts of coin were withdrawn from the clearing house vaults by banks which contemplate making shipments next week.

The extent to which the gold export movement would continue was one of the most important questions of the financial district at this juncture. Gold shipments to Europe are now so expensive and hazardous that it was the general opinion that the movement would be restricted henceforth.

There are few American vessels in which the gold may be shipped, and in these vessels alone it is regarded safe to export gold, since ships of European nations would be subject to capture in the event of a general war.

PRESIDENT ASKS ACTION TO HELP MONEY MARKETS

Currency Measure Will Be Pushed Through Congress on Monday.

MANN DELAYS SUCCESS

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The financial situation in New York today became so critical because of chaotic conditions in Europe that President Wilson determined to take urgent steps on Monday to meet it.

The emergency currency measure which passed the senate yesterday will be jammed through the house Monday at the president's command without regard for rules or order. This course was determined on today after the house committee on banking and currency failed to obtain a quorum to consider the bill. The house also showed its apathy by adjourning on a point of no quorum made by Minority Leader Mann of Chicago.

Secretary McAdoo was advised of the New York crisis early in the day. He promptly wired the presidents of the New York, Chicago, and St. Louis clearing houses to send committees to meet him here Monday morning to confer on plans for coöperation during the European war.

Secretary McAdoo tonight received the acceptances of the presidents of the three clearing house associations of his invitation. George M. Reynolds will head the Chicago delegation.

Hoped for Early Action.

The failure of the house to act on the emergency measure today seriously embarrassed the president and his treasury chief.

It was their plan to have the measure passed and signed today so that Secretary McAdoo could be prepared to act with the opening of business on Monday.

The absence of a quorum of the committee and the failure of the house to remain in session now makes remedial action almost impossible before Tuesday.

Eleven members constitute a quorum of the house committee. At no time today was Representative Glass, its chairman, able to assemble more than nine. Those present besides the chairman were Congressman Stone of Illinois, Korbly of Indiana, Phelan of Massachusetts, Seldomridge of Colorado, Wingo of Arkansas, Guernsey of Maine, Woods of Iowa, and Brown of West Virginia. Those absent were Representatives Hayes of California, Smith and Lindbergh of Minnesota, Eagle of Texas, Ragsdale of South Carolina, Platt, and Patton of New York, Bulkley of Ohio, Burke of Pennsylvania, and Neeley of Kansas.

Sends Wire to Absentees.

Mr. Glass telegraphed those who are out of the city, urging them to return promptly that the meeting might be held Monday. While he was doing this, Majority Leader Underwood was summoned to the White House for another conference. There he was informed that messages from New York indicated the situation was so desperate that desperate methods had to be adopted.

It was agreed that when the house meets Monday Mr. Underwood will ask unanimous consent to take up the emergency amendment to the banking law passed by the senate yesterday and that the banking and currency commission be discharged from further consideration of it. If Minority Leader Mann or any other member objects a vote will be taken on the question.

Secretary McAdoo also announced today that the $34 000,000 to be deposited in the national banks for crop moving purposes is available now.

May Use Certificates.

New York, Aug. 1.—Extraordinary action was taken by the leading financial interests of America today to avert financial unsettlement in this country as a result of the European war. Relief measures are under way which in the opinion of bankers will preserve the public confidence. This is the situation:

Emergency currency probably will be put into circulation next week. If occasion requires this currency may be supplemented here and elsewhere by clearing house certificates such as were used in 1907.

Stock Markets Are Upset.

It was a day of strenuous activity, not unmixed with anxiety, for the bankers of New York. The European crisis demoralized the financial markets of the world a week ago, and the intricacies of modern finance are such that upon America, isolated from the perils of war, fell a full share of the burden. Liquidation of American stocks by European holders not only upset this stock market so completely that it was compelled to suspend business, but raised another serious problem. That problem was to pay Europe for the stocks sold here.

It is estimated by representatives of foreign stock exchange houses that from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 worth of American stocks were thrown on this market, for whatever they would bring, by panic stricken European holders. Canada also unloaded stocks here to a large extent. Next week the bills drawn against these sales of stock will reach New York.

Deficit in Gold Supply.

Part of the $45,000,000 gold shipped abroad on vessels now on high seas is in danger of capture. Even these shipments leave a large total of foreign credits to be satisfied. Today's statement of the New York banks showed in cold print the effect of the raid upon the American supply of gold. There was decrease in cash holdings of more than $53,000,000, due principally to the loss of gold, and in place of the surplus reserves of $26,000,000 reported last Saturday there was today a deficit of $17,000,000.

To meet these foreign claims without serious encroachment upon available financial resources the bankers of New York were forced to take decisive action.

CANADA OFFERS 50,000 MEN FOR USE OF BRITISH ARMY.

Large Number of Those Included Would Be Ready for Service at Once.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 1.—A formal offer of military contingents was cabled to England today by the Canadian government. An emergency meeting of the cabinet was presided over by Premier Borden. It was called to deal with the situation in which Canada finds herself as the result of the European war.

Premier Borden informed his associates he had received word that the Duke of Connaught was hurrying back from the west to give his personal attention to the critical affairs which are expected to develop at Ottawa. He is expected to arrive Monday night.

The government unanimously decided to make England an offer of men. Infantry, cavalry, and artillery will be included in any force sent forward and it would number 20,000 men if transportation could be obtained for that number. It is estimated that within two weeks it would be possible to dispatch 10,000 efficient soldiers, and within three months this number could be increased to 50,000.

Offers for foreign service continued to arrive from the commandants of militia corps throughout the dominion. The war spirit apparently is growing in Canada and it appears that practically every corps will volunteer for foreign service should a call come.

It is understood that the government has decided to make an effort to prevent to departure from Canada of Austrian and Hungarian reservists. There are many thousands of them in the country to which they have been attracted by railway construction work which has been carried on during the last few years. Word is received that they are being organized in bodies for return to Austria to join their colors and fight the allies of England.

It is recognized that there may be some difficulty in stopping them, but those who seek to leave Canada through Canadian ports will be held, it is indicated.

RAILROADS WIN RATE INCREASE

DENY GENERAL RAISE.

the western roads may be assured of being allowed an advance.

The decision of the majority of the commission sustains all of the contentions of Louis D. Brandeis, who, as the special attorney for the commission, opposed the blanket 5 per cent rate advance and recommended allowances and readjustments in Central Freight association territory.

Taking up the pleas of the railroads that they are facing financial ruin, the commission says that there is no crisis in the condition of the carriers in official classification territory as a whole.

The report specifically condemns the financing of the roads.

It also censures the carriers for the great publicity campaign they carried out in their effort to get the rate increase.

"There can be no doubt," wrote Chairman Harlan, "that this clamor and outcry have tended to mislead the public and have seriously aggravated the present commercial depression."

Details Its Decision.

The commission's official memorandum of the decision for the press follows:

The report in the 5 per cent freight rate case was filed by the interstate commerce commission today. The opinion, written by Chairman Harlan, consists of seventy-seven pages. It is concurred in by Commissioners Clements, Clark, Meyer, and Hall. Commissioner McChord and Commissioner Daniels have each filed a separate opinion, differing from the majority as to a part of the findings.

The more significant features of the commission's report are:

First—The contention of the railroads that their revenues under the present scale of rates are inadequate is sustained, the commission saying that the operating income of the railroads in official classification territory, taken as a whole, is smaller than is demanded in the interests of both the general public and the railroads.

After referring to the duty the railroads owe to the public of conducting an efficient and safe service, the commission declares that the public owes a corresponding duty to the owners of the railroads and must afford them a full opportunity to earn a fair return on their investment and to share in the general prosperity, so long as the rates exacted by them of the public are just and reasonable.

The report says on this point:

"It is not only consistent with a national policy that invites the private ownership of railroads that there should be a liberal return on a particular railroad investment, when the property has been wisely planned and honestly constructed and is efficiently managed, but the full development of that policy, as well as justice, requires that such a recommendation should be made."

Outlines Territories.

Second—The commission points out that the official classification territory embraces three rate territories, known as the New England territory, lying east of the Hudson river; the trunk line territory, lying between the New England territory and the Buffalo-Pittsburgh line, and the Central Freight association territory, lying between the Buffalo-Pittsburgh line and the Mississippi river, and that the financial and traffic conditions of the railroads operating in these three rate territories differ widely. The commission finds that the rates in Central Freight association territory, as a whole, are not only lower than the rates in either trunk line or New England territory, but that they are lower than the rates in any part of the United States.

If the average freight rate had been as high on the Central Freight association territory lines as on the roads in trunk line territory, the former would have earned, in 1913, $56,000,000 more than they actually did, and the twenty-eight representative roads in Central Freight association territory, which are most in need, would have earned $29,000,000 more.

Some Help to All Lines.

Third—The aggregate mileage of the roads in Central Freight association territory is greater than that of all the roads in the New England and trunk line territories combined. The increase in revenues resulting from increases in rates in Central Freight association territory will afford some relief to practically all the lines in official classification territory which are in need of additional revenues except the New England lines, whose needs are being cared for locally. The three great trunk lines have each a large mileage in Central Freight association territory, so that their revenues will be augmented by rate increases in that territory. Thus, of the New York Central system, 12,690 miles of line, 8,938, or more than two-thirds, are in Central Freight association territory. Nearly one-half of the mileage of the Pennsylvania system is also in that territory and more than one-half of the Baltimore and Ohio. The Erie, the Chesapeake and Ohio, and the Norfolk and Western also have important mileage in Central Freight association territory.

The systems in trunk line territory which have no mileage in Central Freight association territory are in large part roads with large anthracite coal traffic, and they are very prosperous.

Points Inconsistencies.

Fourth—The commission finds that the class rates effective in Central Freight association territory are so low that an increase of 5 per cent would clearly not be unreasonable, but points out that the class rates structure in that territory is honeycombed with inconsistencies, and says:

"The attitude of the officials of the roads operating in Central Freight association territory, as disclosed on the record, indicated that they joined in this proceeding not because they thought the so-called 5 per cent increase of rates would meet their requirements or that this form of relief is appropriate in Central Freight association territory, but only because of the desire of other and more powerful lines operating in trunk line territory to present to us in this proceeding one general plan of relief. These officials, while stating that the so-called 5 per cent increase would add substantially to their revenues, expressly condemn the present basis of rates as unsuitable and unsatisfactory. The leading railroad witness on the question affirmed, with some earnestness, that 'the class rates do not sustain any logical relation to each other,' and that under the present basis of rates 'certain shippers of certain classes of freight have not for years borne their share of the burden of transportation, and in addition to the rates being extremely low they are unscientific and illogical.'"

Chicago Shipper's View.

This view also was expressed of record by many large shippers. A rate expert of the Chicago shipping interests, whose testimony in another proceeding was put on record here, testified that Central Freight association scale was "a relic of barbarism."

The report also says:

"Counsel who presented and argued the case of the Central Freight association lines admitted and definitely stated that while the 5 per cent increase would help the financial situation, the whole rate structure in that territory needed a readjustment; that many of the lines in the territory would not survive without 'an overhauling of their rates' and 'could not serve the public as they should until those rates are readjusted and brought up on some logical basis.' He also stated that if the rates were now advanced on the so-called 5 per cent basis it would be but a short time before those lines would be before us again."

Fifth—The commission finds that the carriers operating in Central Freight association territory are entitled to an increase not exceeding 5 per cent on all class and commodity rates on shipments wholly within that territory, except the rates on coal, coke, iron ore, cement, brick, tile, clay, starch, and plaster as to which the carriers did not sustain their burden of proof, and any rates which are controlled by specific unexpired orders of the commission. The proposed increases in lake and rail rates and in rates between Central Freight association territory and other portions of official classification territory are disallowed. The effect of the findings is also to disallow the application of the proposed minimum increase of 5 cents a ton on those commodities for which a charge is now made of less than a dollar a ton. This minimum increase in some instances would have resulted in increasing rates as much as 25 to 50 per cent.

Sixth—The commission finds that the financial conditions of the carriers in trunk line territory do not warrant a general increase of freight rates and that the needs of the New England lines are being cared for locally, and disallows the proposed increase in those territories, but under the title of "how carriers may increase their revenues" finds "that great opportunities exist for increasing the net revenue of all carriers in official classification territory otherwise than by resorting to a general advance in their freight rates" and makes the following suggestions:

Rail Passenger Fares.

Seventh—The commission suggests that, following the plan adopted in New England, conferences be held between the state commissions, the carriers, and representatives of the public, with a view to advancing such passenger fares as may be shown to be clearly unremunerative. With fares fixed by states in certain states, the commission expresses confidence that if these fares are clearly shown to be unduly burdensome to the carriers the people of those states will cheerfully acquiesce, as the people of New England have done, in reasonable increases, and that the necessary legislative authority will be given. The commission further says:

"An accurate ascertainment and frank disclosure of operating costs is the most effective protection against the possibility of unjust legislation, for we must assume that the public conscience intends no injustice against the owners of these great properties that are devoted to the service of the public.

"Passenger fares are paid directly to carriers by those making use of the service, and they know what it costs them. Payments for freight charges, while less direct, are none the less actual. The general public does not know, and probably does not stop to consider, what proportion of the cost of a ton, of coal or the price of a dwelling, or the rent of an apartment represents freight charges, but the cost of freight transportation enters into the cost or selling price of practically everything used by the public.

Cost Brought Home.

"In many cases, to be sure, freight charges represent but a small proportion of the total cost of things used or consumed, but it is quite probable that the average family pays much more in the course of a year as freight charges than it does for passenger fares. We know of no provision of law under which we would be justified in increasing freight rates to provide a return upon property used exclusively in the passenger service, much less to take care of losses incurred in such service. In our opinion each branch of the service should contribute its proper share of the cost of operation and its returns upon the property devoted to the use of the public."

Eighth—The commission suggests that all the railroads in official classification territory examine carefully their freight rates, rules, and regulations with a view to increasing rates that are found to be clearly unremunerative, and modifying burdensome rules and regulations relating to minimum weights and similar matters where this may justly be done, saying:

"Many unremunerative rates had their origin in fierce competition for traffic or under the menace of the big traffic of powerful shippers. Many such rates have doubtless been continued through ignorance of the loss they entail upon the carriers."

Advises "Taking Stock."

Ninth—The commission suggests that "all railroads in official classification territory should ascertain to what extent . . . special services now being rendered by the carriers to shippers for which no special charge, or a noncompensatory charge, is made . . . constitute an unjust burden upon the carriers or result in unjust discrimination among the shippers."

In this connection the commission calls attention to compilations prepared by it from the carriers' answers to the commission's inquiries showing the practice of individual roads as to:

(a) Allowance of free time for loading or unloading carload freights. (b) Collecting and delivering freight. (c) Storing freight. (d) Transporting containers. (e) Furnishing and transporting preservatives, etc. (f) Furnishing or paying for wharfage and dockage. (g) Refrigeration service. (h) Loading and unloading carload freight. (i) Reconsigning carload freight. (j) Other special services.

The commission also refers to "independent investigation of some of these subjects, and particularly of switching, lighterage, and storage in New York, Chicago, and other large cities," the results of which will be submitted later for the consideration of carriers and shippers.

Would Curb Pass Evil.

Tenth—The commission recommends that the practice of granting free transportation of passengers and private cars should be further restricted by the carriers, and calls attention to the fact that during the eleven months ending Nov. 30, 1913, seventy-eight roads in official classification territory issued 629,668 annual passes and 408,848 passes for shorter terms, and, in addition thereto, in the single month of June, 1913, issued passes for single trips to the number of 482,709. The commission says June is perhaps not a representative month, but at that rate the number of trip passes issued in the year would be approximately 5,792,500, representing over 1,000,000,000 passenger miles. The amount of travel on annual and term passes has not been determined.

At the average rate per passenger mile in official classification territory in 1913, the passenger miles represented by trip passes alone would have yielded in passenger revenue $18,520,000.

If to trip passes is added the travel on annual and term passes, it will perhaps be found that the travel on passes exceeds 10 per cent of the total passenger travel in official classification territory.

Private Cars a Burden.

Compilations prepared by the commission show that the revenue from private cars handled free during the year 1913 on eighty-eight of the roads which have made answer to its question would, at tariff rates, have amounted to $644,250.79.

"But," the commission adds, "the direct cost and revenue loss attendant upon the present practice are less serious than is its demoralizing effect. It is natural that subordinates should be wasteful when their superiors are extravagant; and that efforts to secure economies should often prove futile when, at the expense of stockholders or the public, the luxury of a private car is freely granted for personal and private use to officers and directors, or even to subordinate officials and members of their families.

"The record of one of the railroads most prominent in the appeal for a freight rate advance discloses such liberal grant of free transportation of private cars, not only to directors and officers of other independent railroads but to lesser officials of such carriers and to members of their families.

"Among the beneficiaries were the wives of first, second, and third vice presidents, the wife of a superintendent, the wife of a superintendent of telegraph, the mother of a chairman, the secretary of the vice president of a telegraph company, and the chief clerk to a president. Indeed, not a private car merely, but two special trains were furnished free to the widow of a former director, the tariff rate for which service would have been $3,466. The wife and daughter of the president of that company enjoyed in a single year free transportation in private cars for nine trips on which the tariff rates would have aggregated $3,577."

For Better Use of Cars.

Eleventh—The commission recommends "a careful review of methods for increasing freight car efficiency," saying: "Taking the average of all roads in official classification territory for the whole year, the time a car is moving in trains probably does not exceed three days out of thirty, and the car is under load two out of those three days. Furthermore, the cars under load are loaded on an average to only about 58 per cent of their capacity. The percentages of empty movement and of waste capacity in loaded cars have both grown."

Twelfth—The commission calls attention to the fact that fuel, next to wages, is the largest item in operating expense; that the railroads in the United States report their aggregate fuel cost to be about $250,000,000 a year, and that the cost of coal is increasing, and adds:

"Much has been done in recent years by means of mechanical devices and otherwise to reduce fuel costs . . . but it has been demonstrated clearly that by knowledge and care on the part of employés and the management much greater savings can be made."

Thirteenth—The commission also suggests that in other departments the management undertake, in coöperation with employés, an extensive inquiry into possible economies in operation, adding: "The increased operating ratio of recent years is accounted for directly, in large part, by increase in the rates of wages. But even greatly increased rates of wages are perfectly consistent with reduced unit labor cost."

Fourteenth—The commission suggests that "as soon as reasonable opportunity offers properties heretofore acquired by the carriers which are not used or held by them for transportation purposes be sold," adding, "From compilations prepared by the commission of the incomplete replies to our questions it appears that the aggregate cost of such investments in official classification territory was more than $684,000,000. Included in these are properties of the aggregate cost of $183,146,659, from which no net income whatsoever was received in 1913. These investments by carriers have, through increasing the amount of capital required to be raised, imposed in many cases a great and unnecessary strain upon the carriers' credit, with the result of an increased charge on all new capital secured and sometimes of preventing improvements which would have yielded transportation economies."

Fifteenth—The committee also suggests "that an investigation be made with a view to determining to what extent the cost of construction or of acquiring properties or capital or of operation is being increased through the holding by directors, officers, or employés of interests in other concerns with which the carrier has dealings," and calls attention to the fact that the compilation from answers to the commission's questions on this subject show that "a considerable proportion of the officers and directors of railroad companies have interests in such concerns, including locomotive works, car manufacturing companies, steel and iron works, coal mines, wire works, bridge companies, manufactories of railroad appliances, oil companies, warehouse companies, surety companies, railway publishing houses, and trust companies."

A further investigation into the subject which is being conducted independently by the commission also is referred to.

As to Sleeping Cars.

Sixteenth—The commission suggests that all expiring contracts with sleeping car companies should be carefully reviewed before being renewed.

The commission makes no suggestions in regard to railway mail pay, "as that subject is under investigation by another branch of the government," adding, "it may be assumed that if the compensation for the service is found to be unjust to the carriers, relief will promptly be afforded."

The commission concludes its report by saying:

"We may justly feel proud of the development of our transportation system. Despite occasional discreditable chapters the history of our railroads has been marked by great achievments. There is a growing spirit among the carriers of coöperation with the commission in its efforts to enforce the law. With the application of correct and helpful accounting the establishment of sound business methods, and a better understanding by both carriers and the public of their mutual obligations, to which we believe this investigation has contributed, the future is full of promise. We see no reason why our American railroads should not enjoy a large measure of prosperity consistently with just and reasonable rates."

Scope of Rate Raise Is Not Wide.

The advance granted by the interstate commerce commission affects a comparatively small percentage of the railway mileage of the country. It includes only those lines in the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio as far east as Pittsburgh and Buffalo. Generally the railways are put into three grand divisions. These are:

EASTERN OR OFFICIAL—All territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river to the Atlantic, including New England.

SOUTHERN—All territory east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio to the Atlantic coast.

WESTERN—All territory west of the Mississippi river to the Pacific.

Gist of Commerce Board Ruling on Railroad Rate Increases.

THE railroad rate decision contains the following findings:

The revenues of eastern railroads are inadequate and their financial condition should be improved with the assistance of the commission. Railroads in Central Freight Association territory would have earned $56,000,000 more in 1913 had their rates been as high as those of the trunk line territory roads.

A five per cent advance of rates in Central Freight Association territory is justified, but the whole structure of the schedules should be revised in order to remove inequities and discriminations.

Increases not to exceed five per cent are warranted in this territory on all class and commodity rates save coal, coke, iron ore, cement, brick, tile, clay, starch and plaster.

Increases are not warranted on commodities on which the charge is less than $1 a ton.

No increase of the lake and rail rates and rates between central freight and other parts of official classification territory is warranted.

Increases of rates in trunk line territory are not warranted because the roads are prosperous and do not need the additional revenue. No increases are warranted in New England because those lines "are being cared for locally."

All railroads should revise their schedules in order to eliminate unremunerative charges, burdensome regulations and free or noncompensatory services to shippers.

Free transportation of passengers and private cars should be restricted, freight car efficiency enhanced, economies in fuel costs and in operation instituted, and Pullman Company contracts revised in order to reduce expense to the carriers.

Graft in the sale of supplies and in construction work by companies in which railroad officers are interested should be eliminated and properties not used in transportation should be sold.

F. A. DELANO SEES GOOD IN DECISION

Says Effect of Ruling in Rate Case Will Not Be Felt at Once.

ONLY HALF A VICTORY.

"The interstate commerce commission's decision on the eastern roads' petition for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates is not a great big victory, though there are many good things in it," said Frederic A. Delano, president of the Monon and chairman of the committee of Central Freight association roads, last night.

"There will be no immediate relief," said Mr. Delano, "for our tariffs, which cost $2,000,000 to compile, have all been rejected by the commission. Now the roads will have to study the decision carefully and construct new tariffs to present to the interstate commerce commission for ratification under the terms of this decision.

"Wherever rates are intrastate the consent of the states will have to be obtained also. At the earliest it will be Nov. 1 before we can get new tariffs made, approved, and put into effect.

Calls $15,000,000 Slim.

"The roads petitioned for a 5 per cent increase, which would have increased their revenues by approximately $50,000,000 a year. According to this statement we shall get but 1½ per cent, or an annual increase of about $15,000,000. That is exceedingly slim.

"The commission's statement that the railroads have tried to lead the public astray and create sentiment in their favor is unfair. Our statements and our evidence are all public property. Let anybody examine it and judge for himself whether or not we have 'misled the public and have seriously aggravated the commercial depression.' It is extremely disheartening after digging out all this information at the cost of millions at the request of the commission and then have them accuse us of unfairness.

Calls Suggestion Misleading.

"As for their suggestion that we increase passenger fares, that certainly is misleading to the public. The commission knows this is impossible for us to do, as passenger rates are controlled by state laws, whereas freight rates are controlled by state commissions. The interstate commerce commission should request the states to repeal their legislation in regard to 2 cent passenger rates if they want us to increase them."

In regard to the commission's refusal to increase lake and rail rates, Mr. Delano said: "If the roads raise their rates from Chicago to Buffalo, for example, as they may now do, they will automatically increase the differential between lake rates and rail rates and so push more business to the water carriers. Shippers will often pay 25 per cent more to ship by rail, but they may not be willing to pay 40 per cent more. I think this will be the last big fight for increased rates. It seems that it is not worth the effort."

Mr. Delano said he favored class passenger rates.

"Let the people pay for what they get," he said. "I think Pullman passengers should pay 3 cents a mile, coach passengers 2 cents a mile, and immigrants 1 cent a mile."

GERMANS ASSERT WAR WAS FORCED ON THE KAISER

Chicagoans Say Fight Is Between Slavs and Teutons and Was Inevitable.

COOL AS NEWS COMES

German-Americans of Chicago were slow to believe that Emperor William had proclaimed war against the czar. They were convinced that Germany would not deviate from a fixed policy of peace unless forced to by direst necessity.

Three main points appeared in the opinions of prominent German-Americans about the war. They were:

1. The war is one of Slavs against Teutons and was inevitable.
2. The war will determine whether the German empire is to predominate commercially and politically in central Europe.
3. The American press, influenced perhaps by the English, has shown prejudice in favor of the Slavic peoples, from whom the United States has gained practically nothing.

Patriotic Spirit Shown.

A spirit of deep patriotism prevailed at the places where the German-Americans are wont to gather. At the Germania club on North Clark street the usual "skat" tables were deserted, and little knots of men were gathered in serious discussion. Across the way, at the restaurant "Zum Rothen Stern," there were other groups of men, many of them former soldiers in the German army, anxiously awaiting details of the declaration of war.

Few of the Germans would venture an opinion at first hand on the outcome of a struggle between Germany and Austria and Russia and France. Those in closest touch with the "vaterland" were firm in their belief that Germany could whip both nations single-handed.

Is Teuton Against Slav.

"Something that seems not to be understood in this country," said H. O. Lange, president of the Germania club, "is that this is a war of the Teutonic race against the Slavic. The question of supremacy is involved. Whether the civilization of western Europe or the barbarism of Russia is to prevail may be decided by this struggle.

"Russia and Germany have never before met on the battlefield. The Germans in the United States and those of German extraction look forward with dread to what the war may bring, but we know it was inevitable."

Russia Like Big Bad Brother.

"The war of Austria upon Servia and the interference of Russia," said E. J. Kruetgen, vice president of the Germania club, "may well be compared with the attitude of an older brother to a bad little boy. Servia is the little boy; Russia the older brother. The little fellow was 'egged on' continually to do his worst.

"When a licking finally was promised the little boy the brother stepped in and threatened trouble. What else was there to do but fight?

"The American press has no reason for seeming to support Russia, Servia, and other Slavic nations and ridiculing Germany. The English, too, should realize that this is a racial fight, not a national one. The English press has nothing to gain by supporting the triple alliance, for with the aggressive spirit of the Russians a victory over Germany might result in the Asiatic possessions of Great Britain being the next objective goal of the czar.

Dread It, but Can't Help It.

"I am 53," said Carl Gallauer. "If I were 30 years younger I would fight. It isn't that we want war. We dread it. But it cannot be avoided.

"For Germany, it is 'to be or not to be.' I am firmly convinced, as is every man, woman and child in Germany, that Germany will defeat both Russia and France, if need be. The prestige of the German empire is at stake, and a united Germany is about to rise up and fight to the death. It is a fight of self-preservation, perhaps but we will win."

Attorney Michael F. Girten, president of the German society, a charitable organization, and former president of the German National alliance, an organization formed for the purpose of fostering Teutonic customs and traditions, refused to believe that war actually had been declared.

Meeting of Protest Planned.

"They never declare war on Saturday in Germany," he said. "We refuse to become excited over it at all events. There is one thing that we are excited over, however, and that is the attitude of the English speaking press toward the present crisis. It is absurd for American newspapers to take the pro-Slavic attitude that they have. Those reports you are getting come through London. The English are supporting the Slavs and the Japs. They'll say anything to stir up trouble, and some day they are going to wake up.

"The Chicago branch of the German National alliance is going to hold a mass meeting in the Auditorium theater on next Wednesday evening to protest against the attitude of the English papers. We think that THE TRIBUNE has presented the most impartial and fair reports of the impending crisis.

"There will be another meeting on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the German society for the purpose of organizing a German Red Cross society."

No Notice to Consulate.

Baron Kurt von Reiswitz, acting consul for Germany at Chicago, received no official notification of the action of his government against Russia. He estimated that there were more than 1,000 men under 39 years of age in Chicago who are liable to military service.

"All German citizens, married or single, under 39 years of age, will have to respond to the call to arms," said he. "If they are in the United States there is no power to make them return, but if they did not they would be liable to arrest if they ever did return."

A number of the members of the Germania club are marooned in Germany because of the war. Among them are E. G. Halle, Harry Rubens, who presided at the recent Goethe celebration; Fred Klein, and Dr. Ernst Saurenhaus.

GERMANS EAGER TO GO.

Four hundred men left the Austrian consulate yesterday wearing little red, white, and green flags on their lapels They were members of the army reserves called out by official order from Vienna. They were advised to hold themselves in readiness for transportation to New York immediately upon being summoned by the consulate.

Although most of the men were excited over the prospect of immediate return to their native land, it was stated at the consulate that it may be some weeks before transportation can be secured.

While the Russian and French consulates presented little excitement, the German offices admitted a stream of men applying for transportation. The order for mobilization is expected shortly, but no arrangements have been made. The applicants were advised to watch the newspapers for the official notification of the mobilization.

The Austrian mobilization order calls to the colors the active soldiers and sailors and all militiamen who have orders printed in their military passbooks to report in case of mobilization. If the men are without sufficient funds to defray the expense of returning to Austria the money will be supplied them. Amnesty is offered all deserters who return to service.

Consul General Issues Call.

The official order is signed by Hugo Silvestri, consul general, and is as follows:

"His majesty, the emperor of Austria, king of Hungary, has ordered the general mobilization of the army in Austria-Hungary.

"The following classes of men liable to military service are to report immediately to their military depots without awaiting any other notification:

"Men belonging to the army or navy or to either one of the two territorial armies (Landwehr and Honvéd.)

"Those officers and men of the militia (Landsturm and Népfölkelés) who hold a personal card for war service.

"Militia men (Landsturm and Népfolkéles), 37 years old or younger, who, according to instructions contained in their military passbook, have the order to report for service in case of a general mobilization.

"Owing to lack of steamers, it will be impossible to accommodate the reservists returning at this time. Those subject to this general order are therefore requested to send their addresses to the nearest consular office, in order that they may be notified immediately when proper accommodations have been secured for them.

"All other militiamen who are not called for immediate service should also communicate at once their addresses to the nearest consular office.

Cost of Home Trip Refunded.

"The cost of their journey will be refunded to all those who return home for service in the army.

"Those who have not sufficient means to pay their expenses are requested to report to the nearest consular office, which will provide for their transportation.

"In all other cases the necessary traveling expenses will be refunded by the home authorities.

"An amnesty has been granted to all military deserters and fugitives who return home to serve in the army."

PACIFIC STEAMERS GET ORDERS TO KEEP IN PORT.

Some Boats Have Sailings Canceled —Others on the Sea Instructed to Seek Harbors.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 1.—The Hamburg-American steamer Saxonia at Tacoma and the German steamer Steinbek, loading at Bellingham, have been ordered not to sail. The Kosmos liner Setos, bound from Puget sound for Australia with lumber, will be ordered by wireless to take shelter at Honolulu. The Kosmos liner Alexandria, bound north from Puntas Arenas, probably will put in at San Pedro.

When the orders came to the Saxonia at Tacoma to tie up it was taking on 1,000 tons of hay for the American government to be delivered at Manila. The hay aboard was unloaded. The United States army transport Dix, due to sail from Seattle for Honolulu at noon, was ordered to wait until next Tuesday, and in the meantime take on the Saxonia's hay, which it will carry to Manila.

Triple Alliance Calls Bluff of Russian Empire.

BY VICTOR.

Russia, as we have seen, could not remain indifferent to the high handed and inexplicably violent course of Austria toward Servia. Its historic rôle and the religious and racial affinities of its people compelled Russia to act as it did. A passive and apathetic attitude would have shaken the autocracy to its foundations.

But what was the necessary implication of Russia's most important move, mobilization?

It is superficial and fallacious to say that Russia challenged or "provoked" Germany. There is the triple alliance, it is true, and that alliance, practically, is both offensive and defensive in its present form.

Russia knew that if it grasped the sword to attack Austria, Germany would rush to arms in defense of the Hapsburg monarchy. But to attack Austria was not to "provoke" Germany.

Russia may have intended to force Vienna to moderate its demands, to make a formal disclaimer of aggressive territorial designs. Or it may have intended to stimulate Germany to vigorous peace efforts. Germany, France, and England have been working for peace, but the impartial bystander may well ask himself whether they would have displayed as much energy as they have if Russia had not by its mobilization and other domestic preparations for a stubborn conflict served warning on Europe that it could not consent to the dismemberment or crushing of Servia by Austria.

But be this as it may, Russia's move, as all concede, dictated that of Germany. Under the existing treaties of alliance, under the existing precarious "balance of power" in Europe, a war between any two great powers means a general war—or all but a general war.

The triple alliance of Germany, Austria, and Italy is understood to be a hard and fast one, but this is a mistake. It is an alliance based on immediate necessities. It is not a logical alliance. It is not an alliance that can endure.

In the first place, Germany has no love for Austria and would, if the thing could be safely done, cheerfully annex the German provinces of its neighbor and ally. The Germans in Austria are loyal to the monarchy, but they have no "fatherland" in the proper sense of the term. The Germans in the great Teutonic empire realize that the fear and jealousy of Englishmen and Frenchmen have kept Austria-Hungary together.

That the triple alliance is not logical or permanent is further indicated by the remarkable Bismarck policy of "reinsurance." He had no hesitation in making a secret neutrality treaty with Russia while maintaining the alliance with Austria. He had no illusions regarding diplomatic arrangements. He recognized their artificiality and instability. To him sufficient unto the day was the good or evil thereof.

The alliance was intended to be defensive and was directed originally against Russia. It has been declared to possess that character on hundreds of solemn occasions.

Has it retained that character? Would it retain that character if the Austro-Servian conflict should involve all Europe and threaten the very foundations of European civilization?

So far as Italy is concerned, its membership in the triple alliance is in every way anomalous. It entered into it in the first place because France had occupied Tunis and menaced its growth and expansion. It had found itself isolated, and Bismarck suggested its joining the then dual alliance of Germany and Austria. But Italy hated Austria, its former tyrant and invader, and irredentism was by no means dead. Still, there appeared to be no choice.

Moreover, it was soon made to realize that if it should fail to become the ally of Austria that power would become its enemy and antagonist. Its long coast on the Adriatic was a source of weakness and peril, with Austria as a persistent and alert enemy. But in the course of time the relations between Italy and France improved, and the original necessity for the alliance gave place to new considerations.

Since the formation of the rival combination the triple entente of France, Russia, and England, Italy's lot, politically speaking, has not been a comfortable one. Its real rival in the Adriatic and in the Balkans is Austria; its present conflicts of interest are with Austria, and it has repeatedly assured France that it would never permit itself to become an instrument of aggression against that power.

Italian relations with England are exceedingly friendly, for England has championed and served its interests in a hundred ways. Italy has much sympathy with the Serbs; its queen was a Montenegro princess, and millions of her people would protest violently against war on France and England. She is said to have declared her neutrality. If she can keep out of the conflict she will.

Turn now to the triple entente. The Russo-French alliance was also defensive in origin and character. It was at one time welcomed even by an Austrian foreign minister as a valuable complement of the triple alliance. It was formed to preserve, not to destroy, European civilization.

The dual alliance did not encourage the "revanche" dreams of the French—now almost forgotten. It meant protection against gratuitous attacks and further despoilment, not attempted recovery of lost territory or lost prestige.

When England had settled its differences with France and discovered that the alleged historic enemy was willing to embrace perfidious Albion and bury all misunderstandings, the way to a similar understanding with Russia was perceived to be open. Persia, Tibet, Afghanistan, and indirectly India, had been the bones of contention, but each problem yielded to amicable and sensible treatment. The triple entente thus became possible, but it was not and is not an entente contemplating criminal aggression or insane warfare subversive of industry and civilization.

The triple entente was, in truth, a triumph for sober diplomacy. It not only safeguarded peace, but served to promote freedom and liberalism in Russia. If the dual alliance was at first rather anomalous, it was because Russian autocracy and despotism had nothing in common with the liberalism and social radicalism of the French republic.

The Russian constitution and duma went far to remove the anomaly, and if the truth were known it would perhaps be seen that the triple entente has tempered and checked reaction in the czar's domains. Liberal and progressive Russia has admired and adopted English and French culture.

It is admitted that England is not bound to come to the defense of its good friends, to place its tremendous navy at the service of Russia and France. This is even clearer than the right of Italy to give a categorical "No" to its allies.

But England could not afford to tolerate the crippling and fatal weakening of France. It has no direct interest in any immediate and concrete issue, but it has an interest in the European balance of power. It has an interest in liberty, free institutions, and political evolution. It cannot be indifferent to a crisis that, in the last analysis, is attributable to the blind passion and fury of a semi-medieval monarchy which was not content to demand the redressing of a wrong and the punishment of a crime, but which with ferocious haste plunged into a war with a small power that could not have rejected a rational settlement.

IRISH PLAN TWO REGIMENTS

Prepare Today in Chicago for Nationalists' Call.

ROUSED BY DUBLIN DEED.

Ready to Give Physical Aid to Cause on Erin Isle.

Since mobilization is the international vogue the Irish of Chicago will mobilize today in Emmet Memorial hall at Taylor street and Ogden avenue, for the purpose of recruiting two provisional regiments of volunteers and a Red Cross corps of physicians and nurses, to be held waiting a call of help from the Irish Nationalists at Dublin. It is estimated 10,000 persons will attend the meeting.

The meeting is the result of secret conferences for three weeks between the various Irish organizations of Chicago, which have been welded together for the first time in years by the recent killing of Irish Nationalists on the streets of Dublin.

Money Gifts Made.

While the Irish citizens of Chicago have contributed financially to the cause of home rule in Ireland for a number of years, the recent disturbances have revived the sympathy to the point of lending physical assistance.

The committee on arrangements stated last night that rifles would be stacked in the street in front of the hall, and that a recruiting station would be opened on the sidewalk. Money is being collected from wealthy Irish citizens to defray the expense of equipment for the provisional regiments and of transporting the fighting men individually to the Irish coast, if necessary.

Orders Interested in Move.

Among the organizations interested in the move are the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Clan-na-Gael Guards, the United Irish Societies, and the Associated Gaelic clubs.

The speakers will be Dr. P. T. Burns, James T. Clarke, president of the United Irish Societies; Col. James J. Reilly of the Clan-na-Gael guards; John J. Geraghty, president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians; James J. Ryan, president of the Associated Gaelic Clubs, and Frank Comerford, who will deliver the principal address. Music will be provided by the Irish Choral club of forty voices.

Four Held as Pickpockets.

Antonio Xedia of 719 South Halsted street reported to the police yesterday that four men picked his pocket of $35 at East Twelfth street and Wabash avenue last Friday night. These were taken as suspects: E. J. Martin, a bookkeeper; Harry Morris, a cigarmaker; Thomas Austin, a printer; Patrick Murphy, no occupation. All gave their home address at 3500 Cottage Grove avenue.

Millions Called to Peace Prayer.

New York, Aug. 1.—Thirty million members of the World's Sunday School association, scattered throughout the world, have been called upon to pray tomorrow for peace. The call for the peace prayers was issued by Sir Robert Laidlaw, president of the association, according to announcement at the organization's office here today, and is signed by him and H. J. Heinz of Pittsburgh, chairman of the executive committee; E. K. Werner of this city, chairman of the central committe; and Frank L. Brown of New York, and the Rev. Carey Bonner of London, joint secretaries.

FRIENDS FEAR FOR SAFETY OF CHICAGO CROATIAN EDITOR

Dr. A. Biankini, Who Left for Visit to Native Land July 4, Not Heard From Since Reaching Bremen.

Fears for the safety of Dr. Anthony Biankini, president of the company which publishes the Croatian Flag, Chicago's Croatian daily newspaper, are felt by his friends here. He is supposed to be in Croatia, where he started July 4. He has not been heard from since he arrived in Bremen.

The Croatian Flag is violently anti-Hapsburg. Before hostilities broke out the paper editorially urged Croatians to revolt and throw off the yoke of the Austro-Hungarian empire. For these editorial utterances Dr. Biankini, for sixteen years a practicing physician in Chicago, but not a citizen of the United States, may be held directly responsible.

A few days before Dr. Biankini left he was fêted by the United Servian society at a farewell dinner. His speech promised to the Servians the support of the Croatians. This speech is believed by the doctor's friends to have been transmitted to the Austrian state department.

Dr. Biankini was going to his own home in Dalmatia, but he had arranged to spend several days in the home of the father of Albert N. Weber, managing editor of the Croatian Flag, in Zagreb, the capital of Croatia.

SLAVIC PRESS PLEDGES HELP

WAR BUREAU FORMED.

The united support of the local publications in the Greek, Italian, Bohemian, Polish, Croatian, and Lithuanian tongues was promised to Servia yesterday at a meeting in Hotel La Salle, called and presided over by J. R. Palandech, editor of the United Servian and Balkan World.

Palandech announced that his paper, starting Monday, would conduct a war bureau in the interests of the foreign press of Chicago. The war bureau will give to the other foreign papers news of patriotic meetings in and around Chicago, and of actual recruiting.

Greek Sympathy with Servians.

P. S. Lambros, publisher of the Greek Star, compared the stand of the Servians at Semenstria Pass with that of Leonidas at Thermopylæ. He advised Palandech, who is collecting contributions for the Servian Red Cross, to canvass the Greek merchants of the city, all of whom, he said, are prosperous, generous, and heartily in sympathy with the Servian cause.

Stephen S. Lewinthal spoke in behalf of Chicago's Polish population. Lewinthal, who is correspondent for several European newspapers, said that his countrymen, divided between three nationalities, could do litttle but express their sympathy for their fellow Slavs.

Bohemian Support Assured.

Peter O. Stiycich, editor of the Soko; James Stepina, president of the Bohemian American Press association, and V. A. Geringer, representing the Svornost, assured the financial and moral support of the Bohemians.

"I hope," said Geringer, "that this war may be followed by an uprising of the Bohemians against the tyranny of the empire. Something, I promise you, is going to happen when old Franz Josef dies."

Servia Cartooned as Justice.

The Italians were represented by R. I. Ferrera, president of the United Italian societies. Albert N. Weber represented the Croatians.

August Petrtyl, a member of the Palette and Chisel club, brought to the meeting a cartoon in colors, executed by himself. The cartoon represented Servia as Justice, with sword drawn, defending herself against a host of enemies.

ROB (2) PRESS AGENTS (2)

THEN LEAVE QUIETLY.

Just about an hour before the curtain went up on the stage of Cohan's Grand Opera house last night a thrilling melodrama was enacted in the box office.

Chester Houston, box office man, and Paul Benedek, husband of the prima donna, played the parts of the virtuous young heroes who were robbed, and two unidentified characters interpreted the roles of the villains.

Oh, it was awful! You wouldn't hardly believe it, but Benedek, who is a press agent, was standing in the office of Harry J. Ridings. He wasn't harming a soul.

He felt something brush the calf of his leg. He turned, and lo, there was a man crawling on his stomach toward the box office and the money.

Looks the Other Way.

Mr. Benedek didn't scream. Indeed not. He looked the other way, and there at the door was another man. He called Mr. Benedek a bad name and forced him into the vault. The vault door happened to be open. Just why it was open Mr. Benedek didn't know.

In the meantime the man who was crawling had entered the little iron wicket gate at the bottom of the iron wicket screen. He scared Mr. Houston, who was selling tickets.

Then, it seems, one of the two men took from the cash box about $7,000 and then walked out. Mr. Houston says he was forced to lie down in a most uncomfortable position, but that just as soon as the villains had left he got right up and hollered for help. Mr. Houston, it may be said in passing, is also a press agent.

Here Come the Police.

At any rate the police arrived—plain clothes men, policemen in uniform, Halpin's men, detail men, Halpin himself, Lieut. McMahon, and many others.

Nobody had seen the two men leave the place. No one had seen two men getting into or out of the automobile in front of the theater at the time specified—about 6:45 o'clock.

The money taken belonged for the most part to the show people.

"Why, I can't understand it," Sidney Sharpe, manager of the show, complained to Lieut. McMahon. "It's deuced queer, you know."

Two Degrees of Queer.

Lieut. McMahon agreed with Mr. Sharpe. He went further. He said it was very queer. And Capt. Halpin took Messrs. Houston and Benedek with him to the detective bureau, and the captain entertained Mr. Houston, while Lieut. Ben Enright listened to Mr. Benedek

Mr. Benedek didn't know whether the man who brushed past him was a white man or a negro. But the other fellow—"the ruffian who forced him into the vault, you know"—Mr. Benedek gave a description of him.

He had bad teeth. Press agent story? Impossible.

WARRANT FOR C. B. MUNDAY.

Banker Charged with Assault Upon A. L. Feldman of Ashland-Twelfth Concern.

A warrant for the arrest of C. B. Munday, vice president of the closed La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank, charging assault and battery, was issued yesterday as a sequel to a controversy between the banker and A. L. Feldman, a director of the Ashland-Twelfth bank of the Lorimer-Munday chain. Feldman charged that Munday choked him and threatened to eject him from the banker's office in La Salle street by way of an eleventh story window.

U. S. SEIZES 2,880 EGGS.

Consignment of 240 Dozens Declared in Poor Condition by Federal Food Inspectors.

Federal officials seized 240 dozens of eggs yesterday in the store of Joseph D. Ginsberg, 435 Wells street. The eggs were shipped July 29 by the Eureka Commission company of St. Louis, Mo., and were consigned to Ben Deiters of Chicago. The government charges that they are in poor condition and the shipment was a violation of the pure food law.

MAN DIES AFTER FALL IN BAR

John W. Kroening Succumbs to Injuries Sustained in South Side Saloon.

John W. Kroening of 6207 South State street fell to the floor in a saloon at 6247 South State street Friday and was taken to St. Bernard's hospital, where he died two hours later. An inquest was held yesterday.

SLAIN AT HIS OWN GATE

ROBBERY SEEN BY POLICE.

Patrolmen Take Assailant After a Chase of Two Blocks.

When John Kolt came to this country from Germany he changed his name to John Miller and got a job as a housemover. Yesterday he drew his week's pay, quit work earlier than usual, and started for his home at 248 North Ashland avenue.

He had gained his front gate when a stranger stopped him and demanded his money. Miller refused and the stranger felled him with a blow. He made a move as if to stoop over the body and rifle Miller's clothing when he saw Policemen John Kernan and Patrick Burke approaching with drawn revolvers. He fled.

Caught After Chase.

The policemen chased him two blocks firing as they ran, until they caught him. Meantime the ambulance crew picked up Miller. His skull had been crushed when he struck the sidewalk. He died on the way to the county hospital.

At the station the captive gave the name of Frederick Burr of 2313 Walnut street, but further than that he had nothing to say.

Kidnap Pay Cash Bearer.

Detectives are on the trail of an automobile seeking clews to the identity of three young men who committed a daylight robbery with the daring which marked the work of "Perry, Webb & Co.," south side auto robbers of recent notoriety.

Harry Edwards, purchasing agent for Burke & James, photographic supplies, was returning to the company's plant after a trip to the Continental and Commercial National bank, where he had drawn $3,000 to pay the office force of his employers. He stepped off a North State street car at Ontario street and walked east.

Kidnap Money Carrier.

Three youths in an automobile moved up the street behind him. In front of the old Medinah temple two of the automobile crew leaped out, covering Edwards with revolvers, and ordered him into the machine. The man at the wheel whirled the machine west, then sped away south to Goose island.

An hour later Herman Larson, a policeman, found Edwards unconscious in the street at Cherry avenue and Blackhawk street. He had a long cut in the back of his head.

Two Are Witnesses.

The kidnaping of Edwards was seen by A. M. Gardner of the Ontario hotel and William Harris, a janitor at the Medinah Temple building. Neither could give an adequate description of the robbers.

Edwards has been employed by Burke & James for fifteen years. For the last ten years he has been making the weekly trip to the bank for the pay roll. His home is at 214 Ashland avenue, in River Forest.

PRISONERS FEAST ON LOOT.

Chickens Murphy Plundered Form Dinner for Women at Desplaines Street Station.

This is why the women prisoners at the Desplaines street station will have chicken for dinner today:

Daniel Murphy of 4711 Augusta street was arrested Friday night when he was found carrying a chicken under each arm. He said he was on his way to sell the chickens to a man named Spencer, who owned a restaurant, but he was unable to give Spencer's address.

Municipal Judge Sullivan fined him $1 and costs and ordered the chickens to the women's annex.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Paul M. Warburg of New York, President Wilson's nominee to the federal reserve board, was examined by the senate banking committee for four hours today. His examination will be continued Monday. Members of the committee said a favorable report on his nomination was probable. White House officials were confident Mr. Warburg would be confirmed.

COURT UNTIES 2 ELOPEMENTS

Wives Come to Grief After Runaway Matches in St. Joseph.

OTHER DECREES GIVEN.

How two elopements to St. Joseph, Mich., in September, 1904, went amiss was revealed yesterday in the divorce courts.

Mrs. Mary Mullin was granted a divorce from John Mullin.

"We went to St. Joe on Sept. 17, 1904, and were married," she said. "Then we came home and each went to the home of our parents. My husband was going to get a position and then we were going to live together. He went to Los Angeles, Cal., in search of work and I have not seen him or heard from him since."

Hubby Takes the Furniture.

Mrs. Mary Kelleher of 4765 Shields avenue, who said she was married to James Kelleher of St. Joseph on Sept. 3, 1904, won a decree of divorce on grounds of desertion and drunkenness.

"He came home one day last April and told me he was through with me," she testified. "Then he went out and brought a wagon and moved out all the furniture. Then he said: 'You and I are done forever, and you can go to your mother or any other place you want.'"

Mrs. Aletta B. Bagley, who filed a suit for a divorce from Robert Alexander Bagley, obtained an injunction from Judge Walker yesterday restraining her husband from interfering with her. She charges her husband with cruelty and with threatening to kill her. She says that once while on a ship he called her abusive names and threatened to "make away with her." Bagley is said to own considerable real estate in New York and stocks in various corporations and Mrs. Bagley asks that provision be made for her proper support.

Takes Daughter to Saloon.

Mrs. Hattie M. Klevesahl told Judge Irwin that her husband, Fred, would take their 9 year old daughter out to a saloon and set her on the bar while he would drink until he could hardly walk. She said the child would coax him to come home, but he would refuse. She also charged him with cruelty. She was granted a decree.

"He wouldn't work, and so I had to, and then he spent all the money," said Mrs Anna Victoren of 4556 Ravenswood avenue, who was granted a decree of divorce from Gustave Victoren on grounds of drunkenness.

Frank Ksiazarcsyk was granted a divorce from Mrs. Regina Ksiazarcsyk on grounds of desertion

M'MAHON AND ALLMAN GET REPRIMAND FROM GLEASON.

Civil Service Commission Holds Evidence Against Levee Lieutenants Insufficient to Dismiss.

The civil service commission yesterday announced that the evidence introduced against Lieuts. James J. McMahon and James P. Allman of the Twenty-second street station was insufficient to warrant their dismissal and referred their cases to Chief Gleason "for action as he deemed fit," with the recommendation that they be reprimanded for their shortcomings.

Chief Gleason immediately summoned the two officers.

"I think they have been sufficiently punished by the commission," said the chief, "and I will not fine them. I think they have learned their lesson, and that after the reprimand I gave them they will not take orders from any one else in the future save their superior officers."

It probably will be a week before the commission announces its decision in the case of Lieut. Michael T. Morrissey, whose case it has under advisement.

Two police lieutenants and nine sergeants were transferred in an order issued last night by Chief Gleason. One lieutenant, McMahon, was transferred from Twenty-second street to Central. The others are:

SAVED TWICE IN TWO DAYS, SHE'S GOING RIGHT IN AGAIN!

Mary Luther Does Not Mind a Little Thing Like a Near Drowning, So She Keeps on Swimming.

Miss Mary Luther of 5224 West Twenty-fifth street, distressed while swimming in the lake 100 yards off Wilson avenue yesterday afternoon, was rescued by several boys, members of the Shore Line club After a machine for effecting artificial respiration had been applied, she recovered and went home.

This is the second time in two days that she has been rescued from drowning. On Friday she fainted and was rescued by a life saver.

But she appeared at the beach again yesterday. After swimming for an hour she was between the Wilson avenue and Clarendon avenue beaches when she fainted.

"I'll be back in again tomorrow," she said after being revived.

Albert Oberg, 5839 Kenmore avenue, was rescued off the foot of Hollywood avenue. He jumped into the lake off the end of a pier. He was unacquainted with the beach at that point, but saw others only a few feet away wading waist deep. He did not know a hole had been made by the waves at the foot of the pier and he soon found himself in ten feet of water.

Oberg went down. John Madden of 5733 Winthrop avenue dived for Oberg. In a few minutes he recovered the body and brought it to shore, where a lung motor restored life.

ZIMMER CALLS IN STAR OF THE REV. E. L. WILLIAMS.

Gleason Says Demand Upon Vice Foe Merely Follows Out Change in System.

The Rev. Elmer L. Williams, the north side's ardent vice foe, was called upon last night to deliver his chief's staff star to Capt. Matthew Zimmer, the new commander of the Chicago avenue police station.

The Rev. Mr. Williams refused. He accompanied George DeMar, the detective through whom the request was communicated, to the police station, where he repeated his refusal to Lieut. Westbrook, in the absence of the captain. The minister took the position that the star has been issued to him by Mayor Harrison and that it should be returned to the mayor.

"I shall see the mayor some time next week," he said.

"We are calling in the old stars," said Chief Gleason, by way of explanation. "That's the only reason we asked for his. He has one of the old ones."

COPS SNIFF TRAPS 'SNIPERS.'

Eighteen Onion Pickers Nabbed for Smuggling Vegetables After Police Get to Leeward.

Patrolman Antoine Schultz has a nose for crime. The wind was in the west yesterday in Evanston. Schultz stood on the east side of Howard avenue as the crowds of onion pickers filed past on their return to Chicago.

The patrolman sniffed, and raised his hand. Two fellow patrolmen darted across the street and returned with a prisoner. The process was repeated frequently. Finally there were eight boys and ten men in the Evanston jail, charged with "sniping" onions, radishes, and other vegetables from the surrounding farms.

The prisoners were searched and their pockets and blouses were found crammed with vegetables.

BARTLETT'S GREAT 610 ACRE HOME TRACT

ADVANCE ANNOUNCEMENT

ALL is not yet in readiness for the Big Sale. It takes time and work to complete an immense project like this and to get all in readiness for satisfactorily handling the thousands of buyers and investors who will attend the Opening Day Event of the Greatest Real Estate Slaughter Sale in Chicago's history—the exact date of which will be announced later. Meanwhile, plats of the property, as well as complete descriptive circular, are ready for distribution to all who call, phone or write. Special privileges will be granted to all immediate inquirers.

THIS IS POSITIVELY THE GREATEST BARGAIN VALUE I HAVE EVER OFFERED IN ALL MY YEARS IN BUSINESS. (Signed) FRED'K H. BARTLETT.

Keep Your Money!

We Are Going to Start Something!!

¶ We have watched the high-priced fellows work long enough. All kinds of schemes have been advertised to get the speculative buyer interested in fancy priced lots. But—no great bargains have been offered or sold in the subdivision market since we stopped,

¶ Now, we are going to give the public something to sit up and take note of. We are going to break all previous records. We are going to slaughter prices as never before in the city's history.

¶ The people of Chicago know us through long years of dealings. They know us as buyers of bargains and sellers of bargains. They know us as cash operators. They have seen us grow from a very humble beginning into "Chicago's Largest Real Estate Operators." They expect us to do BIG things—and do them in a Big way. We are not going to disappoint them in the present instance.

* * * * * * * *

¶ We are soon going to place on the market 610 acres of the finest subdivision property in Cook County. We, ourselves, own the land. The exact location will not be made known for the present, for we are not yet ready to announce the Big Sale.

¶ We are directing this message to the people of Chicago today merely to advise you who are in the market for a high class home-site or a brilliant speculative investment to KEEP YOUR MONEY and WAIT until you can learn the full particulars of this amazing offer.

¶ It is sufficient, for the present, to say that this great 610 acre Home Tract is most beautifully and advantageously located, that it is exceptionally high and dry and heavily wooded, and that it is less than eleven miles from the city hall. The street car line runs straight through it and for miles beyond.

¶ Streets will be graded, cinder sidewalks laid, and trees planted in front of each lot. You will fall in love with the natural beauty, the splendid surroundings and the delightful location of this ground—the minute you lay eyes on it. And you will be particularly delighted with our gigantic plan for making it a great Residence Park of 5,000 homes and a thriving business community.

¶ We are going to offer and sell it under a brand new plan that will give the large and small investor, and the home-seeker and the speculator alike, an equal opportunity.

¶ But that's getting ahead of our story. The important thing, right now, is the price at which this splendid property will be offered. Get the full details of our proposition and you will agree with us that there has been

WAR MAY STOP RAILWAY STRIKE

WILSON MAKES PLEA.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—President Wilson today invoked the patriotism of the managers of the western railroads to make concessions to avert the strike of 55,000 of their employés.

He based his appeal upon the foreign situation and the probability of a pan-European war. He said congress and the administration are doing everything possible to provide means for the trans-oceanic transportation of food to the warring nations of Europe and pointed out that all their efforts would be in vain if the wheels of the western railroads were stopped by a strike.

Fears Famine and Pestilence.

He moved them greatly when he said that unless Europe could get grain and meat from America he was convinced famine and pestilence would sweep across the European continent and devastate the homes of the nonbelligerents.

As the result of the president's earnest pleading the railroad managers have again gone into conference over the situation, determined, if possible, to find some way to avert the strike, and the feeling prevails in high quarters that they will be successful. They will report again to President Wilson on Monday.

The president is greatly encouraged at the outcome of his conference and is hopeful of a favorable answer from the managers when they return to the White House on Monday. A strong expression of the president's optimism that the strike would be averted was made from a highly authoritative source.

Trainmen Stand Firm.

Later in the day the president held a short conference with the representatives of the trainmen, but beyond restating to them what he had told the managers, and declaring his belief that the managers would accept a plan for arbitration, he made no statement to the trainmen indicating a desire that they should recede from their position. The trainmen will also remain in Washington to receive the answer of the managers, and if that is not satisfactory the president will try some other means of adjusting the differences.

The plan which the railroad managers have rejected and which President Wilson has urged them to accept, is arbitration as provided for in the Newlands act, which was passed last summer when the trainmen of the eastern lines threatened to strike and the railroads refused to arbitrate under the Erdmann act.

Provision for Arbitration.

The Newlands act created the board of mediation and conciliation, composed of Martin A. Knapp and William L. Chambers, to adjust differences between the railroads and their employés, and in case the matter in dispute cannot be adjusted by mediation, provision is made for an arbitration board of six.

The mediators, having failed in this case, proposed the matter be arbitrated. And it was accepted by the trainmen but refused by the railway managers.

Would Paralyze Traffic.

It is admitted by both the the railroad managers and the trainmen that a strike of the western roads would paralyze the entire western section of the country. It would prevent movement of crops, and would entail tremendous hardship not only upon the 55,000 employés directly involved but also upon the entire country. Both sides say they hope their disagreement can be settled without recourse to such violent methods.

President Wilson appealed to the managers to let their patriotism guide their actions and not to add to the great troubles which have befallen this nation on account of financial conditions growing out of the pan-European war. He told them that they had it in their power to say whether the great wave of prosperity which has begun to sweep across the country in consequence of the unprecedented harvests should continue its course, or end disastrously.

"Watching Watson Weed the Ward."

OLIVER L. WATSON

Early morning fans on the extreme northwest side have a new pastime, which they call "watching Watson weed the ward."

The sport consists in looking at a man in blue overalls who swings with the easy dexterity born of long practice a vicious looking scythe. The weeds go down in long phalanxes from the vigor of his blows, and Logan Square and Pennock, Turkey Point, and Irving Park are becoming practically free from noxious greens.

The man with the weed weapon is Oliver L. Watson, alderman of the Twenty-seventh ward. He jumps out of bed every morning at 4 o'clock, throws his burdock sticker into his auto, and hurries into the thickest of the enemy.

"He's been cutting weeds for twenty-two years that I know of," said the alderman's wife last night, "and goodness only knows how long he'll keep it up."

DR. FOX TO FULLERTON AVE.

Head of Presbyterian Brotherhood Accepts Pastorate of North Side Church.

The Rev. Francis M. Fox, D. D., has accepted the pastorate of the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church. This announcement was made yesterday to the board of trustees of the church. The Fullerton Avenue church has been without a pastor since the resignation of the Rev. Hugh Kerr in October. Dr. Fox, who received his degree of doctor of divinity at the Wabash college, has been at the head of the Presbyterian brotherhood movement for eighteen months. Dr. Fox enters a church which is free of debt, the congregation having recently raised $16,000 to liquidate the church's indebtedness.

OBITUARY.

MRS. CORA A. ROSEBOOM, 61 years old, died of cancer yesterday at her home, 1122 North La Salle street, one year and three weeks after the death of her husband, John H. Roseboom, until his death the treasurer of the Chicago Broom company. Mrs. Roseboom was a vice president of the Young Women's Christian association of Chicago, and had been a member of the New England Congregational church ever since coming here with her husband from Syracuse, N. Y., twenty-two years ago. One son, John H. Roseboom Jr., survives. Funeral services will be held at the house at 3 o'clock tomorrow, and the body will be sent to Syracuse.

URGE THAT CITY OPERATE LIGHTS

Sanitary District Trustees Have Plan to Solve Electrical Strike.

PUT UP TO THE MAYOR.

Municipal operation of the three sanitary district power stations in Chicago was proposed yesterday as a means of preventing further interference with the lighting of the city streets during the strike of the sanitary district operators.

President Thomas A. Smyth of the district wrote to Mayor Harrison approving the scheme. The mayor is expected to act on it tomorrow. The action of President Smyth followed a conference at which he and Trustees Clark, Breit, Sullivan, and Reading, Ray Palmer, city commissioner of electricity, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Leon Hornstein were present.

Two considerations will affect the answer of the mayor to the proposal of the sanitary district. The first is that the operation by the city of the three substations from which power is sent out for street lighting will cost the city $43,000 a year more than the present system. The district is now operating them at a loss.

The second is that the drainage trustees are asking that the present employés be allowed to hold their positions under civil service. This request cannot be granted, for the district employés are nonunion men and the city employés of this class are union members.

Under the proposed transfer of operation thirty-six men would be forced into the union and the union officials would guarantee that the city's lighting would no longer be interfered with. The city would no longer pay $1 for each arc lamp lighted by the district, but would pay for the horse power used.

GIVE WARNING TO PUBLIC.

Futility of Past Efforts Pointed Out by Board.

In a resolution adopted by the Illinois public utilities commission in Springfield yesterday all steam and electric railroads in the state were directed to remove from their rights of way obstructions interfering with the view of approaching trains.

"In view of the appalling number of accidents that have lately occurred at railroad and highway crossings in the state of Illinois," the resolution reads, "notwithstanding the efforts of this commission, by letters or suggestions, to have said crossings rendered more safe, this commission hereby directs all steam and electric railroads immediately to remove from their rights of way all obstructions of every kind which in any way interfere with the view of approaching trains at railway and highway crossings. And said railroads are further directed to make special efforts to render said crossings safe by giving warning to the public of the approach of trains at said crossings.

"The public is requested to exercise care and caution at all railroad and highway crossings.

"The commission now is engaged, with all the force it has in its railroad department, in investigating the railroad and highway crossings in the entire state of Illinois, and in ordering the said railroads to make said crossings safe for the use of the public."

VAST PARADE TO GREET QUIGLEY AT CELEBRATION.

Cornerstone of St. Mary of the Angels to Be Laid Today and Parish Anniversary Celebrated.

To welcome Archbishop Quigley and to celebrate the double occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the new St. Mary of the Angels' church, and of the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the parish, today the various churches of the northwest side and many fraternal organizations will form a parade which is expected to be the largest column of churchmen ever assembled in Chicago.

Archbishop Quigley, assisted by Bishop Paul P. Rhode, D. D., Archbishop S. Weber of Poland, the Rev. Francis Gordon, D. D., C. R., pastor of the new church, and by priests from all parts of the country, will lay the cornerstone at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The parade to greet Archbishop Quigley will form at 2 o'clock and will meet the prelate at West Blackhawk and Noble streets.

Suffragists Start in Restaurant Business in the Loop Today.

MAYOR HELPS THEM OUT

The suffrage shop at 121 North Dearborn street was busy yesterday installing two large ice boxes and a gas stove, cleaning up the kitchen and shining the silver. Mrs. Martha Abt, suffrage commissary, announced that the tearoom will open tomorrow noon with a 35 and 50 cents luncheon and a la carte service.

For 35 cents patrons of the suffrage tearoom will be able to get a salad, a sandwich, and a cup of coffee, tea, or milk. For 50 cents ice cream and cake will be added, or if the luncheon is served to men pie a la mode. All products will be home made except the bread.

All This for 50 Cents.

There will be lettuce, cabbage, fruit, potato, and tomato salads, with various kinds of dressing; ham, tongue, cheese, corn beef, and egg sandwiches, hot and ice coffee and tea, milk, and lemonade; ice cream, pie, and doughnuts. After the tearoom is better established it is planned to present a larger menu.

Luncheon will be served from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. At 3 o'clock afternoon tea, with a choice of the same dishes as for luncheon, will be served.

A delegation of seven women visited Mayor Harrison yesterday and obtained without cost a café license. The women who went to the mayor's office were Miss Laura Welch, Mrs. Abt, Mrs. Dora Earle, Mrs. Leonora Meder, Mrs. Laura Randall, Mrs. Mary S. Chandler, and Mrs. Amelia Fitch.

After the women visited the mayor they went to Chief Gleason's office to secure a permit for the card party at the Hotel La Salle Aug. 11. The women had some fear that the playing, since prizes are to be awarded, might come under the category of games of chance.

Mrs. Earle, general chairman of the party, announced the following as the chairmen for the card party, which will be given for the benefit of the $50,000 suffrage fund:

Mrs. Dora Earle, chairman.
Mrs. Marion H. Biel, vice chairman.
Miss Pauline Kelley, secretary.

SHE LETS HIS MONEY VANISH

Wife Collects $800 in Kankakee, Then Lends $500 to Friend in Springfield.

Edna Porter, wife of John Porter, teaming contractor, went to Kankakee to obtain $800 belonging to her husband. When Mr. Porter met his wife at the Illinois Central station yesterday she had only $180 of it left.

When Mrs. Porter was questioned by Lieut. Benjamin Enright of the detective bureau, she said that after drawing the $800 at Kankakee she went to St. Louis and from there to Springfield. While in a railroad station in Springfield she said she met Robert Hummell of Sixty-ninth and Green streets, who asked her to lend him $500 for a few minutes. After making the "touch" he went away and did not appear again. According to Porter, Hummull has been an affinity of his wife for some time.

United Societies Subcommittee to Hold Meeting Next Wednesday.

CAMPAIGN WIDE ONE.

The political action committee of the United Societies may recommend candidates for all offices, from United States senator and congressman down to township justices of the peace. Heretofore the political action committee has been content with indorsing state senators, state representatives, and judges.

But a subcommittee decided to extend its political power, asserting the Societies is in a better state of organization than ever before, with the extensive women's organizations to assist in electing candidates favorable to "home rule" and "personal liberty." A meeting of the subcommittee has been called for 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Plans will be made for the support of all candidates favorable to the "wet" cause.

The members of this committee are:

BOY AUTO TIRE THIEVES ORDERED TO PAY FOR LOOT.

Little Boy Sent to Do Actual Robbery Because His Youth Was Expected to Excuse Him.

The stealing of automobile tires has become a profitable employment for young boys, according to Richard J. Edgeworth of 5622 Bishop street, who yesterday brought five young offenders before Judge Scully in the Boys' court.

Edgeworth said four automobile tires and four inner tubes had disappeared from a freight car belonging to the Chicago Junction Railway company at Thirty-fourth street and Campbell avenue. A small boy was depicted as the "bad actor" in the burglary. The little boy entered the car and removed the automobile tires. This boy was used as a shield by the older boys, it was said, since the small boy would be regarded as a juvenile delinquent and escape punishment. The police are making a search for the "fence" who is accepting stolen automobile fixtures from small boys.

Jesse Henning of 1819 West Thirty-fourth street, Henry Kilham of 1843 West Thirty-fifth street, Felix Urbanski of 3116 Hamilton street, and Bill Meehan of 3322 South Irving avenue were paroled to the chief probation officer for a year and told to restore $35 each of the property as a punishment for their misdemeanor.

School Official Calls Conference on Degenerate Crime.

TO SAFEGUARD CHILDREN.

W. L. Bodine Aroused by Many Attacks on Pupils.

W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsary education, announced yesterday that he will call a meeting of various civic and city officials in about a week to begin a campaign to curb degenerates in Chicago.

The crimes against children which have been called to Mr. Bodine's attention and which he has had to prosecute are responsible for the proposed conference. The matter will be taken first to the Chicago Public Service league, of which he is president.

Representatives of the police department, the state's attorney's office, the county clerk's office, the Juvenile court, the Juvenile Protective association, the Municipal court, teachers' and principals' organizations, the city prosecutor's office, and the office of the factory inspector will be invited to attend and assist in preventing this kind of crime.

ASK STREET THROUGH PARK.

Northwest Side Dwellers Want Division Street Extended Into Humboldt.

Property owners and residents in the vicinity of Humboldt Park are signing petitions to Mayor Harrison, asking for legislation to permit the opening of Division street through Humboldt park with the view to extending the street car line westward from California avenue to the city limits. Members of the Northwest Side Commercial association say the thoroughfare can be opened up without marring in any way the beauty of the park.

LEGISLATURE TO BE NONPARTISAN

Senatorial District Resolutions Indicate No Party Will Control.

MOOSE LOOM STRONG.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Senatorial district resolutions already on file in the secretary of state's office indicate the improbability of any one party exercising a control in the next legislature. On the contrary from present indications a nonpartisan or tripartisan combination will be necessary to organize the lower house and put through the reform rules and remedial legislation that are on the big program.

With the last of the primary candidates in the field and the filing books closed, a perusal of the district resolutions today discloses that neither the Republicans nor Democrats will elect a sufficient number of house members to seat either party safely in the saddle.

Under the Supreme court's ruling on the primary law the senatorial district committees in the fifty-one districts of the state are the absolute judges of how many candidates the respective parties shall nominate for the lower house. The respective committees by resolution determine the number and no matter how many candidates are in the field for the nomination, not more than the number named may be nominated and have their names placed on the official party ballot in November. There is no bar to the number of independent candidates, but the party candidates thus are limited.

Indicates "Triple Alliance."

It is these senatorial district resolutions, now being filed with the secretary of state, which show that in all probability there will be a "triple alliance" in the next house composed of Republicans, Democrats, and Progressives.

The Democratic committees have reported from twenty-eight out of fifty-one districts and authorize a total of forty-two party candidates from these districts. Even if the same percentage is maintained in the districts yet to be heard from, which is not likely, the total number of Democratic candidates who can go on the official ballot in November will not exceed eighty.

Seventy-seven votes are necessary to a constitutional majority in the house. With but eighty candidates for the house in the field it is not at all likely that the Democrats will come anywhere near electing seventy-seven. Even should they elect every candidate there is sure to be a bitter factional battle on the Democratic side, precluding the possibility of Gov. Dunne and the state administration having a working majority on their side of the house.

Show Not So Good as in 1912.

Two years ago the Democrats authorized a total of ninety-two candidates for the lower house, and, with all the Republican smash-up and the Roosevelt stampede, they elected but seventy-two of the ninety-two candidates authorized. It is conceded that the Democrats do not stand as good a show this election as in 1912.

The Republican committees have reported from thirty-six districts a total of sixty-one candidates authorized. The missing districts probably will swell the total to eighty-eight. Two years ago the Republicans authorized ninety-one candidates and elected fifty-two. While the Republican leaders are certain they will make some gains this year, they are not sanguine enough, with the uproaring of the Moose, to anticipate the election of seventy-seven Republicans in November.

Many Moose Candidates.

The Progressive party leaders meanwhile have jumped in to the field with a great many more candidates than they had in 1912. They authorized only thirty-nine candidates two years ago and elected twenty-six, much to their joyous surprise. This year they have authorized forty-seven candidates in forty-five districts. They will provide for at least one candidate in each of the six missing districts, bringing their total up to fifty-three for the November election. Aug. 6 is the last day for filing the resolutions.

Secretary of State Woods failed to show up again today and no official statement was forthcoming as to the official ruling on the order of filing of primary petitions. It is understood, however, that he will lock himself up somewhere tomorrow and decide on the entire list.

H.-H. CLAN WAR SPREADING

Democratic Conflict Breaks Out Beyond First Ward.

POWERS OUT OF LINE.

Refuses to Withdraw Bowler as a Candidate for Sheriff.

All hope of "localizing the conflict" in Democratic politics to the First ward has been abandoned, and the primary war between the fighting factions is to be a general engagement all over town.

This became apparent yesterday when diplomatic relations were severed between the city hall and Ald. John Powers of the Nineteenth ward, who refuses to withdraw his candidate for sheriff, Ald. James B. Bowler, and announcement of the flat declination of Assistant State's Attorney Michael F. Sullivan to quit his campaign for probate judge in favor of Henry Horner, the H.-H. slate candidate.

Nor can Congressman A. J. Sabath himself hold in line for John E. Traeger a formidable part of the Fifth congressional district city hall Democrats, who insist upou supporting Joseph Mendel for sheriff.

Dunne Wing Defected.

The bitterness has extended to the Dunne wing. It became known yesterday that County Treasurer William L. O'Connell has centralized all of the efforts of the Dunne lieutenants behind John J. Bradley for the treasurership, and that "Bradley at all costs" becomes the motto of the state administration contingent. The inference from this is that the Bradley backers will trade with anybody, regardless of what faction they may be aligned with.

The Dunne managers have been unable to hold State Factory Inspector Oscar F. Nelson for the Hearst-Harrison-Dunne slate candidate for county judge, John E. Owens. Nelson is reported to be making an active campaign for Daniel F. Cruice, and the report is that Peter Angsten, the Dunne secretary of the state industrial board and fellow committeeman of County Treasurer O'Connell in Hyde Park, is also with Cruice.

Sullivan Men Sanguine.

Sullivan headquarters asserted that the net result of the week's developments, including the return of Mayor Harrison and his declaration of war against Kenna and Coughlin, has been a tightening of the Sullivan lines and that close to a majority of the H-H committeemen will support Sullivan for senator and will refuse to be delivered to Stringer by either the mayor or the governor.

VROOMAN IS NOMINATED FOR HIGH FEDERAL POST.

President Wilson Names Bloomington Man to Be Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

The nomination was made at the personal request of Secretary Bryan and Senator Owen of Oklahoma. Senator Lewis announced that he also requested it.

Mr. Vrooman recently retired from the race for the Democratic nomination for United States senator in Illinois. He entered the race as an avowed anti-Sullivan man. Shortly after his withdrawal the governor, Secretary Bryan, and Senator Lewis publicly indorsed the candidacy of Congressman at Large Stringer.

The nomination of Mr. Vrooman today is another instance of the disfavor with which the administration looks on Sullivan's candidacy. The Bloomington man has served notice that he will not support Sullivan if he is nominated. Also his friends in the Wilson-Bryan league are thought to indorse this stand.

She confessed stealing a doll, a bag of candy, a box of face powder, two dust pads, two aprons, and four rubber balls.

REPAYS CONVICT FOR GENEROSITY

PRAISE FOR HIS SPIRIT

The sacrifice of a convict at the Joliet state penitentiary, who gave $3.49, his savings of months, to help a poor, sick woman who wanted to go to Algonquin for proper care and rest appealed to a woman who lives at the Chicago Beach hotel.

Yesterday she came to the office of THE TRIBUNE and brought $4.

"I believe that man ought to be repaid for his generosity," she said. "That much money means little to many of us. To him, whose comforts are small enough always, it was a real sacrifice. In his own position of imprisonment he was able to sympathize with this old woman in the twilight of life, who wanted so badly to live for a short time in fresh air, with trees and green grass and water about her.

"Since she has been taken care of I want to reimburse this generous convict."

The money will be sent to C. J. Loomis, general accountant for the penitentiary.

LANDS MAN AFTER 3 YEARS; SAYS HE'S DERELICT HUBBY

Mrs. Samuel Harris, Who Captures Quarry After Chase in Park, Asserts He Stole Her Cash.

A young woman and a man met at Lincoln parkway and East Chicago avenue yesterday. The woman made a grab for him. The man turned pale and started to run. The woman pursued and shrieked for help. A policeman stopped the man.

"There he is at last," panted the woman. "I want him arrested on a charge of wife abandonment and larceny. I've looked for him ever since he married me three years ago. My name was Hilga Walgren then and I was working for Mr. Charles Fitts in the Pattington apartments. This man married me under the name of Samuel Harris, took me to a picture show, borrowed $50, and slipped out, saying he would be back in a minute. That was the last I saw of him. Later I found out, however, that he had gone to my room and stolen $200 worth of clothes and jewelry. I kept my eyes open all the time, and knew I'd find him some day."

GOT LICENSE FOR YOUR DOG? NO? THEN COP IS AFTER YOU.

Two Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety-seven Persons Are Sought on Warrants.

There are 2,800 persons living in the West Lake street police precinct and owning dogs. Only 450 of that number have procured dog licenses. Three of the delinquents were arraigned before Municipal Judge Sullivan yesterday, after being arrested on warrants, and the remainder will be served with summonses. Thirty-five have been instructed to appear in court next Wednesday.

George Stuckey of 3452 Walnut street was discharged. He said he had been notified some time ago and had obtained a license.

Frank Nowak of 3535 Carroll avenue, was fined $5. He first said the dog was a stray, then that it belonged to a friend.

George Bahey of 4701 Race avenue said he owned no dog, but that one was staying around his home. The case was continued, and he promised to get rid of the animal.

Buy Land at Wholesale—Sell Lots at Retail

We offer for public subscription the balance of 486 shares in a syndicate which is organizing for the purpose of purchasing a Northwest Side subdivision on Belmont Avenue, consisting of 486 lots. This property is being purchased by the syndicate at wholesale prices and will be sold at public auction immediately after this syndicate is formed.

The property is really being purchased by this syndicate at acreage prices, and it is the last undeveloped property on the near Northwest Side, and lies directly in the path of inevitable growth.

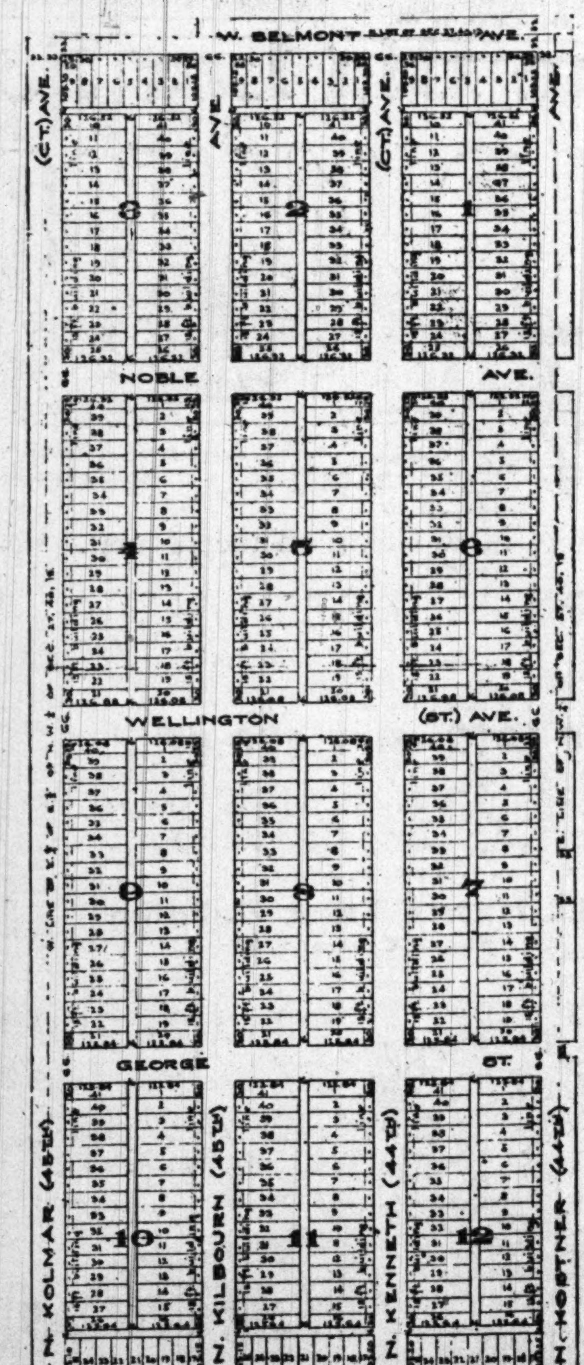
Nearly 200 shares in this syndicate have already been sold; and we are offering the balance at subscription prices ($300 per share), $50 per share to be paid at the time of subscription.

THE SYNDICATE PROFITS WILL BE IMMENSE

The syndicate is purchasing this property for $145,800—or at $300 per lot. When this property is auctioned not a single one of the 486 lots will sell for less than $300, and the prices will range from $300 per lot to $2,500 per lot.

THIS MEANS THAT THERE WILL BE A NET PROFIT OF AT LEAST 140% AND POSSIBLY A NET PROFIT OF AS HIGH AS 200% ON EVERY DOLLAR THAT IS INVESTED IN THESE SYNDICATE SHARES.

PLAT OF E. G. PAULING'S BELMONT AVENUE ADDITION



Look at These Figures

When the syndicate has been formed a public auction will be held. It is absolutely certain that when these lots are thus offered at retail they will sell for much more than $300 each. The profits thus made will be divided among shareholders.

27 Belmont Avenue lots should auction for from $750 to $2,500 each, an average of $1,000, a total of	$27,000
27 Diversey Avenue lots should sell for an average of $750 each, a total of	$20,250
36 Corners, other than those on Diversey and Belmont, should average $700 each, a total of	$25,200
72 lots on Kostner (44th) Avenue, half section line, should average $500 each, a total of	$36,000
Total estimated receipts from auction	$213,000
Total cost of property to shareholders	$145,000
Estimated net profit	$68,000
Estimated profit per share	$140

As shareholders are required to pay only one-third cash prior to the auction they should make this profit of $140 per share on an investment of only $100 per share.

This is not a speculation. It is an investment in real estate at wholesale prices, with the certainty that when the property is put on the market at retail it will be worth a substantial increase. And note this: an offer of $4,000 has already been received for the two lots on the southwest corner of Belmont and Kostner Avenues. Lots similar to our least desirable ones are selling in the neighborhood at a minimum of $550 to the west and at a minimum of $890 only a quarter of a mile to the east.

No taxes of any kind have to be paid before May, 1916, at which time the property will have been sold at public auction.

Title is vested in the Chicago Title and Trust Company, which will furnish complete abstract of title and guarantee policy.

This is a chance for you to share in the great big profits which will be made out of the marketing of this property—one of the choicest tracts of land now vacant in Chicago. Call at our office or write us and we will go into the matter with you in detail. Maps, plats and other information have been prepared and you can secure them without incurring any obligations to purchase

The Property Itself

The accompanying map will show the relative location of E. G. Pauling's Belmont Avenue Addition and its relation to the transportation lines of Chicago. Every one who has followed the development in this city knows that the Northwest Side is growing more rapidly than any other section of Chicago. Statistics of building operations, extensions of car lines and increased selling values on the Northwest Side will confirm this statement.

The E. G. Pauling Belmont Avenue Addition is bounded on the north by Belmont Avenue, on the south by Diversey Avenue, on the west by 45th Avenue and on the east by North Kostner or 44th. The addition is completely surrounded by actual development. Car lines have recently been completed to the east on 40th Avenue and to the west on 48th Avenue. The Belmont Avenue line, now terminating on 40th Avenue, has been ordered by the City Council to be extended to 48th Avenue, bringing it right past this property. Rails are being laid on Fullerton Avenue (which is just south of this property) from 40th to 48th Avenue.

Four blocks to the north on the Milwaukee Avenue car line is the half million dollar Carl Schurz High School. One block to the south is the tract of land recently purchased by the Northwest Park Commissioners to be platted and laid out as the principal park in Northwest Chicago.

POPULATION IS COMING AND VALUES ARE GOING UP.

Chicago is the fourth largest city in the world. It has grown to this position from nothing within the lifetime of men now living. It is still growing at a rate of speed that means fortunes for those who put their money in real estate in the path of its growth. Real estate has piled up tremendous fortunes in Chicago and in every other big city in the past and the opportunities it offers today are greater than they ever were.

E. G. PAULING'S BELMONT AVENUE ADDITION LIES IN THE DIRECT PATH OF PRESENT DEVELOPMENT

As specialists in West Side Real Estate we know that it is the best available property at this moment for immediate profits that there is in Chicago. We should know something about it because for 24 years continuously we have specialized in the buying and selling of West Side real estate. Our judgment has made many men rich—the same judgment will make you a most extraordinary profit on your money if you become a shareholder in this syndicate.

BROOKFIELD-MANOR

Bring $10 With You
To Make a First Payment on One of These Choice Lots

You will see that the pressure of population in Chicago has been greatest on the West Side. As many people live on this one side of Chicago as in all the rest of the city put together.

And the cream of the residence section of this district is to be found in the exclusive Desplaines Valley suburbs along the Burlington railroad—Riverside, Brookfield, La Grange and Hinsdale. Riverside, the nearest of these suburbs, has been completely built up, lot values ranging upward from a mimimum of $1,000.

Just across the Desplaines River from Riverside is Brookfield, and jutting into the very heart of Brookfield, bounded on one side by its public park and the Little Desplaines River, is

BROOKFIELD MANOR

The nature of the surroundings may be judged from the fact that within one block of Brookfield Manor is the famous Brookfield Kindergarten—the finest kindergarten in the world—the lawns sloping to the river.

Within three blocks of the property is the Burlington station, 54 trains daily, 27 minutes to the loop. And as a terminus the finest railroad station in the world is about to be built.

Right through the heart of the tract runs the electric line connecting La Grange and Riverside with the Metropolitan Elevated and the Chicago Railways surface cars.

Scour Cook County from north to south and from east to west and you will find no such opportunity as this.

We are celebrating with this big public festival because the solid success and rapid progress of this subdivision is absolutely assured

Two weeks ago we announced that this property in the heart of beautiful Brookfield (so long held as acreage by the Armour estate) had been bought by us and subdivided. We announced that the opening sale would be held on Sunday, August 2.

In the meantime—and before the opening sale—more than 300 lots have been reserved by the payment of deposits.

More than this—arrangements have already been made for the construction of 46 bungalows and houses on the tract as soon as purchasers can consummate the purchase of lots—which will be TODAY.

This means that before the day of the opening sale we have disposed of more than one-third of the lots in the subdivision, and assured the immediate investment of upwards of a quarter of a million dollars in the subdivision in buildings and improvements.

And that means that as the result of our efforts a community that will be a credit to all concerned will soon spring into being.

And as we intend to hold one or more lots in each block as a personal investment, it means that there will be a rapid increase in the value of these lots which will bring us a big return.

You will enjoy this Sunday if you just come out and join in our big free barbecue—but if you take advantage of the opportunity to get your stake in on the big development about to take place in Brookfield Manor it will give you for many, many Sundays to come the keenest of all pleasures—the pleasure of continuing financial return.

This opportunity is limited. We have

888 LOTS—$177 AND UP

No taxes until 1916.

Title guaranteed by Chicago Title and Trust Company.

Although 300 lots have been reserved, many choice locations are still available, particularly business lots on the electric line, which intersects the property from east to west in the center of a broad avenue. Either for the investor or for the home-builder the possibilities are unequaled.

It's Up to You. Act at Once.

PAST—PRESENT—FUTURE

Hundreds of years ago a trail led from Lake Michigan—through the swamp that is now Chicago—to the Desplaines River at what is now Brookfield Manor.

The Indians showed the way. Multitudes are following in their footsteps. The bare feet of the savages marked the path of destiny—marked it because it was the natural path, the logical, inevitable path for transportation and therefore for population.

Philip D. Armour, one of Chicago's most far-sighted millionaires, purchased this land from the government more than a generation ago.

He knew that the expanding population of this metropolis must necessarily follow the Old Southwest Trail, the first route of travel into Illinois, and surround his property. It was held by him intact, and, after his death, by his estate until a few month ago, when it was bought and subdivided. That is why you now have the opportunity to purchase this virgin property at such a low rate in the very heart of the built-up suburb of Brookfield, with its schools, churches, stores, fine residences and excellent transportation.

Now that the streets of Brookfield (long blocked at its borders) are allowed to run across this tract, opening it to the construction of homes by several hundred people, it will become a community of several thousand population, and values will go up by leaps and bounds from the present average of $200 per lot to $700, and, in some cases, $1,000 per lot.

The pictures on this page illustrate the "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow" of this property.

British Superdreadnought Queen Mary—The Deadliest Ship in Europe.

The Queen Mary like its sister the Tiger, combines terrific fighting power and tremendous speed. Each carries ten guns of 13.5 caliber or over, 9 inch armor plate and MAKES OVER 28 KNOTS AN HOUR.

The initial cost of the Queen Mary was $10,125,750.

Great Britain has SEVENTEEN other superdreadnoughts, not thirteen in all, as is usually stated. The Lion, Princess Royal, Queen Mary and Tiger in some tables are ranked as "battle cruisers" and excluded from the superdreadnought list. But in the Statesman's Year Book, the official British publication, they are listed as "superdreadnoughts." All carry ten guns of 13.5 caliber or over, and all make at least 28 knots an hour. The Lion and Princess Royal are 30 knot ships.

In case Great Britain should join the triple entente against Germany, the British fleet would almost certainly take command of the sea at once and drive the German flag, both naval and commercial from it. Germany has twenty-four dreadnoughts, including the old ones, but no ships in the superdreadnought class,

Blockaded by sea, and its food supplies cut off from North and South America and Russia, Germany would be forced to subsist on itself and on its ally Austria—no easy task—SINCE IN NORMAL YEARS GERMANY IMPORTS ABOUT ONE BILLION AND A HALF DOLLARS MORE OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS AND OODSTUFFS THAN SHE EXPORTS. Germany's exports were chiefly chemicals, textiles, base metals, machinery and miscellaneous manufactures; with the oceans closed to her, she will find little market for her products.

The British navy strangled Napoleon. Will it strangle Germany?

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Hope and despair oscillated every moment during the last few days, every hour indeed bringing a different temper. Great Britain for the first time in more than half a century finds itself entangled in continental complications and has to face war as almost a certainty.

Opinion is not altogether united. Many Radicals are dead against England's participation and the Manchester Guardian, the most powerful organ of advanced Liberalism outside of London, already thunders against war, while some groups of members of parliament always in opposition to Sir Edward Grey's policy have begun to hold anti-war meetings.

There is also some doubt as to the exact dimension of England's engagements with France and Russia, and several pronouncements of Asquith in previous phases of this controversy are quoted which emphatically denied any treaty with France promising participation in a continental war.

England Pledged to France.

On the other hand, it is avowed that England has given sufficient encouragement to French hopes and French self-confidence to expose her to bitter reproach if she did not come to the assistance of France against Germany.

London, in the meantime, has begun already to show some of the wounds war inflicts. The close of the stock exchange for the first time in English history, the rise of the bank rate to 8 per cent, a run on the Bank of England, and a truce on the Irish question in the house of commons are revelations of the intense anxiety which is universal.

The richest men in the house of commons walk about with depressed faces, as no fortune seems safe in the face of an utter breakdown of all credit, which now seems imminent. The most threatening feature in the situation is Russia's apparent desire to force war, as the present hour is the most convenient for her and the most inconvenient for her enemies. To make confusion worse confounded, Austria's threat to tear up the treaty of Bucharest may bring into the hideous welter of European war Greece, Roumania, and perhaps Bulgaria and Turkey.

This tremendous cataclysm dwarfs the Irish question and puts an end now and forever to Ulster's threats of civil war. Thus the week, which began most threateningly for home rule, ends favorably. Though no Irishman wishes to purchase an early settlement of home rule, especially as it is now inevitable, by European war, yet near European complications undoubtedly bring home rule nearer and more certainly.

When news of the shocking outrage in Dublin reached Irish leaders for the first time Sunday night last they were alarmed by the prospect of home rule being imperiled by this sudden and hideous complication. The exasperation of all Ireland against the conduct of the government officials might have forced the Irish party into such an open and violent opposition to the ministry as to have wrecked the home rule bill, and the fact that Asquith would propose further concession to Ulster in the modification of the time limit brought the Irish party up against Ireland's exasperated determination to stand no further concessions.

Civil War Wiped Out.

By a strange, characteristic paradox of Irish politics the Dublin outrage brought a new, vast improvement in the Irish situation. First Chief Secretary Birrell was able to clear himself of all responsibility and dismissed the officer responsible for the whole attempt to disarm Nationalist volunteers. The most important lesson, however, was that every Tory, as well as every Liberal, had to face armed revolt in the south of Ireland as in Ulster, and all parties at last realized what tragic consequences must follow all attempts to fight out the Irish question any longer on lines of civil war. In short, the Dublin outrage wiped civil war off the slate, and it became clear even to Orangemen that if any of their followers were killed in civil disturbance not a single tear would be shed over them in England, which would see in such events only a natural consequence of their campaign of rebellion and would consider bloodshed in Ulster as no more worthy of sympathy than blood already shed in Dublin.

Dublin Martyrs the Last.

Thus, though rage and pity still exist in Dublin, and though the revelations at the inquest, by proving that the soldiers fired without orders, increase popular anger, the Irish situation has been enormously cleared, and Englishmen sum up the situation by saying that the men and women killed in Dublin were the last martyrs for Irish liberty. It is now pretty certain that we shall hear no more of the amending bill till the house reassembles again in December, that meantime the original home rule bill will be placed on the statute book, and that, confronted with the fact accomplished, both the Nationalists and the Orangemen can review the situation more calmly and more freely and hammer out in negotiation some settlement which will be acceptable to all sides.

FRANCE MINTS ITS LAST SOU

MOVIES SWEEP PARIS.

BY CAROLYN WILSON.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—[Special Correspondence.]—The last sou has been minted; the last copper that will ever go into the treasury has been sent out into circulation. From this time on the 5 and 10 centime pieces will be of nickel, the 5 about as big as a 10 franc bit, and the 10 as big as a 20 franc, and through the center of each will be a little hole, no one knows what for unless it be that the thoughtful government means you to string them around your neck.

The first of Anna Gould's bad matrimonial bargains is once more in line for a smile from the Parisian public, although this time it is really a tragic affair.

At the time of the upheaval of Paris' streets a woman in a taxi was plunged into the huge opening in the street and was killed, together with the chauffeur who was driving the car. It seems that the victim of this accident was "l'amie" of Count Boni de Castellane—a little manicurist whom Boni depended on for the daily mirrorlike perfection of his hands.

For a week after the accident he refused to go to any other manicurist and bore the sign of his sorrow on his hands—they were in mourning!

The theaters in Paris are having as much trouble as the Chicago playhouses in counteracting the effect of the movies. This last week two of the oldest theaters in town and also the Elysées Comedie, which is the most luxurious and elegant of the new theaters, were turned over to movies. And the Opera has had a narrow escape from disaster. For a week or so it looked as if something like fatality was about to happen to this, one of the greatest of the opera companies of the world.

MM. Messanger and Broussan hastily surrendered their positions, with the greatest of glee, I imagine, and M. Jacques Rouché came forward and volunteered to take it up. He is a brave and intrepid man with many new ideas, and both ingenuity and business acumen, so it is to be hoped and expected that he will succeed.

ROYAL RIVALS MAKE UP.

Grand Duchess Marie Visits Princess Beatrice and Long Standing Feud Ends.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Grand Duchess Marie, the daughter of the Czar Alexander II. and widow of the Duke of Edinburgh, who was made duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, in Germany, in order to get his wife away from the English court, is now paying a visit at Kensington palace to Princess Beatrice, her sister-in-law. Everybody is discussing it, as the two formerly were arch enemies and kept old Queen Victoria's household in constant turmoil.

The Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Victoria's second son, was very popular in England, but his marriage to the Russian grand duchess was a bitter pill for the country because she insisted that, as the daughter of an emperor, she should take precedence at her husband's court right after the queen. Victoria was Empress of India, and the Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII., was heir to that title as to all the others of his mother, but the grand duchess maintained that the English sovereign in England was only queen and that the Prince of Wales would be only king, while her father was actually emperor.

Burden to Court Chamberlain.

Of course, she never was allowed to walk in any royal procession ahead of the Prince and Princess of Wales, but she never accepted the situation and made every court chamberlain's life a burden.

Princess Beatrice, as Victoria's youngest child and the wife of a prince insignificant in importance in his own country and the son of a morganatic marriage was especially the object of disdain of Grand Duchess Marie, Duchess of Edinburgh. Princess Beatrice paid her back by acquiring supreme influence over Queen Victoria.

Finally the Duke of Edinburgh was exiled to the little grandduchy of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha to give his wife a throne.

Duchess' Sun Has Set.

Since that time the star of Grand Duchess Marie has set. Her only son did not live to be heir to the throne her husband gave her. Her nephew, the present Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, gives her no power in the little country. Neither of her daughters has made an overwhelmingly brilliant marriage. The eldest will some day be queen in Roumania, but that is nothing great as far as thrones and queens are concerned.

In the meantime Princess Beatrice has become the mother of the queen of Spain.

QUEEN MARY HAS WHAT SHE WANTS

Colonel in Chiefship, Which Means a Pretty Uniform at Parades.

NEW THING IN BRITAIN.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Queen Mary, who always has her eyes open to increase her queenly prestige, has succeeded in bringing about an innovation in the British army quite new to Great Britain.

This was shown in the recent announcement of the king's birthday honors that she and four other women of the English royal family had been appointed colonels in chief of regiments.

It has not been uncommon to call a regiment after some royal woman, but none before ever had been colonel in chief, although empresses and princesses on the continent have held the rank.

Dowager Queen Included.

Queen Mary determined that she would set the wheels in motion to obtain the same thing for herself. Incidentally, the war office has included Queen Alexandra, the princess royal, the Duchess of Fife, the princess royal (the Duchess of Fife), in the new honors.

Queen Mary is colonel in chief of the Eighteenth (Queen Mary's Own) Hussars, and it is expected she will wear an adaptation of the uniform when she reviews the troops. Queen Alexandra is colonel in chief of the Nineteenth (Queen Alexandra's Own Royal) Hussars and the Yorkshire (Princess of Wales' Own) regiment, but her intentions as to assuming the uniform have not been made known.

Both women could arrange to costume without much difficulty, the distinguishing features being a Hussar tunic and busby. Queen Mary looks remarkably well in the gorgeous shako and coat of the Fifth (Blucher) regiment of Prussian Hussars, of which she is the honorary colonel in chief.

Germans Drink to Alexandra.

Queen Alexandra's portrait, in the regimentals of the Prussian royal dragoons, of which she is honorary colonel, is the principal adornment of the messroom at the headquarters of that regiment, and the officers always drink her health after drinking the health of the German emperor and empress.

The Duchess of Argyll, as colonel in chief of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, will not find it such an easy matter to wear the feather "bonnet" of her regiment.

DOUGLAS TELLS OF WILDE.

Former Associate of English Writer Explains His Friendship for Him.

LONDON, July 25.—Though Oscar Wilde has been dead for thirteen years the notoriety of his name is kept alive by an apparently endless succession of quarrels among his friends and his friends' friends. Ultimately it will be possible to strip Wilde's writings of the adventitious interest of social celebrity and of scandal and to estimate their intrinsic value. Before this estimate is likely to be made by the present generation some measure of agreement will be necessary on the facts of Wilde's career.

Although Lord Alfred Douglas' "Oscar Wilde and Myself" is not the kind of soft answer which will turn away the wrath of his various opponents, it will help people to form their estimate of the facts of the intimacy and confirm their probable impression of Oscar Wilde's character and talents.

Lord Alfred Douglas has a pungent or even feline literary touch, but his general statement of the relations between Oscar Wilde and himself is straightforward and credible. He has frankly outgrown any excessive admiration for Wilde either as a writer or a man. The process of disillusionment was completed by the discovery of Wilde's attacks in the unpublished portions of "De Profundis."

The writer denies that he knew the extent and character of Wilde's viciousness until after legal proceedings had been begun, and makes some true and incisive observations on Wilde's craving for notoriety, which falsified his talent and substituted imitativeness and shallow epigram for what might have been independent genius. But the time has not yet come for a final appreciation, nor is Lord Alfred Douglas the critic to undertake it. He is fairly entitled to tell his story of the relationship, though it would have been all the better for being told more shortly and with less acrimonious reference to a number of people of very small real importance.

DREADNOUGHT FOR BRAZIL MOST POWERFUL AFLOAT.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Brazilian government has placed a contract with a British firm for a battleship to take the place of the one sold to Turkey and now known as the Sultan Osman I. The new vessel will be the most powerful armorclad warship in the world, and will greatly exceed in offensive power and defensive qualities any battleship at present afloat.

ENGLISH SEE NO HOPE IN MEXICO

British Press Pessimistic About Future Rule of Carranza and Villa.

THINK BRYAN IDEALIST

[LONDON LETTER TO THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 24.—While hoping for the best, public opinion in this country is evidently not disposed towards any premature rejoicings over the "voluntary" retreat of General Huerta, or to regard it as the dawn of a new era in Mexico. On the contrary, while giving full credit to President Wilson for his courage and consistency in insisting on the elimination of the dictator, the press continues to betray incredulity as to the prospect of any immediate restoration of peace and prosperity as the result of Mr. Bryan's policy of pacific idealism.

In fact, to put it plainly, Mr. Bryan's Mexican policy is regarded as hopelessly impractical and visionary, and the departure of Huerta is likely to lead to the aggravation of internal dissensions among the so called Constitutionalists. Serious students of foreign affairs cannot help feeling that Mr. Bryan's parochial type of pacificism, unrelieved by any practical knowledge of the great world of men and politics, is bound to lead the administration into deep seas of trouble: and trouble in Mexico has already become a very serious source of anxiety and loss to many Englishmen. They see the secretary of state at Washington earnestly pursuing his inspired way towards universal peace by means of "arbitration treaties" which will be made "really binding and conscientiously observed," and, contrasting this fervent idealism with the sober realities in Mexico (and elsewhere) they are lost in wonder at the persistence of an optimism so splendidly self-centered.

In a letter to THE TRIBUNE eight months ago I had occasion to observe that English opinion was then totally unable to recognize in men like Villa, Zapata, and Caranza patriots fighting for their country's liberties. It saw in them only brigands and political adventurers fighting each for his own hand. Six months later I reported as the keynote and conclusion of all public opinion in Great Britain that "when once Washington made up its mind to political intervention, armed intervention became inevitable. This having come to pass, it is bound to go on, until the United States has re-established law and order throughout the country."

Despite the fact that Huerta has at last found discretion to be the better part of valor, this opinion still holds the field.

LID TO BE PUT ON GAY BERLIN

BY FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, July 21.—"Gay Berlin" has become Gloomy Berlin. It will be much gloomier still in the days to come if the cause of its present wailings and forebodings is converted from a project into a reality.

For the reactionary new Prussian minister of the interior, Herr von Löbell, the supreme police authority in the kingdom, proposes to enforce an 11 o'clock closing ordinance which would annihilate Berlin's vaunted and celebrated "night life" at one fell, cruel swoop.

That is why the kaiser's capital is brooding and gnashing its teeth. If pestilence itself were about to descend upon the community public alarm might be greater, but popular indignation could not be more widespread than it is over the specter of the 11 o'clock "lid."

"Night life" in Berlin was recently described by an American humorist who investigated it as "all night and no life." Yet it has become the magnet which draws at least 50 per cent of foreign visitors to the city.

Bright Lights Draw Americans.

Every other American one meets in the hotels confesses he has come here to have a look at the town in the small hours. He used to go to Paris for that sort of thing, but for the last five or six years Berlin has undoubtedly had first call on the time and money of the transatlantic globe trotter in search of genuine nocturnal excitement. This is the root of Berlin's woe over the projected early closing scheme. Nachtleben has become a first class and thriving industry. It is systematically organized. Whole streets both in the downtown and outlying residential districts are given over to it. The number of men and women directly dependent on it for a livelihood must run into the thousands—the capital invested in it into millions. Under the encouraging influence of "wide open" police laws resorts have sprung up by the dozen. Friedrichstrasse and its cross streets, in which "night life" was at first localized, long since grew too small to accommodate it. Now the once sedate and exclusive "American quarter," where most of us expatriates have our abode, is infested with bars, cafés, restaurants, dance halls, motion picture palaces, beer restaurants, and cabarets.

Start Business at 2 A. M.

The "rush" hours in all these places are between 11 p. m., when the theaters and concerts are over, and 2, 3, 4, and 5 a. m., depending on the particular viciousness of this or that particular resort. There are many places which do not open at all until 2 a. m. They are the "joints" like "Tony" Grünfeld's resturant and bar, in the Jägerstrasse downtown, which cater to the crowds which have been wining, dining, and dancing until the "Palais de Danse" and its annex, "La Mascotte," have closed, and come to "Tony's" to linger over more champagne, strong cigarets, keep-awake black coffee, and an early breakfast till dawn and after. It was one of these delectable retreats at which an American party, which arrived at 1:30 a. m., was told: "You're too early. Come back in an hour."

Nobody knows just what form Herr von Löbell's "lid" is to take. There are reassuring reports that existing establishments are not to be molested; that only new licenses are to be refused, and that when existing places go out of business their licenses will not be reissued to new owners. Other reports say that the new closing regulations will permit gay Berlin to flourish until 2 a. m. in case "specially urgent reasons" for such a generous time limit can be submitted. All that one knows for certain is that the new Prussian minister of the interior is at work on a scheme designed radically to "reorganize" Nachtleben and that its most familiar devotees are not likely to recognize it when he is done with it.

Vested Interests in Protest.

The vested interests are not taking their proposed "reform" lying down. Grim massmeetings of protest are being held. Hotel proprietors and restaurant keepers are filling the columns of the newspapers with indignant complaint. The burden of the protesters' song is that Puritanization will "kill" Berlin as a metropolis and world tourist center. It will relapse, they aver, to its old level of a dreamy mid-European provincial town, which people will only visit when they must—a mere way station to cheerier parts.

It is said that it is the desire of the kaiserin, the unofficial mother of all uplift movements in Germany, to purge Berlin which is at the back of the early closing crusade. The subject was aired in the Prussian parliament last winter. Speakers of the conservative and high church parties branded the capital as "the blackest spot in Europe." They declared Berlin was headed straight for the end which obliterated Sodom itself unless "night life" was ruthlessly checked. Herr von Löbell, hailed a few months ago as a liberal minded statesman, who would be the last in the world to listen to the demnition bow-wows talk, appears to have harked to it after all. He will carve for himself the reputation of the best hated man in Berlin if he carries through his plans to the bitter end.

Crown Prince Impressionable.

"William the Younger," as Vorwärts, the battling organ of the Socialist party, contemptuously calls the German crown prince, has broken forth again with a crop of fresh "incidents." The eruption, like the "incident" of Zabern last winter, is again telegraphic. The future kaiser has been sending effusive "wires" to Lieut. Col. Frobenius, author of "The German Empire's Hour of Destiny," a rabid jingo production predicting a European war conflagration in 1915, and to Prof. Buchholz of Posen, a patriot of the same caliber, who, in a pamphlet, "Bismarck and We," flays the present government for permitting the "unrestrained growth of Democratic sentiment."

To Frobenius the crown prince telegraphed: "I hope your book will find its way into every German home." To Buchholz he wired: "I have read your most excellent treatise with the liveliest interest." Both crown princely effusions having been reproduced in the press, the boom in the sale of the Frobenius book and the Buchholz pamphlet has been promptly inaugurated.

The Liberal Vossische Zeitung calls for "regulations" for suppressing the political indiscretions of the kaiser-to-be, but they have been going on for the matter of ten years now, and nobody, not even the austere kaiser himself, has so far evolved effective ways and means of muzzling his ebullient heir. The crown prince's popularity has not suffered much in consequence of recurring "incidents." ? still regard him the best liked royal personage in the country, without exception.

Too Many Flying Men.

Germany's bran newest unemployment problem concerns aviators. The capture of five world's records in the air within three weeks was proof enough of the enormous progress of flying in this country. But nothing is quite as significant of the development of the art as the warning just issued by the German Air Pilots association. Young men of the country are adjured not to go in for aviation as a profession except in cases of urgent necessity. Germany, it is declared, is already overstocked with capable flying men. Scores of them are unable to find employment. Numbers are not mentioned, but it is believed that, including military and naval pilots, the exact total of which is an official secret, the number of qualified "airmen" available for service in an emergency like war is not far below 2,000. Five years ago there were not 200.

HUNGARIAN COUNT WEDS, THEN LEAVES FOR FRONT.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The marriage of Gladys Virginia Stewart, daughter of John S. Stewart, whose widow married Stral E. Dikna, the Swedish diplomat, took place at 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning in the city hall at Geneva, Switzerland. The religious ceremony followed at 5 o'clock on the same morning. The count then took a train to Budapest to join his Hungarian regiment at the front.

Prussian Minister to Dim Berlin Bright Lights.

HERR VON LOBELL.

POWERS SAVED MME. CAILLAUX

HUSBAND A DICTATOR.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1914: By the Brentwood Co.]

So entirely has the outbreak of war in Europe monopolized popular attention on both sides of the Atlantic that the amazing acquittal of Mme. Caillaux, the murderess of Gaston Calmette, president and editor of the Paris Figaro, one of the most important organs of the French press, has been allowed to take place almost unnoticed.

Yet it is difficult to conceive of a more amazing miscarriage of justice; one, indeed, of so startling a nature that one is tempted to ask of oneself if there is anything left of law and order today in France.

It must not be imagined for one moment that Mme. Caillaux, after having been proved in court to have killed her victim with due premeditation and in the most cold blooded fashion, escaped the just penalty of her crime merely because she was a woman.

Many Women Are Convicted.

There have been plenty of members of her sex convicted of capital offenses in France in recent years, and who have been made to suffer their deserts. It is well that this should be widely known, if only for the safety of what is so wrongly known as the stronger sex, since a man's life would be worth but little in France if the impression were to be created at home and abroad that women there could shoot men down with impunity.

If Mme. Caillaux was acquitted it was entirely due to the power wielded and to the fear inspired by her husband. Joseph Caillaux has on several occasions been minister of the interior and premier and is likely to be seen in these offices again.

Moreover, he was until the moment when his wife killed Calmette the minister of finance and the most powerful member of the late cabinet. The present administration is composed entirely of his friends and adherents, and it is known that not one of them was appointed save with his consent and after having received his O. K.

Judges Have No Independence.

Now in France the various judges are under the autocratic direction and control of the minister of justice for the time being. Meagerly paid, recruited from among the least successful members of the bar—that is to say, from men unable to make a competence by the practice of the law—they depend entirely upon the caprice and good will of the minister of justice, not merely for promotion and for honors, but even for the retention of their place.

The unfortunate Attorney General Fabre, for having given evidence on oath before a legislative committee and in response to inquiries of a preemptory character to the effect that in order to oblige M. Caillaux, when minister of finance, some years ago, he had postponed the hearing of the case of the swindler Rochette, who was thereby enabled to escape the penalty of his colossal frauds, amounting to many millions of dollars, was deprived by Caillaux's friend, the minister of justice in the Doumergue cabinet, of his office in the metropolis and was sent to vegetate at a smaller salary and in quasi disgrace in a provincial town in the south of France.

Proof of Caillaux Power.

This punishment of Attorney General Fabre for refusing to perjure himself, and for telling the truth at the expense of Caillaux, took place after the indictment of the latter's wife for the assassination of Calmette.

This evidence of what Caillaux could accomplish, even at a moment when the horror of his wife's crime was fresh in the minds of the people, was not lost, either on the judges who tried her or upon the attorney general who represented the state in the proceedings and who was supposed to conduct the prosecution. Quite naturally they did not wish to wreck their careers nor to lose their means of livelihood by incurring the enmity of so powerful a man as Caillaux, so they maneuvered matters in such a fashion as to secure his wife's acquittal.

This was not difficult, being given the fear inspired by Caillaux. The jurors were chosen by the officials of the department of justice without being subjected to any scrutiny by the counsel for the murdered man's family, the lawyers of which, indeed, had no say in the matter. Even had not the jurors been carefully selected for the express purpose of acquitting the prisoner they would have thought twice before they would have dared to convict Calmette's murderess. Most of the jurors in Paris trials are petty tradesmen, who stand in the most wholesome awe of the police, that have it in their power to ruin their business by means of persecution. The police are under the control of the minister of the interior, to whom the prefect of police occupies the relation of a mere subordinate. The police are only too ready to obey the orders of the minister of the interior; a mere hint from the latter is often sufficient to cause them to render life unbearable to any one who has incurred his displeasure, or even the displeasure of his friends. Even the most upright and independent of jurors would think twice before subjecting himself, his family, and his business to a fate of this kind by convicting a prisoner, caught redhanded, it is true, but who had a husband so powerful and influential as Joseph Caillaux.

Access to Police Dossiers.

There is still another consideration, which contributed to Mme. Caillaux's acquittal. Every man in France of any importance—and who of them is there that does not consider himself to belong to this category—has his dossier or record filed in the archives of the préfecture de police, and in those of the department de la Surté Générale.

It matters not if the subject of the dossier has never had any conviction recorded against him. The report concerning him is made up of the more or less honest investigations of official and private detectives, and of the malevolent gossip of acquaintance, also of anonymous denunciations. Aany domestic misfortune, the presence of a black sheep among one's relatives, or of a skeleton in one's family closet is included in the dossier.

This dossier is at all times at the disposal of the minister of the interior, of the subordinate officials of his department, and at that of his friends. He can use it, and does frequently employ it, for the purpose of bringing pressure and intimidation to bear upon the person concerned or upon his kinsfolk. I leave to my readers to imagine the use which dossiers of this kind can be made of by an unscrupulous politician, such as Caillaux.

How Daniel Wilson Escaped.

While Daniel Wilson, member of the chamber of deputies, was living under the roof of his father-in-law, President Grevy, at the Elysée he used to take advantage thereof to have either the minister of the interior or the officials of his department forward to the palace, for the alleged information of the chief magistrate, the police dossiers of all sorts of men then prominent in public life.

When, later on, Wilson was incriminated as the chief culprit in the Legion of Honor scandals, his confederates, less guilty than himself, were sentenced to long terms of penal servitude. His father-in-law, President Grevy, although entirely innocent himself, was forced to resign his office and to retire into private life on account of his relationship to Daniel Wilson. But the latter escaped any punishment whatsoever. He was not even brought to trial, although his guilt was established by the trials of his confederates.

If he escaped without any penalty it was because he notified the government that he had sent for safe keeping to England copies of the dossiers of no less than 20,000 men prominent in French political life, and that if any attempt were made to bring him to trial he would take steps to have them published abroad.

Cases of Assisted Justice.

French history during the last seventy years abounds with cases of what has been wittily described by a French statesman as "assisted" justice. Provided a person has influence of the kind passessed by Daniel Wilson or by Joseph Caillaux, or is in a position to command the intervention of that nature, he or she may commit with impunity any crime in the calendar—even murder.

Usually they will escape trial. MBut if brought into court they may rely upon acquittal, as in the case of Mme. Caillaux, who was so sure of being set free that her automobile was waiting for her at the gates of the Palais du Justice even before the case was given to the jury, and that she had organized a dinner party at her house, followed by a large reception, on her return home—a reception at which she appeared in a beautiful frock, specially built for the occasion, in great health and spirits, without the slightest trace of the more or less simulated sufferings by which she had endeavored to arouse popular sympathy when in the prisoner's dock.

GUTTER BABIES IMMUNE.

Infants in Slums of London Resist the Dangers of Filth and Disease.

The [illegible] Times

LONDON, July 31.—Gutter babies are immune to ordinary diseases, and thrive under conditions that would be the death to other children, said Dr. Thomas, health officer for the Finsbury district, in his annual report, just published. Dr. Thomas works in the most congested of the London boroughs, where 6,000 families live and sleep in 6,000 rooms.

"Some of these babies," he says, "as soon as or even before they are able to crawl, are placed on the sidewalks early in the day, to be watched or nursed by a girl of 4 or 5 years. They are true gutter children. Sometimes the immature nurse falls asleep, wearied by her task, and the baby crawls to the other side of the road, heedless of traffic. Both are filthy and gutter stained. But they seem to live. In fact, the stock from which they have sprung rises superior to the ordinary diseases of childhood."

Among the cases reported are these:

A baby 4 months old was given a piece of raw fat bacon to chew because its grandmother said bacon was good for babies and canaries.

One baby was dosed with stout and aniseed by the mother as cure for colic.

Another baby of 9 weeks was fed chiefly on weak tea.

Dr. Thomas complains of the "Sairey Gamps" who act as nurses and midwives in the district, undoing the work of the doctors in many cases. He says their arrogance is equal only to their ignorance.

DUTCH ENFORCING EUGENICS.

LONDON, July 31.—While eugenics is still a matter of academic discussion among some progressive nations, the practical minded Dutch are putting it to a test. E. B. Maxse, British consul general to the Netherlands, in his report, states that the committtee for the study of public hygiene opened an office at The Hague during last year, at which a medical man attends daily to examine and give suitable advice to persons of both sexes intending to marry. The object is twofold, to prevent the union of the unfit and to check race suicide.

FILIPINO BANDIT TERROR IN LUZON

TOOLS FOR NATIVE BOSS

BY HENRY J. REILLY.

Eleventh Philippine Article.

MANILA, July 7.—In July, 1910, there was captured in the province of Pampanga a man named Felipe Salvador. He had been wanted by the government since the days of the insurrection because he was the leader of a band which, in the name of liberty, had for years committed many crimes and terrorized some of the principal provinces of Luzon, the largest and most important of the Philippine islands. For his many crimes Felipe was hanged. The career of this man is of importance, as it illustrates what has happened in different parts of the islands on various occasions and what may well happen again.

Felipe was born in the province of Bulacan in 1851. As a boy he had received a certain amount of education in the Manila schools. Later he became a minor official in his native town. This position brought him into close contact with the poor and ignorant people which make up the majority of the population of the Philippine islands. He took part in the insurrection of 1896 against Spain, becoming before its complete failure an officer. When Aguinaldo organized his revolution in 1898 Felipe joined the insurgents and was given the rank of captain. Even in the midst of the constant disorder and abuses perpetrated by Aguinaldo's soldiery on the Filipino people Felipe's command distinguished itself by the abuses which they committed.

Conspired Against Aguinaldo.

A prominent characteristic of Felipe's was an intense religious feeling, undoubtedly most sincere but never preventing him from resorting to any means necessary to accomplish his end. This religious enthusiasm operated to give Felipe an idea as to his importance which was not concurred in by the principal insurgent leaders.

As a result Felipe on one occasion conspired to overthrow Aguinaldo. As part of his conspiracy Felipe organized what he called the Holy Church, with himself as the leader. He used legerdemain as a means of performing miracles which were readily accepted by the ignorant people. He claimed to be a great disciple of Christ and able to speak with him whenever he wished. He would retire from time to time to the woods. There, while pretending to be alone, but in reality under the hidden gaze of many of his followers who had been allowed to ascertain where he intended to go, would pretend to talk with the Almighty and frequently would also perform some of his miracles. His fame spread rapidly and he soon had under his control so many thousands of the ignorant class that Aguinaldo became alarmed and sent an officer with a considerable force to arrect Felipe. He, however, escaped to the north.

Filipe Is Captured.

Later in 1900 he returned to Pampanga with a considerable force, which was defeated by the American troops. Felipe was captured, brought to Manila, confined for seven months, and released on taking the oath of allegiance to the United States.

On his release he returned to Bulacan and reorganized his Holy Church. The organization continued to spread until it embraced from 45,000 to 50,000 people, all of the poor and densely ignorant class. While the provinces of Pampanga, Bulacan, and Nueva Ecija were the principal strongholds of this organization, it reached north through Tarlac into Pangasinan and south through Rizal, the province in which is Manila, into La Laguna and Cavite.

Felipe, like all Filipino leaders of whatever class, would brook no opposition. He enforced his will and maintained himself by using his followers, all of whom were armed at least with bolos, to terrorize and make obedient the peacefully inclined natives. A good example of his methods is his capture in June, 1912 of the town of Cabiao, Nueva Ecija, by means of a badly armed force of 400 men which he led. He was captured in 1903, but before his trial could be completed managed to escape and to return to his old life and methods.

Poisons Constabulary Detachment.

In 1903 he attempted to gain the arms and supplies of the constabulary detachment in one of the barrios (outlying village of a town) of Concepcion, Tarlac by getting one of his followers who lived in the barrio to poison the constabulary soldiers. When this had been accomplished his many followers in the town were to seize the arms and supplies. Fortunately only ten of the soldiers drank the water, which had been poisoned by means of a native fruit called taranpunay.

In February, 1903, some of Felipe's officers, with 200 men, attacked the town of San José, Neuva Ecija, and captured eight guns and a large quantity of ammunition from the constabulary stationed there. In Jun, 1903, on[illegible] Felipe's forces attacked the town o[illegible]en, Neuva Ecija, and carried off the arms and ammunition belonging to the municipal police. In April, 1906, they attacked Malolos, formerly one of Aguinaldo's capitals, killed three constabulary soldiers, wounded a number of others, and captured twenty-three rifles and 1,800 rounds of ammunition, besides a constabulary soldier. Felipe's last big exploit was his entry into Pampanga in June, 1910. Besides these principal affairs, there were a long series of minor disturbances occurring all over the territory in which Felipe's followers operated during the years from his release in 1900 till his capture in 1910.

Levies Tribute on Natives.

Felipe and his leaders collected 20 centavos a week from each of his followers and frequently by force from all the people in their locality. Those who refused to pay would be made an example of some night when least on their guard. The difficulty of capturing Felipe was due to a number of facts. After one of his bands had submitted some atrocity they would simply dissolve, the men going to their homes and hiding such arms as they might possess. When the constabulary searched for them there was naturally no band to be found. Also his followers were so fanatic that they would not betray him while the other people living in the country were so much in terror of him that they did not dare give any information of his movements or the movements of his followers.

The greatest difficulty of all was due to the fact which has been evident in every outbreak of this kind throughout the Philippine islands, that the native politicians habitually secretly used such bands as those of Felipe Salvador to accomplish their own ends. This may be a mere personal end such as getting even with some enemy or forcing the lower classes to obey them. It may be the much more dangerous end of trying to convince American officials and Americans that the disorder is due to nothing more than a patriotic people striving for their independence. These ends are easily accomplished by furnishing such a leader as Felipe with money, information, and whatever help he may happen to need.

Felipe Is Captured.

In 1909 and the early part of 1910 practically no trace could be found of Felipe. Natives in touch with his party reported that he had gone to Japan by way of Hongkong; that letters had been received from him in which it was stated that he was being given excellent treatment and had been told that the day would come when the Japanese would help the Filipinos to gain their independence. After Felipe returned in 1910 and before his capture he gathered a considerable band together in theneighb orhood of Mount Arayat. It was reported by natives at this time that three Japanese, supposed to be officers, who were going over the route from the Port of Dagupan on the China sea to Manila, had visited this camp and had remained for some time, being shown about this part of the country by Felipe's men.

Felipe Salvador's career is an excellent example of the greatest difficulty which we have to encounter in the Philippine islands. That is the ease with which any charlatan, fake patriot, or oriental conspirator working against the white man can persuade the ignorant and credulous poor who make up the mass of the Filipinos, to commit any crime or atrocity which may advance their own interests. The hardest fact for any American to realize even though he may have been in the islands for some time, is the complete unquestioning control which the more educated native is able to exercise over his own people.

Chicago Commission Refute All Ideas of Junketing by Serious Study of Cities.

BROADENING THEIR SCOPE

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TRIBUNE.]

JUNKET OR MISSION.

LIVERPOOL, England, Monday, July 20.—When the Lusitania docked at Liverpool this evening I had finished by fifth Atlantic voyage. Of the five this one has been far and away the most interesting. Shut yourself up on a ship for six days with twenty spry-minded Chicago officials and you are bound to accumulate information not ordinarily set down in blue books nor imparted by way of the campaign speeches of official persons. Men are pretty much themselves at sea—pretty genuine. The tippler tipples more copiously; the trusty, circumspect, well poised man inspires a double measure of confidence among his fellow passengers.

The Lusitania was a good place for getting at the significance of this $30,000 or $40,000 expedition of the three and twenty officials, and advisers to officials, whose prime interests in life just now are railway terminals and the municipal or the private ownership and operation of them, subways, conduits, harbor development, street car transportation, sewage disposal, wharves, schools, public health, and vice in its effect upon the school and the family, and whose observations on these subjects will have taken them into nine countries before their return to Chicago the last of August.

To Visit Many Capitals.

By that time this Chicago commission will have visited commercial capitals in Canada, the United States, England, France, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Denmark, and Sweden. And it will have spent from four hours to four days in these cities:

Toronto,
Montreal,
Boston,
New York,
Liverpool,
Manchester,
London,
Paris,
Frankfort,
Vienna,
Budapest,
Dresden,
Berlin,
Leipzig,
Hamburg,
Kiel,
Copenhagen,
Stockholm.

There are eighteen cities in thirty-nine days, or thirty-three days if six days be counted out for the Atlantic crossing. The commission swung away from Chicago on July 9.

The physical stress, the broken sleep, and the irregular hours of that kind of travel eliminate the idea of a junket, unless a man expects to be carried from town to town on a cot.

The building of a city is a job for heroes. If the job usually is done by very ordinary mortals that is so much the more unfortunate for the city. The men of this commission are out to take lessons in city building. The American city does not develop. It sprawls. Tthe fact that growth by sprawling involves shocking waste and nerve racking inconvenience has borne itself in on men and women of vision in the present generation of architects, railway managers, and municipal authorities. If the men and women of this commission earn the $34 allowed them for each of these thirty-nine days the cost of the commission will be one of the most fruitful investments Chicago ever made.

Great Benefits to Accrue.

If action follows observation this mission will save the time and sweeten the temper of every Chicago shopgirl hurrying to her street car or her suburban train on every one of her tired, fretted evenings. Its benefits will come home to the business and bosom of every householder from One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street to Evanston. Those benefits will reduce the wanton waste of ripping up new asphalt pavements in order to lay pipes and wires. They will enrich the life and extend the horizon of every child in the public schools. In countless ways they will make for the easier, cheaper, safer, wiser, and more expeditious transaction of the wearing business of living in a community which, if it is not yet a great city, is an appallingly big town.

Not since the world's fair has Chicago sent any of its officials outside the United States for purposes of observation. The men who realized the usefulness of such tours were precisely the men least willing to propose them. They dreaded more than anything the cry of "junket!" They knew—none better than they—that many an honest, conscientious public servant's career had been endangered by his participation in more or less valid tours that—perhaps because they were less valid—had got the word "junket" tacked on to them. The solid men of this party turn a delicate green at the word. They fear it as much as they resent it. If anything else would hold them to their work that word would. It has put what amounts to the fear of the Lord into their hearts—and that is the fear of the rest of the council, the newspapers, and the electorate. If you wish to spoil the self-respecting Larson's delight in the sea-shimmering under the morning sun you have but to whisper "junketer" as yau pass him on deck. On the ambitious, scrupulous Geiger, who promoted this whole mission, the word has the effect of a choppy sea on unstable passengers.

Party Is in Earnest.

A day or two of careful scrutiny of these men enables you to comprehend their point of view. They are genuinely in earnest. They love their town. They are out to learn. The most literal of them has a strain of imagination in him. Some of them are practical politicians, but they dream dreams. Most of them are men of means, and they do not seem sordid. Six weeks traveling expenses is not regarded by them as so much "easy money." They are bigger men than that. Several of them are $10,000 a year men and several are more than that.

The ribald hoot does not go up when a party of astronomers, equipped by a university at an expenditure of $100,000, starts to Africa to observe an eclipse or a transit.

The building of his house employs the home builder's best endeavor, and when it is finished it represents the fruits of his most thorough observation, his most careful planning. He has been building for his children and he has taken pains.

By the number of home builders who dwell within its borders is the building of a city a greater thing than the building of that house. In Chicago we are building for millions. The consciousness of that is stirring in the minds of the members of the commission. With some that consciousness is almost a passion; with others its promptings still are vague, not crystallized yet, not formulated. But the impulse to big ways of looking at things has been imparted. Larson talks nothing else. Geiger sits musing and then dashes off to write out another page of his notes. Healy ponders while he bites hard on a cigar and then comes out with a gruff epitome of something Toronto taught him.

A big spiritual thing has happened to a man when he awakes to the fact that he is one of the builders of a city. The manipulation of his ward and the domination of his council committee somehow cease to seem as important as they did. He begins to talk in larger terms. What is more important, he begins to think on longer lines. He is letting the parochial go. He is becoming metropolitan. He has a horizon.

Everybody Is Enthusiastic.

My editor grinned when he sent me on this assignment. "Go with them," he said, "and get what you can, but don't count on too much. Probably two or three fellows will do all the work. The rest will have a good time. That's the way such things usually are."

Well, this thing, then, is exceptional.

I have been amazed at the serious concentration and the faculty for assimilating and comparing which every man has thus far brought to bear. Everybody is eager and everybody is enthusiastic. Everybody has an idea. Every one of these men is personally ambitious. The wholesome result of that is that every one of them is anxious to make a record. One of William Healy's side lines for study on this tour is methods of sewage disposal and utilization. He was telling me about that in his own forcible way and in ten minutes he had me enthusiastic. I remembered a new kind of plant for sewage utilization that I had seen several years ago in the cathedral town of St. Albans, and I told him about it.

He jumped back at me with "Where's that town?"

"Twenty-three miles out of London—in Hertfordshire."

Healy took down the name and distance.

"And I think," I added, "that my old friend, William Green, who used to be mayor of St. Albans, would like to show you the plant."

"Where do I find him?" said Healy.

"Checquer street—the big linen draper's shop."

Healy was as eager and interested as if he had been assured that princes and potentates were waiting for him in St. Albans with great honors.

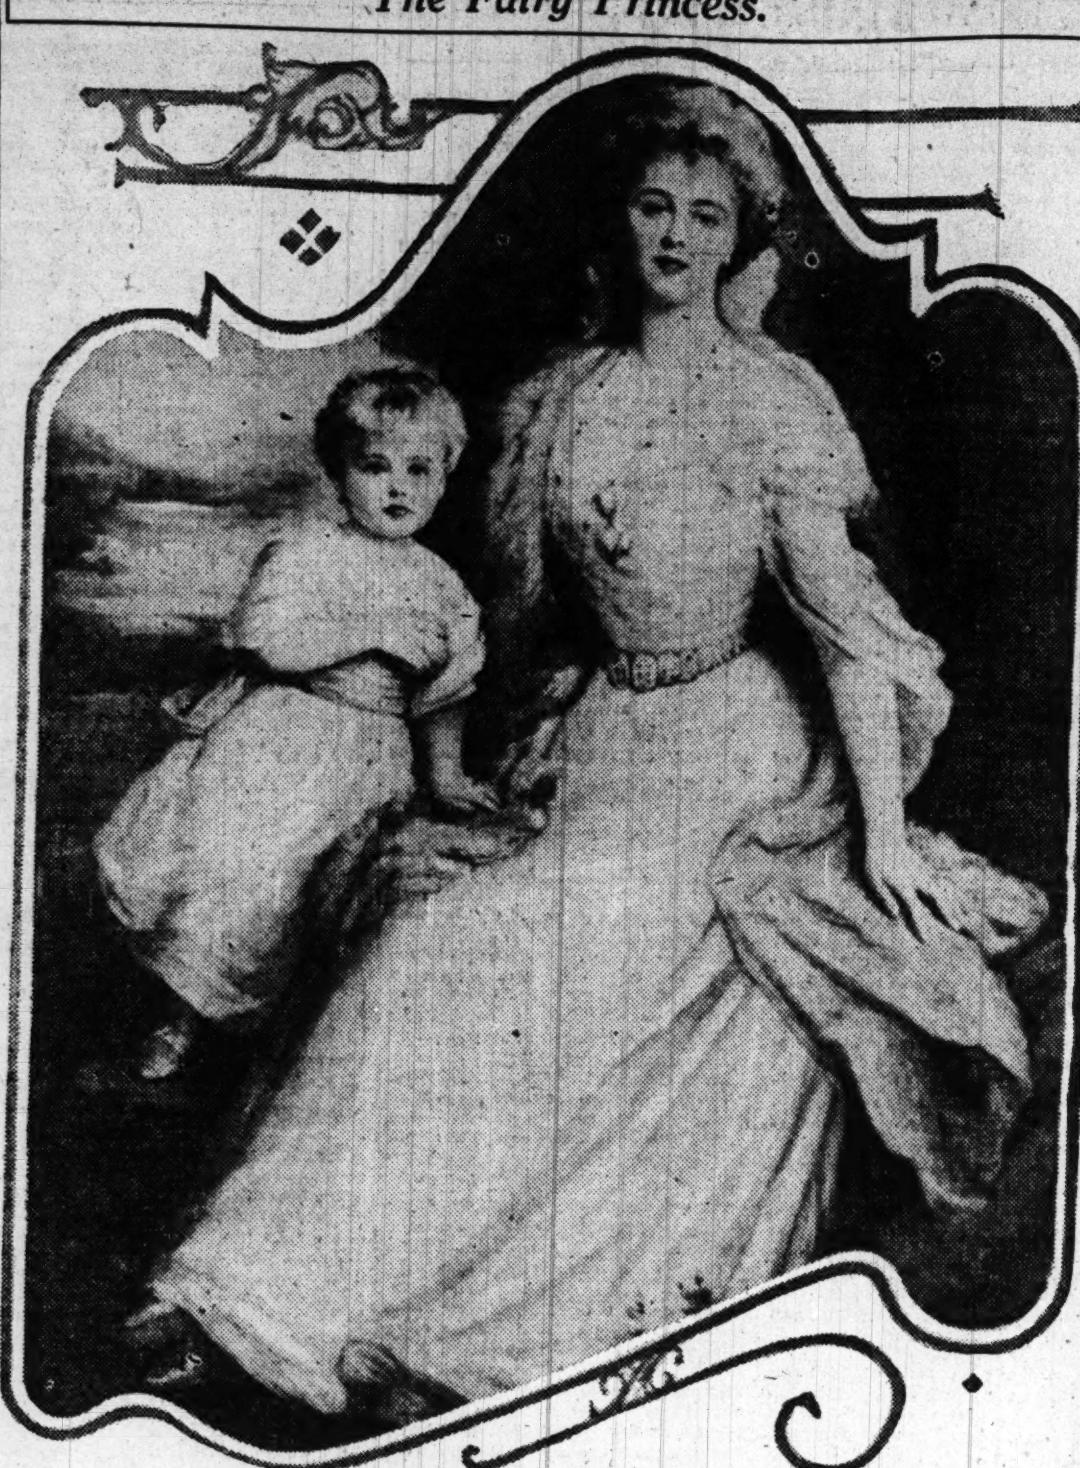
Practice Strict Economy.

These men are developing not only a passion to get but a passion to save. Shannon, who gets most of his fun out of watching their ways in a new field, said: "Some of our folks are so afraid the council will criticise them for extravagance that they want to pass an enabling ordinance before they give a shilling to a bath steward. The thought that it's city money cramps their style as never before. It's a new note."

City building a task for heroes, I said. There is something in the thought. And if these men are not prima facie heroes they are coming into a heroic conception of their work. Some of them are chairmen of committees which direct construction that makes the building operations of Louis XIV. seem like the fleeting houses which children build of a summer afternoon. And all of them are keen to bring back something to their city—not trophies, but ideas. I look at certain of these square jawed, clear eyed citizens and I see a Roman of a new dispensation.

[Subsequent articles by James O'Donnell Bennett on the personalities of the members of the Chicago commission will be published this week. They will form a continuation of the above.]

The Fairy Princess.



PRINCESS HENRY of PLESS and CHILD

Her serene highness Princess Henry of Pless, née Mary Theresa Olivia West, is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. Cornwallis West, and sister of the Duchess of Westminster. Her marriage took place in 1891, when she was 18 years of age, and she has three boys. King Edward and the German emperor were godfathers of her first son, while the sponsors for the second boy were King George, Queen Alexandra, and the crown prince of Germany. At her home in Germany she is known as the "fairy princess."

IRISH QUESTION DEPRESSES.

Political Bitterness Rends London Society Asunder and Season Ends in Gloom.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Goodwood, of course, made the London social season. Then comes Cowes. Then the cry is "To the northward for the shooting." The season, which has been overcast from the outset by the Irish crisis, with society for the first time in many years rent by political bitternesses, finishes in gloom which is deeper than any which has been experienced in living memory.

The Goodwood began on Tuesday. The king was not present and there was a great falling off in the attendance. The prospect for the Cowes season is not a brilliant one. The war situation will keep the king away, as well as a number of important visitors, especially distinguished persons from the continent, notably Prince Henry of Prussia.

Many Kept in London.

Nevertheless, the very reasons which cast a cloud on the last week of the season kept more people in London than usual. But this did not make the city any gayer than is its usual wont, for even the most frivolous seemed to realize the gravity of the situation. It did not need the placards of the newspapers to tell them that there was a crisis, as that has been written in the very air.

Socially, then, the season has not been a great one. The entertainments have been numerous, but most of them have been small, intimate, or impromptu affairs. Much of this is accounted for by the heat of political feeling over the Irish troubles.

Commercially the season has been the worst in many years. Depression was in evidence everywhere.

Many Americans in London.

There is considerable American activity in London just at present. American surgeons are here in large numbers for their annual congress. Dr. J. B. Murphy of Chicago is presiding over the Clinical congress of North America, which for the first time has been held outside the United States.

The city of Chicago had a commission here investigating the methods of managing English railroad terminals. This commission is headed by John Wallace.

DUTCH QUEEN BIG EATER.

Wilhelmina Takes Seven Meals a Day and Weighs as Much as Two Kings.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Aug. 1.—Queen Wilhelmina does not make the gastronomical sacrifices for her figure that the majority of women of today do. Indeed, her majesty is the greatest epicure among present day ruling sovereigns.

According to a party of French journalists returned from Holland, where they had the run of the royal palaces, Wilhelmina favors fish, meat, fruit, Burgundy and champagne at nearly every meal. The prince consort is his own cellarman, taking the greatest interest in his wines:

Here is a typical day's menu:

3 a. m.—Coffee with whipped cream; a dozen pieces of cut bread and butter.

10 a. m.—Two hot meat or fish patties; cheese.

2 p. m.—Lunch; usually hors d'œuvres, fish, roast beef, fowl, dessert, wine.

4 p. m.—Tea, ham sandwiches.

7 p. m.—Dinner, consisting of eight courses.

10 p. m.—Biscuits, liqueurs, and bed.

The queen looks remarkably well on this diet and weighs as much as the kings of Spain and Italy together.

NORWAY-SWEDEN FRIENDLY.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 1.—The cordial way in which the 120 members of the Swedish parliament were treated during their recent visit to Christiania during the Norwegian centenary celebration is taken here as proof of increased friendship and understanding between the two countries. One result is a proposed visit of King Haakon to Sweden next year, although no plans have been yet made.

BIRTH RATE LOSS IS WORLD-WIDE

Economic Burdens Bring General Strike Against Parenthood.

FEMINIST MOVE CAUSE.

BY J. O. P. BLAND.
[LONDON LETTER TO THE TRIBUNE.]

The last census returns in England and France point unmistakably to the menace of race suicide which threatens to affect the whole fabric of European civilization—race suicide brought about by the increasing pressure of economic burdens under modern industrial organization in great cities and by the new gospel of prudent individualism which is leading to the deliberate limitation of childbirth. Looking at the statistics of population in England, France, Germany, the United States, Australia, and other countries, there is no escape from the conclusion that the wage earners of today have come to accept and to put into practice the principles of philosophic individualism proclaimed long ago by Adam Smith and Malthus, principles evolved from economic changes in their environment which prompt them to better their material condition at all costs.

Long before this planet had shown anything like its present signs of congestion and diminishing resources philosophers and economists had foreseen the day when the collective intelligence of the masses would come to perceive that the only hope of raising their standard of material well being must lie in the restriction of their numbers.

World's Birth Rate Declines.

France, ever in the van of social idealism, was the first country of Europe to direct the new doctrines of personal freedom and economic advantage into a definite movement of public opinion making for the limitation of the family. In England it was not till 1880, when Bradlaugh and Mrs. Besant had profoundly disturbed the old "the Lord will provide" tradition, that the birth rate began to show symptoms of decline, which has since been rapid and continuous. Today the phenomenon is common to the whole civilized world. In France, where the General Confederation of Labor has for years advised workers to adopt a strike against parenthood, the population is actually declining in numbers—so much so that in certain industrial regions of northern and eastern France hireling indentured labor from Hungary, Africa, and even from China is being brought in to supplement the depleted ranks of the native bern. In North America the Anglo-Saxon and Teutonic birth rate has fallen during the last thirty years at a rate which, according to medical and statistical authorities, threatens to make the United States of a hundred years hence a country in which the negro and Hebrew-Slavic races must be numerically preponderant.

Feminist Movement a Factor.

If we examine the situation as it exists in England we find many economic and social factors, over and above the disintegrating tendencies of modern education, to account for the widespread adoption of neo-Malthusianism by the upper and lower middle classes.

In the first place, there is the feminist movement, insisting on the personal freedom of the married woman, on her right to an equal voice in regard to the birth and bringing up of children, and on her individual claim to regulate her life according to its economic and physical necessities.

Next, as I have pointed out in recent letters to THE TRIBUNE, under the present system of industrial and social organization, marriage and child bearing have actually become a bar to employment in the case of thousands; more than that, the state, by its income tax and other laws, levies a far heavier toll from the father of a family than from the bachelor.

It is true that modern Socialism is gradually tending to reduce these burdens and to recognize the community's obligations to the parent class, but so long as the individual parent continues to be mulcted in proportion to the size of his quiver full, so long must the strike against parenthood continue to spread. Therefore, patriotic citizens are becoming alarmed at the outlook. They see that if the British empire is to be maintained, it must be the business of the state to make parenthood worth while not only to produce men to bear arms but to persuade women to bear children.

Danger from "Lesser Breeds."

If neo-Malthusianism and the limitation of families were universally adopted on this planet its result would, no doubt, add greatly to the sum of human well being, mental and physical. But the danger of the self-denying ordinances of prudence now practiced by the civilized nations of western Europe appears to many to lie precisely in the fact that it threatens the eventual collapse of the whole fabric of civilization at the hands of "lesser breeds without the law," races whose moral code is blindly limited to the survival of the fittest and whose collective strength lies in hunger driven masses.

The individual Frenchman may enjoy greater personal comfort for a while by reducing the struggle for life on French soil, but his ease will have been dearly purchased, from the point of view of humanity, if eventually it should involve the wiping out of the French race, either by earth hungry Germany or by swarming millions from southern Europe and Africa. Parsons and publicists alike proclaim that, in the long run, armaments and intelligence cannot protect the race that has failed to replenish its stock of babies. There is nothing new about this gospel; its interest lies in its growing force. It is the idea that lay at the back of Mr. Roosevelt's denunciation of race suicide, and all recorded history proclaims it to be sound.

Individualism vs. the Race.

As a world problem affecting the highest interests of civilization, the question resolves itself into the immediate well-being of the individual, as opposed to the ultimate interests of the race. As matters stand in the armed camp of western Europe, the liberty of the individual it is clear, may be purchased at the cost of national extinction.

Soldiers and statesmen all over the world are rapidly coming to perception of this vital truth. The universal practice of family limitation is now recognized to be an immediate and inevitable result of modern science and humanitarism, of the medical and social measures taken by civilized communities to preserve and multiply the least useful members of the human family at the ultimate expense of the healthy and efficient. The state, in fact, with the best intentions, has been compelled by humanitarianism to penalize childbirth and thus to promote an artificial condition of society, which must, in time, make it comparatively defenseless against attacks from without.

Thinking men and women generally agree that if the modern state is to survive the pressure of industrialism and its effect on the individual, great changes must speedily be effected in social education and legislation. Constructive socialists like Mr. Wells and Mr. Sydney Webb declare that only by practical eugenics can we hope to arrive at a sound fabric of society, in which the state shall save the baby and the baby save the state.

The wider aspects of this world problem, whether discovered by humanitarians or by political economists, are too complex to allow of their reduction to any simple conclusions.

Yellow Peril Not Imminent.

Fifteen years ago, his majesty the kaiser, in a gloomy prophetic mood induced by the Boxer rising in China, drew a lurid picture of Armageddon to come, when the allied hosts of Christendom would have to fight for the survival of civilization against the invading hosts of Asia. This vision of the yellow peril still dominates the thoughts of men in many parts of the world. But for those who know the actual conditions of life in the east, it lacks most of the terrors which imaginative minds have seen in its sheer weight of numbers.

For that very procreative recklessness which makes the life struggle so fierce amongst oriental peoples must continue to prevent them, so long as it persists, from acquiring the wealth and the scientific equipment, without which their numbers can never avail against the organized defenses of Christendom. The east, in fact, has not reached that stage of evolution which might enable it to remodel its social system on strength giving lines, and until it reaches that stage, western Europe, America, and Australia can surely afford to disregard the yellow peril as a factor in their national treatment of the problem of the baby and the state.

AUSTRIAN HEIR LIKES MOVIES

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, is passionately fond of the movies. While he was quartered at Payerbach-Reichenau some years ago he was surprised on one of his visits to the local picture theater to find the imperial flag hoisted over the building. When he inquired the reason the manager replied, "To celebrate the one hundredth visit of your imperial highness to our theater."

Countess Who Was a Gaiety Girl.

COUNTESS POULETT

The Countess Poulett previous to her marriage in 1908 was Sylvia Storey and one of the prettiest members of the Gaiety chorus. She has a handsome little son, Viscount Hinton, who is now 5 years old. The story of the Poulett peerage is romantic, the present earl having had a rival for the title in the person of a young man who earned his living as an organ grinder. The story goes that the earl's father, when a lieutenant in the army, once bet that he would offer to marry the first woman whom he met in the streets. He won the bet and married the daughter of a Landport pilot, one Elizabeth Newman. Later, when a child was born, the young lieutenant denied the paternity and sailed away to fight the Afghans. The situation only became dramatic, however, when, by the death of his cousin, he succeeded as sixth Earl Poulett in 1864. The disowned child grew up to marry a lady of the ballet and was a stage clown before he took to organ grinding. The house of lords rejected his claim to the earldom.

CHRISTIANIA'S FAMOUS HOTEL IS IN ASHES.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Tourists of all nationalities will deplore the recent destruction by fire of the Holmenkollen Tourist hotel, the unique central attraction of Christiania's winter sports ground.

The Holmenkollen was more than a hotel in the English sense. It was a museum of Norwegian antiques set in a building where Norwegian art had been allowed full license. Quaint as the building appeared externally in the old Norwegian style of wooden architecture and the eleventh century dragon head carvings, it presented even greater surprise to those who entered its portals.

Englishmen had a particular fancy for the Telemark room, a combined kitchen-bed-sitting-room, a replica of the dwelling of the well to do farmer in Telemarken. Over the wooden beds decorated in Norwegian peasant style were the carved inscriptions:

Hvor laeugo hvar Adam in Paradis?
("Hod long was Adam in Paradise?") and

("Goods and land you get from your parents, but a good wife comes from God.").

GERMAN PLANS SOLD TO RUSSIA.

GETS 15 YEAR SENTENCE

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, July 21.—One of the most serious espionage affairs with which the German authorities have ever had to deal came before a court-martial of the Berlin command recently, and resulted in the severest sentence that has ever been given in recent times in a case of this description.

The accused is a German sergeant named Pohl. He was arrested about two weeks ago on a charge of betraying military secrets to Russia. After short preliminaries the proceedings were continued behind closed doors, and at 3 o'clock the court was opened to the public for the reading of the sentence. Pohl was condemned to fifteen years' hard labor and ten years' loss of civil rights and police supervision, and to dismissal from the army. Twenty-five pounds found in his possession was confiscated.

Sold Secrets to Russia.

The case has some extraordinary features. It was debt that drove the sergeant to betray his country. Being in need of a considerable sum of money, he entered into negotiations with Col. Basarov, the military attaché at the Russian embassy, to whom he sold for something like £25 plans of the fortresses of Pillau and Boyen. Pillau is a fort on the Frisian coast, and Boyen a comparatively unimportant place in East Prussia.

He was then asked by the attaché to obtain sketches of Borkum and Heligoland, and the sergeant, having secured sketches of those two important places, arranged a meeting with Col. Basarov. The authorities by this time were, however, on Pohl's track, and the meeting at which the plans would have passed into the possession of Russia never took place. In the nick of time Pohl was arrested. Hearing of this, Col. Basarov suddenly left Berlin and, though statements have been made dissociating him with the case, it may be taken as certain that he is implicated and has been recalled to St. Petersburg.

Expose Russia's Spy System.

Pohl was also acquainted with a merchant named Kurt Kaul, who went under the name of Dr. Blumenthall and who was engaged in espionage on behalf of Russia in Germany. Between Pohl and Kaul no "business" seems to have been done, but the latter was in direct and frequent communication with Col. Basarov. Kaul was arrested at the same time as Pohl, and investigations proved that the Russian system of espionage in Germany is thoroughly and extensively organized.

Another curious feature of the affair is that Pohl, who comes of good family—his father being a government official—served in the army for nine years. Rather more than eighteen months ago he was appointed to the position of clerk in the engineer inspection department of the army in Berlin. His salary was only £84 yearly, and it is remarkable that a man of that position and salary should have access to Germany's most important military plans.

NEW DISEASE FOUND FROM DENTAL WORK.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Prof. Erich Harnack, the famous Jena pharmacist, announces the discovery of a new disease. It is a sort of chronic copper poisoning which may prove fatal. It is caused by bridge work on the teeth. Some of this work which was examined showed that only one-third was gold and two-thirds of other metals, especially copper. This has resulted in slow poisoning, nervous collapse, and general decay. Prof. Harnack warns people against this inferior alloy, saying it is even more dangerous than pure copper or zinc because of its contact with other metals.

A MARTYR TO THE WAR GOD.

If nations run amuck, why not individuals?

Mme. Caillaux kills an editor because he had published a private letter of hers, and a jury acquits her after a loose-geared and political trial. Jean Jaures, a gifted, sober-minded, scholarly, and popular statesman, the leader of a solid and moderate Socialist party, is assassinated by a "patriot" who gives as his excuse the fact that Jaures, in parliament and in press and platform, had steadily and vigorously opposed the three years' service law. This, says the assassin, was treason to the nation, and he had merely punished and removed a dangerous traitor.

No man in public life is safe where such fanatics are at large, and, alas, they are at large everywhere and at all times. But the simple truth is that poor Jaures was one of the most enlightened and patriotic of Frenchmen. Orator, editor, Socialist leader, statesman, he wielded extraordinary power and influence, but he never used his talents on the side of destruction. He was essentially a constructive thinker. When challenged by the masterful and able champion of individualism, Clemenceau, to produce an alternative political program, Jaures was found ready. His opposition to the three years' service measure was not based on sentimental or quixotic grounds; he did not ignore realities and the needs or perils of France. He had an alternative to that measure, and one which impressed serious and independent thinkers not only in France but in countries friendly to France. He proposed a democratic army, a national guard, a mighty reserve force, instead of a mere increase of the standing army.

Strangely enough, the present premier of France, Viviani, is a Socialist and a former ally and friend of Jaures. Viviani accepted the new service act with extreme reluctance, as a lesser evil, while promising to modify it at the first opportunity. The opportunity may be long in coming, as things now stand, but the premier did not foresee the present crisis when he took office and formulated his program.

Poor Jaures! He labored unselfishly for humanity, for progress, for justice and peace. He commanded the respect of his political foes. He was one of the most brilliant and judicious of contemporary French thinkers. Yet he dies at the hands of a stupid, erratic "patriot." Again the irony of fate.

SWEETS FOR THE YOUNG.

The golden age of childhood approaches. Other golden ages are in the setting sun. Their rubric fades. They are glories of tradition. Childhood, twice happy, is walking with certain feet, directly toward its golden time.

In the old days of brass tipped, red topped boots sweets were known to be unwholesome. Craving for them was to be killed down by bread and butter or by bread and milk. "Well, if you don't want to eat that good bread and butter, you're not hungry, that's all." A plea for a little sugar on it met adamantine refusal. It wasn't good for you. It decayed the teeth; it upset the digestion; it made you sick; it took away the appetite.

A raid on the brown-sugar bowl might result in an invitation to wait until father came home and then ascertain the consequences of misbehavior. Catastrophes in the pantry, involving jam and treacherous chairs, constituted the tragedy of childhood. Of a winter night when there was a clean white spread of snow caution might be relaxed and a taffy pulling had. Waiting for the taffy to cool in the snow was a long drawn out vexation. Christmas brought another relaxation in the shape of a small stocking full of hard candies. But sweets were taboo.

Now it is known and conceded that there is need in the chemistry of youth for candy. Sweets are demanded. That is why you wanted sugar on the bread and butter. You were right and maternalism was benignant but misinformed. Your insides were truthfully impelling you to raids on the jam closet and the brown sugar bowl. Loaf sugar was not much affected then and you would not have cared for it anyway. It lacks the body and savor of the old fashioned light brown sugar.

You wanted sweets "or heat and energy—" to balance the fats." You were wise as old nature itself. The golden days approach when a ration of sweets shall be handed out to childhood. The kingdom of candy is its legitimate domain—to be ruled temperately and enjoyed with discretion, but nevertheless to be inhabited.

THE TWILIGHT OF THE KINGS.

Before establishing hell on earth the pietistic kings commend their subjects to God. Seek the Lord's sanction for the devil's work.

"And now I commend you to God," said the kaiser from his balcony to the people in the street. "Go to church and kneel before God and pray for His help for our gallant army."

Pray that a farmer dragged from a Saxon field shall be speedier with a bayonet thrust than a winemaker taken from his vines in the Aube; that a Berlin lawyer shall be steadier with the rifle than a Moscow merchant; that a machine gun manned by Heidelburg students shall not jam and that one worked by Paris carpenters shall.

Pray that a Bavarian hop grower, armed in a quarrel in which he has no heat, shall outmarch a wheat grower from Poltava; that Cossacks from the Don shall be lured into barbed wire entanglements and caught by masked guns; that an innkeeper of Salzburg shall blow the head off a baker from the Loire.

"Go to church and pray for help"—that the hell shall be hotter in innocent Ardennes than it is in equally innocent Hessen; that it shall be hotter in innocent Kovno than in equally innocent Posen.

And the pietistic czar commends his subjects to God that they may have strength of arm in a quarrel they do not understand; that they may inflict more sufferings than they are required to endure and the name of Romanoff be greater than the name of Hohenzollern, that it may be greater than the name of Hapsburg, that its territories shall be wider and the territories of Hohenzollern and the territories of Hapsburg less.

The pietistic emperor of Austria commends his subjects to God, to seek divine assistance to crush the peasants of Servia, dragged from the wheat field when it was ready for the scythe and given to the scythe themselves.

This is, we think, the last call of monarchy upon Divinity when Asmodeus walks in armor. The kings worship Baal and call it God, but out of the sacrifice will come, we think, a resolution firmly taken to have no more wheat growers and growers of corn, makers of wine, miners and fishers, artisans and traders, sailors and storekeepers offered up with prayer to the Almighty in a feudal slaughter, armed against each other without hate and without cause they know, or, if they knew, would give a penny which way it was determined.

This is the twilight of the kings. Western Europe of the people may be caught in this debacle, but never again. Eastern Europe of the kings will be remade and the name of God shall not give grace to a hundred square miles of broken bodies.

If Divinity enters here it comes with a sword to deliver the people from the sword.

WAR AND PEACE.

Europe has had forty-three years of peace. It is true there have been wars during that time, but they have been peripheral, not central. There was war in 1877 between Russia and Turkey, war in 1898 between Spain and the United States, war in South Africa in 1899, and the Russo-Japanese war in 1904. But these wars were either on the rim of Europe or in regions remote. While father and son, husband and sweetheart marched away, in the fatherlands were no smoke of burning villages, no ravaged farmsteads, no meadows drenched with blood. The grandsire told his tales of battle and bivouac to wondering children, but Europeans of this generation, though they have been conscripted and drilled, though they dwelled in what political rhetoric calls "an armed camp," probably have found it hard to think of war as a reality likely to befall them.

Europe's near half century of peace was in fact unprecedented. The half century that preceded was very different. After the fall of Napoleon in 1815 there was a period of comparative quiet, during which political reaction held sway and the fabric of society, shaken to its foundations by the great revolution and the genius of Napoleon, settled down in an oppressive peace. But the liberal uprisings of 1848 broke this unreal quiescence and the process of making the Europe of today began. In the year of the revolutions opened "the Italian wars," when Sardinia was defeated by Austria in the first of the struggles which were to end in united Italy. Four years later came the Crimean war, 1853 to 1856. Three years after the close of that foolish conflict Napoleon III. and the Italians overthrew Austria, thereby preparing, though unconsciously, the way for Sedan.

In 1864 Denmark lost Schleswig-Holstein and in 1866 Prussia and Italy fell upon Austria. Four years after Königgrätz, France fell before united Germany and the great cycle of wars which remade the map of Europe came to a close.

Thus from 1848 to 1870 the periods of peace were, roughly speaking, three, and four, and five years.

If Europe has been figuratively an "armed camp" in the last forty years, she was literally a battle field in the twenty years last preceding.

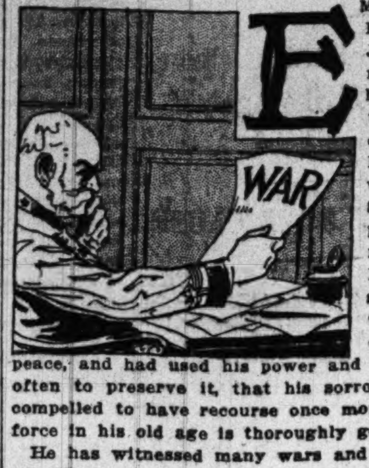
COLONEL STILL FOR WAR.

[From the Louisville Courier-Journal.]

It is but a waste of time to dwell now upon the mistakes and muddling of the last sixteen months. A quasi state of war does actually exist. Having given all parties time to determine for themselves what they are going do about it we should throw a resistless force into Vera Cruz and push on to the City of Mexico. If any one of the bandit chiefs sees fit to unite with us, well and good. If any one, or a dozen, get in the way brush them out of the way. Not otherwise shall we ever have peace, order and good neighborhood in Mexico, which long ago lost all claim to be considered as other than the seat of perpetual disturbance, costly to us, and bloody anarchism, ruinous to the Mexicans.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1914: By the Brentwood Co.]



EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH'S manifesto to his people on the subject of the declaration of war against Servia has a pathetic note in it. For he was so anxious to finish his days in peace, and had used his power and influence so often to preserve it, that his sorrow at being compelled to have recourse once more to armed force in his old age is thoroughly genuine.

He has witnessed many wars and is the oldest officer now living who can boast of having commanded an army in the field. He received his baptism of fire in the battle of Santa Lucia, prior to his accession to the throne when barely 18 years of age, while serving under Field Marshal Radetzky.

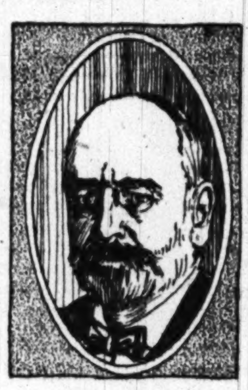
His advent to the crown only a few months later found Austria in a state of insurrection, Vienna in the hands of the rebels, and the imperial family and court in hiding within the walls of the stronghold of Olmutz.

His first task was to recapture Vienna, which was only accomplished with a good deal of bloodshed, and then he found himself confronted by the revolution of all Hungary, which was crushed with no little difficulty, with the assistance of a Russian army. Four years later his troops occupied the Wallachian principality, and it was his ultimatum to Russia in December, 1855, that compelled Emperor Alexander II. to come to terms and to thus bring the Crimean war to a close.

In 1859 Austria was once more at war, this time with France and Italy. After the first Austrian defeat Francis Joseph hastened to the front, assumed control of the army, and commanded in person at the great battle of Solferino.

The wars of 1859 and 1866 were disastrous to Francis Joseph. For in the first he lost his Italian province of Lombardy and was compelled to submit to the dethronement of the Hapsburg dynasty in the grandduchy of Tuscany and the annexation of the latter to the kingdom of Italy, while the war of 1866 cost him the city and province of Venice, which, although he had defeated Italy at sea and on land, he was obliged by Prussia, which had vanquished Austria at the battle of Sadowa, to abandon to the late King Victor Emmanuel.

Neither defeat nor loss of territory have ever interfered in the slightest degree with the affection of the Austrians for their emperor. Indeed, the popular manifestations of loyalty have always been particularly pronounced whenever the Austrians felt that their sovereign had been subjected to some great sorrow or distress.

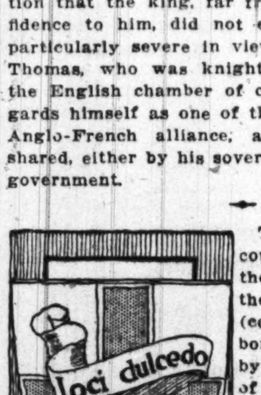


Lady Barclay, who was arrested the other day at Buckingham palace while endeavoring to force her way into the presence of the king in order to place in his hands a letter from the militant suffragist leader, Mrs. Pankhurst, is the Teuton wife of that Sir Thomas Barclay who was in 1908 the subject of so remarkable a notification by the English foreign office.

Sir Thomas, who is a frequent contributor to publications on this side of the ocean and almost as well known here as in Europe, in connection with his self-imposed work in behalf of international arbitration and peace, had given both crown and government in England a good deal of trouble and annoyance by the impression which he was able to create abroad, that he had some warrant for speaking in behalf of one and the other. The notification issued by the foreign office in behalf of Edward VII, to the English and foreign press ran as follows:

"A Vienna newspaper has published the account of an interview with Sir Thomas Barclay in regard to the present political situation, in which it is said that he is in the special confidence of the king. The foreign office has no information as to the authenticity of the newspaper account, but is authorized to say that any statement made by Sir Thomas Barclay can only represent his personal views; that he is not in any way in the confidence of the king or of his majesty's government, and that the king is not even personally acquainted with him."

Never before has so severe a disavowal been issued by the British crown and government as that concerning Sir Thomas Barclay, the intimation that the king, far from according his confidence to him, did not even know him, being particularly severe in view of the fact that Sir Thomas, who was knighted while president of the English chamber of commerce in Paris, regards himself as one of the chief authors of the Anglo-French alliance, a view which is not shared, either by his sovereign or by the English government.



The London county council, which is now the supreme authority of the British metropolis (comprising twenty-nine boroughs, each headed by a mayor, the smallest of the boroughs being the City of London, presided over by the lord mayor), has recently adopted a coat of arms and is now engaged in the selection of a suitable motto to adorn its escutcheon. Quite a number of mottoes were discussed at the last meeting of the county council, the one recommended by the general purposes committee, which had been instructed to advise in the matter, being as follows: Loci dulcedo nos attinet. The translation of this is, "The sweetness of the place holds us," and is taken from Tacitus, who referring to the withdrawal of the Romans under Suetonius from London in the reign of Queen Boadicea, speaks of the "sweetness of the place" and of the reluctance of the Romans to leave the city.

It is understood that this motto will be definitely adopted and will be included in the armorial bearings which King George is now about to sanction, by means of a royal warrant, on the recommendation of the Royal College of Heralds. But there are already some who attribute a double meaning to the motto, and who insist that it will be construed as referring to the fondness of the city fathers for office and their reluctance to surrender it. Indeed, there are many municipal officeholders in America to whom this motto of the London county council would seem particularly appropriate.

SANITARIA AND ADJACENT PROPERTY.

IN 1911 Chicago was preparing to build a tuberculosis sanitarium. An option on exactly the right piece of property at a low price was obtained. The property to the south of the tract was well built up, there being a school, a hospital, and a considerable number of private homes within three blocks of the south line. The property east, north, and west, having been used for truck farms for several years, was not divided into lots, and few people lived on it.

The opposition of the neighbors was great, and finally the trustees were forced to relinquish their option. The enforced change of location caused the city to lose $180,000. The piece which they finally purchased was not worth as much by $180,000 as the piece relinquished.

The determining cause of the failure of negotiations was a tangle in the title, but the tangle was of little consequence and would not have arisen had the objector not been stimulated. The underlying cause of the loss was the opposition of the neighbors.

The opposition was based upon two points. The people with tuberculosis in the sanitarium would be a menace to the people of the neighborhood and particularly to the children in the nearby school. It is to be borne in mind that there were 180 acres in the tract, and no building occupied by consumptives would be nearer the school than a quarter of a mile.

The real ground of opposition was the fear that the presence of the sanitarium would lessen the value of the nearby property. The opposition had its way. The trustees bought a piece of property a mile and a half farther out.

The sanitarium is nearing completion. A street car line is being built to the gate of the grounds. The first locality is still given over to truck farms, whereas the new locality is filling up with homes, and the newly opened streets are traveled.

The location of sanitaria is a live question. Many communities are called upon to take positions. Heads of families want to do what is necessary to protect their children. Owners of property want to protect their property. Officials want to act with wisdom.

This article is for the benefit of these groups. The facts for their guidance have been gathered, but the average man called upon to decide does not know where to get the facts, and he is liable to be misled, for, as Hamilton Mabie says, "Antiquated ideas and unfounded impressions still prevail among those who have not made a study of the subject."

There have been sanitaria for consumptives in Switzerland for more than fifty years. A number of years ago the Swiss government conducted investigations which led it to say that consumption hospitals, so far from increasing consumption among the neighbors, lessened it, and so far from decreasing the value of property around about, increased it.

In 1906 William H. Baldwin studied the same question in this country. His paper appears in the transactions of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis for 1906. The conclusion was that the location of a consumption sanitarium in a neighborhood lessened the amount of tuberculosis among the neighbors and increased the value of property in the neighborhood.

The National association has brought the matter down to date in a pamphlet just issued, entitled "The Effect of Tuberculosis Institutions on the Value and Desirability of Surrounding Property." This pamphlet can be had from the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East Twenty-second street, New York City, for the small sum of 10 cents.

The chapter headings are:

1. "A review of former investigations."
2. "Information gathered from eighty-four hospitals in all sections of the United States."
3. "Facts obtained in a first hand investigation of property values around five tuberculosis institutions of different types."
4. "A digest of several typical laws and ordinances."
5. "Opinions of eminent men, boards of health and insurance companies."
6. "Court decisions."
7. "Summary and conclusions."
8. "Appendix. Assessment values of properties near institutions."

We advise any community in which this is a live question to secure sufficient copies of this pamphlet to make the information contained generally available for their people.

In the case of Frazier vs. City of Chicago (186 Ill. 480) the Supreme court of Illinois held that a city had the right to establish a contagious disease hospital wherever the public good demanded and that the neighbors could not enjoin it nor could they recover for damage to their property. The court said:

"In the doing of an act clearly within the power of the city under its police power, where injury is the necessary result of the doing thereof, no redress can be had. Supposed damages growing out of the proper exercise of the police power must be considered damnum absque injuria, in the theory of the law that the plaintiff is compensated for the injury sustained by sharing in the general benefits which are secured to all by reason thereof."

This opinion, held generally as the law of the question, is to the effect that a community has the right to build a sanitarium regardless of the objections of the neighbors, and the neighbors cannot recover damages.

The authorities, however, never want to go that far. The building of a sanitarium should be with the implied consent of the neighboring property owners, because of the increased value of their property from the increased demand for property in the neighborhood.

In Baldwin's article quoted by the pamphlet cited 58 per cent of the localities reported that the sanitaria had improved the value of neighboring property. In 35 per cent there had been no change. In 7 per cent there had been depreciation. In one of the last groups the property reported as depreciated was within 800 feet of the sanitarium; in another, within 1,500 feet, and in two other cases the reporters said the presence of the sanitarium had prevented the sale of property.

In 1909 Jacobs sent a list of questions to thirty-seven institutions in twenty-two states. The questions went to superintendents, real estate dealers, and others. The answers showed that 76.5 of the institutions had improved the value of nearby property. In only one instance had the sanitarium decreased the value of property.

To the questions sent out by the association in 1913, replies came from eighty-four localities. In sixty-four the property had increased in value as a result of the sanitaria. In fourteen values had not been changed. In six cases the answers were too indefinite for classification.

Dr. Garvin of Raybrook reports that the value of land around there was about $4 before the sanitarium started. It now ranges from $50 to $160 an acre.

Dr. Lyman of Wallingford, Conn., reported: "All land has more than doubled in value."

Dr. English of Glen Gardner, N. J.: "Increased at least 50 per cent."

Dr. Nichols of Hebron, Me.: "Increase of about 20 per cent of valuation and tax."

Dr. Butts of Eagleville, Pa.: "Increase 25 to 50 per cent."

Dr. Pettit of Ottawa, Ill.: "Increase 33 1-3 per cent."

Dr. Sauer of Hospital and House of Rest, New York City: "Increase at least 100 per cent."

Dr. Barnes of Wallum Lake, R. I.: "Land at least double what it was before sanitarium was erected."

Dr. Chadwick of Westfield, Mass.: "Twenty-five per cent to 30 per cent increase."

Dr. Pottenger of Monrovia, Cal.: "It has increased."

Those institutions in the main have been located in the country on property of little value, in regions seldom visited. There are some exceptions, but this is true in the main.

The effect of the sanitarium is much the same as that from locating any other large plant in such a neighborhood. More people travel to and from the town; more use is made of the streets and roads; more houses are built to house the increased population, and more stores, hotels, and livery stables are maintained to serve them.

The more intensive studies of the association were, therefore, made in the main in larger cities where already there were traffic, crowded streets, houses, and stores.

Seton hospital is in upper New York City. A piece of property adjoining Seton was assessed at $220 in 1900 and $7,000 in 1913. The tax assessor for the district counts the hospital as an asset to the property of the vicinity. The neighborhood is slowly filling up with high grade residences.

Sprain Ridge hospital is located in a sparsely settled portion of Yonkers, N. Y. The property increased in assessed value 57 per cent between 1907 and 1914. Property in the immediate vicinity, but not adjoining, increased 51 per cent in the same period. There is more building activity in the neighborhood than is general in Yonkers.

The Bowne Memorial hospital is located one-half a mile from Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Assessed values of property have gone up about 10 per cent since 1908.

The Montefiore home is located near Bedford station, thirty miles from New York City. The increase in value of the adjoining real estate is about the same as that of other real estate in the same type of country.

Gaylord farm, Wallingford, Conn., is a few miles out of New Haven. The increase in the value of adjoining property is about normal. The owners of adjoining property do not feel that the sanitarium has injured their property.

In addition to the increase in the value of property there has been shown a consensus of opinion that the presence of a sanitarium has induced improvements in the adjacent property.

Dr. Butts of Eagleville, Pa., reports: "New homes have sprung up from time to time and at present quite a large building operation within four squares of the sanitarium is nearing completion."

ARTIFICIAL CHANGE OF LIFE.

Mrs. J. F. writes: "Kindly tell me the cause of hot flashes, nervousness, overanxiousness, physical weakness, stupidity, laziness, and everything that tends to make up a human wreck. I had an operation some years past. The sexual tubes were removed. I had no trouble with the operation, which was quite a success, but since I have been on the verge of prostration and have had quite a lot of financial troubles which worry me. I am as irritable as can be. I have palpitation of the heart terribly. I awake quite suddenly from really no cause. I have nervous indigestion. Is my case hopeless?"

REPLY.

My guess is that you are suffering from lack of ovarian secretion. Possibly you would be helped by the use of preparations of ovary.

However, you will be helped more by cultivating poise. Your trouble is self-limited. It does not threaten your life. Therefore be cheerful. That will help you more than spoon medicine.

METCHNIKOFF'S THEORY.

B. E. T. writes: "Do scientific men take seriously the theory that old age is caused by a microbe and that it is possible that an antidote in the way of some other substance to counteract the action of such a microbe may be discovered? What do you think of such a theory? What has been done along this line?"

REPLY.

You are confused. Metchnikoff's theory is that fermentation in the large intestine is a contributing factor to senility; that men do not wear out until a later period, when they are protected.

Many scientists accept the Metchnikoff view. Many do not.

A great deal of experimental and other research work has been done. Many preparations based on the Metchnikoff theory are on the market.

INFORMATION ON LICE.

P. C. R. writes: "Where may the pamphlet on the extermination of body lice, recently mentioned by you, be secured?"

REPLY.

The Chicago health department issues a small circular telling the method employed by the school nurses. Ask at the health department.

The state board of health of Pennsylvania issues an excellent circular on insects [lice included]. Citizens of that state can get it from the office at Harrisburg.

ORDERED TO IMPROVE CONDITIONS.

Chicago, July 27.—[To the Friend of the People.]—July 7 I wrote you complaining of the West Side Brewing company, 911 North Paulina street, about the dust which falls from the roof of the boiler room and from the cinder chute. I noticed your answer to my inquiry. The cinder chute has been taken care of and no more dust comes from it. The chimneys are in same condition as before and we are getting more dust than ever.

FRANK DECKERT.

Respecting the complaint of dust escaping from the premises of the West Side Brewing company, 909 North Paulina street, it appears that a complicated apparatus for the handling of the cinders has recently been constructed at a cost of about $2,000. When this is in operation four or five times a day some fine dust escapes from it. A nuisance is created in this way which is now the subject of an order for its abatement.

BILLBOARD MUST BE CHANGED.

Chicago, July 29.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In reference to billboard at 2446-48 Clybourn avenue, on investigation I find that a board has been maintained at aforesaid address for a number of years, and had been reconstructed May 18, 1914. As it stands at present the board is in violation, being 16 feet above grade, where the ordinances allow only 15 feet 6 inches. Also the space beneath the board should be open 3 feet 6 inches from the ground. This has been brought to the attention of the Thomas Cusack company and they will make board comply with the ordinances at once.

HENRY ERICSSON,
Commissioner of Buildings.

SHOULD FILE A PETITION.

Chicago, July 28.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me when the water and sidewalk improvements will be made on Monticello avenue between Argyle street and the river.

B. IVERSEN,
2137 North Lawndale avenue.

No proceedings have yet been instituted for the construction of sidewalks by special assessment on Monticello avenue, between Argyle street and the north branch of the Chicago river. If a petition of the owners of property fronting on the above street between the points aforesaid is presented to the board of local improvements the board will institute proceedings for the construction of such sidewalk by special assessment.

A water main will be constructed in Monticello avenue, between Argyle street and Carmen avenue, in the summer of 1915.

Chicago, July 25.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I had a lease on a flat for one year running from May 1 to April 30, and I moved out in March, when I found what I thought a better flat. After I moved out the landlord relet the flat that I had a lease on about the 10th of April, which, of course, she had a right to do, but she wants me to pay for the April rent, saying she did not collect any from the new tenant for that month. Has she any right to give the new tenant a month's free rent and try and make me pay for it?

The lease which I had with her reads that should I vacate the flat before the lease expires the lessor may relet the place and apply the proceeds upon this lease.

A. B.

You are liable for the rent for the full term of your lease, and where the tenant to whom the premises are leased after you moved out the landlord can hold you for the full amount. The situation is different where the landlord agrees to allow the other tenant to stay in possession without paying rent. In the latter situation you are relieved from liability.

SURETY BONDS FOR BANK DEPOSITS.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Today's editorial on "Bank Supervision" is timely and pertinent. Private banks very commonly attempt to mislead the public by advertising the responsibility and "resources" for the protection of depositors. National banks and state banks also stoop to deceit in advertising as "United States Depository" and "Depository for State Funds." In boasting thus, the object is to leave the impression that the bank so advertising is regarded as sound and safe by the authorities. Far from this being the case, the bank is required to protect such national or state deposits by a surety bond. How many of the banks would care to state this fact in connection with the proud claim of being the "depository" of public funds?

All banks should be required to protect their depositors by surety company bonds. No legislation would be necessary to compel this if the people only understood. The banks advertising such protection would surely get the deposits, which would force all banks to apply for such bonds, and the unsound banks would not stand the test of a private surety company's rigid examination and would, therefore, be unable to offer the protection and induce deposits.

BOASTING AMERICAN TOURISTS.

Chicago, July 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Why is it that the correspondents of American papers in Europe make the American people believe that it is the American who fills the first class hotels in Europe, that it is the American who keeps up the baths and resorts, that it is the American who fills the pockets of the merchants, that it is the American who keeps up the gambling places like Monte Carlo?

The Americans do not spend more money than other nationalities; they only make more fuss over spending what they do spend. I have been in Europe several times, visiting most of the important places, but I found other nationalities in the majority. I was always glad to meet my country people, but not always proud of their behavior. They think the Americans are a superior race and everything European is inferior. Have you ever met them in Europe?

SMALL BUSINESS HAS NO VOICE.

Chicago, July 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In reading the reports of the sittings of the industrial commission one is led to believe that "big business" and organized labor (Shall we call it big labor?) represent all that is of interest in the subject.

Why not get some "light" on unorganized labor and small business? To one who has watched recent events big business and big labor are amply able to look after their own interests, and they are doing so to perfection, from their viewpoint. The big brothers of this industrial family have been "getting theirs" for a number of years, and the little brothers, and their name is legion, have been paying the freight.

Unorganized labor should not be considered a discard if for no other reason than because it has no one to speak for it in the press and during investigations. Small business takes its medicine from big labor and says nothing. It can't, it has not the breath even to whisper in the big noise. And small business lacks in the buying power of its big brother. Is it any wonder so small a percentage keep afloat?

But unorganized labor is the greatest sufferer. Not a single chance to protect itself from the pressure of its two big brothers but suicide.

WHY HUNGARY LOST OUT.

Chicago, July 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In 1848-49 Hungary, whose constitutional rights had been taken away by Austria, defeated the Austrian army, but instead of following up the victory Hungary stood still on the border under the plea that it had complied with the constitution and beaten the invader. The Austrian government afterwards formed a coalition with Russia, which sent a large army into Hungary, which with the Austrian army and those of the Servian nations on the south, warring against them, were too much for the Hungarians. The consequence was that the liberals of Austria who waited for the victorious Hungarians also had to succumb, and the further consequence that the liberals of Germany and of France lost out. If the Hungarians had not been such constitutional sticklers the greater part of Europe would have become republics. Does this answer the joint resolution advocated as an amendment to the constitution?

Chicago, July 24.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When the terms of a will place the trusteeship of an estate in the hands of a trust company, is it necessary or desirable that the will should be probated? E. F.

It will probably be necessary to have the will probated in order that the trusteeship may be properly carried out. A trust company would be glad to advise as to the terms of such a will and the procedure necessary to carry out the terms.

SMALL BUSINESS HAS NO VOICE.

Chicago, July 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In reading the reports of the sittings of the industrial commission one is led to believe that "big business" and organized labor (Shall we call it big labor?) represent all that is of interest in the subject.

Why not get some "light" on unorganized labor and small business? To one who has watched recent events big business and big labor are amply able to look after their own interests, and they are doing so to perfection, from their viewpoint. The big brothers of this industrial family have been "getting theirs" for a number of years, and the little brothers, and their name is legion, have been paying the freight.

Unorganized labor should not be considered a discard if for no other reason than because it has no one to speak for it in the press and during investigations. Small business takes its medicine from big labor and says nothing. It can't, it has not the breath even to whisper in the big noise. And small business lacks in the buying power of its big brother. Is it any wonder so small a percentage keep afloat?

But unorganized labor is the greatest sufferer. Not a single chance to protect itself from the pressure of its two big brothers but suicide. C. M. L.

WHY HUNGARY LOST OUT.

Chicago, July 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In 1848-49 Hungary, whose constitutional rights had been taken away by Austria, defeated the Austrian army, but instead of following up the victory Hungary stood still on the border under the plea that it had complied with the constitution and beaten the invader. The Austrian government afterwards formed a coalition with Russia, which sent a large army into Hungary, which with the Austrian army and those of the Servian nations on the south, warring against them, were too much for the Hungarians. The consequence was that the liberals of Austria who waited for the victorious Hungarians also had to succumb, and the further consequence that the liberals of Germany and of France lost out. If the Hungarians had not been such constitutional sticklers the greater part of Europe would have become republics. Does this answer the joint resolution advocated as an amendment to the constitution?

Summer Season Ends in Failure for Most of Ambitious Tuft Hunters.

NO TITLE FOR CARNEGIE

BY LADY MARY.

LONDON, July 18.—The fun is practically all over. As I write all kinds of vehicles are dashing along laden with luggage. The heat is desperate and people want to be off to fresh scenes and pastures new.

It has been the worst matrimonial season on record. Mothers and daughters are going away with a miserable sense of failure. I never remember so many dances, mostly boy and girl affairs, for which the invitations were issued in the names of sons and daughters, the parents this summer being put quite on the shelf.

"No, mother, I really cannot have you at my dance," many a girl has told her mater firmly. "Your presence would mean that no end of 'old' people would have to be invited." Suppers for such affairs were sumptuously done, for the "nut" will have things properly presented and his champagne of the choicest brand. After these functions many a mother has invited her friends next day to luncheon to eat up the débris.

American women seemed to be determined they would make their British friends do most of the entertaining. They quite rested on their oars, though they were always present in great numbers at public balls. I am told when Miss Edythe Havemeyer becomes Lady Euston she intends to restore the American woman to her place as a hostess. But she looks so dignified and quiet you would not have thought it of her. Some time ago I was sitting near her at a cinema and whether the story unfolded was grim or humorous she scarcely moved a muscle, which is the orthodox way to behave from a social point of view in the best set here.

London Society Likes "Movies."

The cinema has been a feature of the season. When people wanted a rest they went and looked at the pictures because this required no mental strain. I think it was the "Portugals" that made the picture palace so popular in the best set. It is no uncommon thing to see Manuel and his Augusta sitting side by side, his hand in hers just like a pair of trippers. O, the appalling untruths that have been told about these two, who are just like a pair of turtle doves. He has got very rotund of late, a fact which is awfully distressing to his mother, Queen Amelia, who is prescribing for him as she did for his father, whom he is becoming more and more like every day. Manuel gets the medicine made up at my chemist's, but the story goes he puts the prescribed dose three times a day into the waste paper basket.

Peeress Makes Paper Boats.

It afforded a delightful domestic picture to see the richest American peeress in London, Lady Granard, making paper boats on a lake in St. James' park, the other morning, to amuse her little girls. She took a letter out of her bag and just as cleverly as Shelley, the poet, might have done it, she fashioned it into wee boats and sent them down stream, much to the delight of the youngsters, bonny little girls showing already abnormal intelligence. There seemed to be no nurses with them, and for once the wife of the master of the horse was dressed as simply as could be in white linen and one of the new white muslin hats. Lady Moira Forbes, the elder child, is as like her grandmother, Mrs. Ogden Mills, as one pea is like another, and she speaks with a slight American accent. She is tall for her age, with a piquant, rather than pretty, face.

Like all the political hostesses, Lady Granard gave a good many parties this season, and had to invite many people whom it must have rubbed her the wrong way to receive. In days gone by, it appears, it was just as aristocratic to be a Liberal as a Tory, but now it is regarded as a frightful social sin to be a Radical, and women of that creed have been cut dead all the summer.

Strand Draws Americans.

Since Lord Lytton took his new house in Buckingham street, off the Strand, one or two interesting Americans, notably Lady Maidstone, want abodes in the same quarter. It is a wise man who can foretell which district of London is going to be the fashion next, and certainly the airless Strand is the very last spot one would have dreamed any individual who loves health and oxygen would have selected. Of course, it is the literary associations that hang about this part that appeals both to Lord Lytton and also to Lady Maidstone. Bernard Shaw lives in Adelphie terrace, Anthony Hope Hawkins also has a den there, and so has Sir James Barrie. Some of her intimates say that Lady Maidstone [she was Miss Margaretta Drexel, daughter of Anthony Drexel] is about to publish a volume of sonnets which are said to be exceptionally original and pathetic.

Lady Maud Manners Better.

Lady Diana Manners said for several days after the famous social catastrophe on the Thames, when Sir Denis Anson was drowned, that the world was no place for her and that she must desert it for an Anglican nunnery. Some people believed she meant it and, strange as it may appear, she really did. However, she is better and only mentions now that wild horses will not drag her near the Thames as long as her name is Diana.

At a party the other night she was for a long time talking to Sir Ernest Cassel, apparently telling him all about the disaster. Poor Sir Ernest rarely goes to parties in these days. He prefers to stay with his canaries at Brook House. It is pathetic to see his great Park Lane residence looking so deserted. He has aged in appearance a good deal since the death of his daughter, and, though his friends keep on telling him to remarry, those who know him best say he never will. It used to be said at one time that he had a great admiration for Mrs. John Jacob Astor, but she does not seem to have much use for any man in the capacity of prospective husband. It would be a social grievance of the utmost gravity were two people so rich to marry. He said to a friend lately that he considered Miss Page, the American ambassador's daughter, one of the most interesting girls he had ever met, her conversation was so amusing.

Lady Ellenborough, who was Hermione, daughter of the late E. W. H. Schenley of Pittsburgh, has some of the cleverest pets in London or anywhere else. She has a wonderful knack of getting animals to do anything for her. Her parrot, however, must have had instruction from another quarter, for his language is far from parliamentary. The bird is the first creature that has taught Lord Ellenborough to laugh.

A New Salem.

by Robert Herrick

"BEFORE the ashes are cool plans for rebuilding Salem are being considered," so the newspapers print. This has become the proper formula for the day after a great disaster in an American city. One recalls how in Chicago the first board shacks for offices went up while the fire was still eating the remains of the old city. It has a fine flavor of defiance of bad fortune, this immediate vigorous starting of new life after trouble, and we are justly proud of it as distinctively American. It was Kipling who paid homage to this reckless, dauntless courage of our people: "And match with destiny for beers."

We have faith in the future, courage, energy. Time and again our spirit has risen indomitable in the face of disaster. So with old Salem.

The governor of Massachusetts has appointed a commission to have charge of the rebuilding of Salem. The chairman of the commission is a well known architect of the highest standing as an aritst. Every one hopes that Salem will rise from her ashes not the same old phœnix but a much better made one. Will she? What will the commission do for her? What can it do?

One remembers with misgiving the recent case of San Francisco. There a fire after the earthquake swept clean the malformed, ugly business part of the city. There had been much complaint with the old San Francisco because it had haphazardly made so little of its superb natural situation, also because of its inconvenience and tawdriness—so much so that its citizens had got together and invited the celebrated city planner, the late Mr. Burnham, to make plans for a new and beautiful city for them, with fine thoroughfares, much needed, especially one between the ferry and the single railroad station in the city. They were much talked about and boasted of at banquets, I believe. They give excellent dinners in San Francisco, and along with the champagne there effervesced much civic patriotism and pride, of course.

Then, as if by act of Providence, came along the earthquake and the fire to clean the slate for the new city. What did San Francisco do with its unique opportunity? Nothing—practically nothing. After all those splendid plans and civic enthusiasm it managed to widen one of its streets a few feet and reserve a city block for the "civic center" to be some day. In place of the flimsy old wooden buildings there went up at once brick and steel and cement "permanent improvements," so permanent, alas! that unless a second earthquake manages to shake them down San Francisco will never again have the opportunity to make itself over except at prohibitory expense and with impossible legal delays. San Francisco poured itself more solidly than ever into the old molds.

Of course it had abundant human excuse for its error, as there always is for doing the easy thing. The city was prostrated after the disaster. Credit was strained. Men had all they could do to keep above water, and could not worry with civic improvements. It was terribly necessary to get to work at once to provide the destitute with jobs and the merchants with customers who had money in their pockets. So the man who owned a plot of land, no matter how small, could not be expected to wait upon the leisure of city beautiful dreamers and architects' plans. He got into his ruins and began to dig for new foundations before the stones of the old ones were cool.

Thus I am afraid it will be with Salem in spite of the governor's distinguished commission, which must be largely advisory in power, not mandatory.

Salem as Hawthorne knew it in the middle of the last century was a decaying seaport town that had once had the ambition of being the first city of the Bay state colony. Of its former splendor almost nothing was left but the custom house, where a few political derelicts dozed away their idle days as the novelist has so pleasantly described in the famous preface to "The Scarlet Letter." Moreover, it was a small town of aristocratic old houses with large gardens where representatives of the very best Puritan families still lived in a forlorn, desiccated atmosphere of "had been." For the ablest members of the old families—the Peabodys, the Rantouls, the Endicotts, and their kind—had got out and moved to Boston, as the active members of any aristocracy are sure to follow, not the flag, but the tide of trade, wherever it floods. Such an invasion of Boston by these old Salem swells had there been that one Bostonian sourly complained to me once, "There are no real Boston families in Boston any longer. These are all Salem families now living in Boston." When I inquired more particuluarly what he might mean I discovered that he referred to the exodus of true Boston Tories at the time of the American revolution.

The Notebooks of Hawthorne are full of keen references to the dead Salem of his day. They give ample evidence of the social stagnation that the novelist experienced in the old witch city. No wonder that he felt living there to be a dreary thing, and took his first chance to get out as his forefathers had done before him. He went to Boston as they went, then to Europe, and returned to Concord instead of to his decaying native town. As one reads these Notebooks one sees Hawthorne wandering disconsolately and idly over the old melancholy seaport, repelled by the large white mansions that housed a thin blooded aristocracy, driven back by the chill east wind from the Atlantic to his frugal hearth, there to dream of ghosts and witches and moral perversities that must go on behind the weatherbeaten clapboards of Salem houses.

No, the old clothes of an aristocrat are not worth a live man's jeans, Hawthorne seemed to feel.

It must have been just after the war, or just before, that the dead old town was invaded by manufacturing. Business crept in from Lynn, which, together with Chelsea, had been frankly common from the beginning, inhabited by nobodies who worked with their hands. Business probably came first (as it has largely since remained) in the form of leather tanning and the making of shoes, although the best known of those Salem mills burned the other day was the famous old Naumkeag cotton mills. Ever since I can remember Salem—and that is for a good many years—it has been known for the savory odor of its tanning hides.

The factory habit spread after the war; the modern industrial establishments girdled the witch town, and multiplied, especially along the railroad at its southern approach, near the harbor, edging back up the side streets toward the more aristocratic portions of the town. These old factories were wooden buildings for the most part, and no ornament, as they were not meant to be. What was worse, the new factory population was housed in tenements made over from the large colonial houses, a dozen or more French Canadian families packing into the home of some puritan worthy. Thus was made the worst sort of slum, the flimsy wooden slum of aristocratic dwellings decaying into base uses. Of course, these wooden tenements were veritable tinder boxes, as was shown when they went down like brush before the wind-swept flames.

At first this awakened Salem was manned by the sons and daughters of its puritan founders. The Anglo-Saxon bowed his head and went into the mill to work behind the loom. But the factory life must have eaten him up quickly, for already when I was a boy the cloth mills of Concord and Manchester, N. H., the shoe factories of Lynn and Salem and Newburyport were filling with French Canadians, who came for a season and went back north, their humble desires satisfied, much as later on the Italians have done. Latterly, however, these stately old towns have been invaded by south Europeans, and legends in unknown tongues adorn the pure colonial façades of many a mansion. And the outlandish accent, to the puritan ear, of many foreign languages may be heard on narrow by streets of Salem and Newburyport. Imagine the disgust of our puritan ancestors if they should stroll back through these old towns and see the dark skinned inhabitants swarming in their own orderly doorways!

Probably at least a third of Salem's 40,000 inhabitants before the fire had not one drop of English blood in their veins. Even the retail trade had been captured by the Jew and the Russian, the Greek and the Italian. These new Salemites did not make over their home to any extent; they crowded into the colonial houses and jostled the rare descendants of the old order on the narrow streets.

Salem has a lovely situation. It lies between two recesses of the sea, sheltered by the Beverly shore from the full fury of the northeasters, yet with so much sea water near at hand as to be never unbearable in summer. The colonial mansions for the most part ran up the backbone of the point of land between the two salt water bays, with short side streets, like ribs, drifting irregularly down hill. Probably the water front was marshy, which accounts for its being left to the factory invasion. The House of Seven Gables stands in the midst of a converted slum with a fine outlook over the factory district to the harbor. Thus it looks down on the new from the old.

With its irregular seaport formation, its old river making up to Peabody and Danversport, its proximity to the cool reaches of the Beverly shore and Cape Ann beyond, Salem is almost ideally situated for a residential suburb. It is only thirty minutes in the train from Boston, fifteen from Lynn, which in itself is no mean city. What a pity, then, that Salem might not rise from its ashes as a modern home for workers, a resting and breathing place of peace and beauty, and not again an industrial slum of which old Massachusetts seems to have more than its share already. All about the old harbor, dominated by Hawthorne's custom house and the House of Seven Gables, could be easily made into a lovely green park, and the rest of the fire swept land might be brought back to living purposes with winding elm shaded streets in place of the dreary mill chimnies and electric light poles of the recent invasion. A new, rejuvenated, modernized Salem for living could thus easily be created now—just now—probably never again. With all its past memories that seems what Salem should be—a peaceful home for those who work in cities.

But of course this is all idle dreaming: it is not to be. Already the great cotton mills have plans drafted for their new buildings, etc. Neither city nor state owns any of this land, and could not possess it except at vast expense and protracted litigation. Under our social system we lack the arbitrary power of doing the right thing at the right moment when it happens to arrive. We cannot recreate an environment even when fate has prepared for us a clean slate.

The jobless naturally want their jobs back as soon as possible. The shopkeepers naturally want patrons in their stores with ready money in the purse, at once.

Thus in the most natural way in the world, the way of human nature, we shall be given another instance of a splendid social opportunity lost forever. Let us hope merely that his excellency's eminent commissioners will be able to enforce some simple provisions for better factory buildings, more fireproof and sanitary and better lighted than the old ones, more agreeable places in which to spend one's waking life, and also to insist upon keeping open a few small spots for the sea air to creep into and for children to run about and play in. That, I suppose, is all that we can hope for under our present social system, where the individual's right of land ownership is practically impregnable before the law—where real estate seems supreme.

Accomplished Niece of English Poet.

JOAN MEREDITH STURGIS

LONDON, July 31.—Miss Joan Meredith Sturgis, the handsome and accomplished niece of the late George Meredith, has just been presented to her sovereign. She is not without literary ability herself, having contributed both sketches and poetry to various society publications. The possessor, too, of an agreeable voice, she has appeared in more than one of the musical scenas written by Mrs. William Meredith, the daughter-in-law of the famous novelist.

Castles in the Air.

The London Times

Those who build castles in the air are occasionally spoken of by more matter of fact persons with brutal and noisy derision, but oftener with a kind of tender pity which they find, not unjustifiably, far more exasperating. It implies so complete a misunderstanding of the builders' frame of mind. They are supposed to live in a vale of disappointments, but if they be out and out workmen with a love of their art they do, in fact, nothing of the kind. Long before one castle has actually fallen, sometimes even before so much as a telltale crack has appeared in the walls, they are planning the foundations of another on a larger and more gorgeous scale. When the crash ultimately comes it is unheard, for the din of cranes and hammers already are hard at work again. We have it on Sam Weller's authority that to take to building houses is "a medical term for being incurable." And very fortunately this is, a forti ori, still more true of castles. It is not, however, this implication of a life made up of disillusionments that is the most difficult to bear. Rather it is the suggestion that those who indulge in day dreams are to besotted as to believe that they will all of them come true. This is at once a slur on their intelligence and on their ability to play their own game properly: it shows that the sympathetic and stupid creatures who make it could never acquire the rudiments of the game if they were to try for a thousand years. As long as the player is trammeled by doubts and wonderings whether anything so beautiful could ever really befall him, he must almost of necessity curb his fancy and turn sadly back from some glorious flight; but, once he has as much as half admitted to himself that he is moving in the realms of fantasy, he can soar away to heights unknown.

Putting altogether on one side the delight that they give in the making, it may well be a question whether any material profit is to be derived from castles in the air.

E. R. B.—The Illinois Central railroad company operates 4,769 miles of lines, according to the last annual report. Earnings, dividends, etc., are reported on this system as a whole, no separation of statistics being made for different parts of the system. The total assets of the system are given in the balance sheet as $352,995,590, of which $131,615,230 is road and equipment and the rest securities owned, cash, and various items. Liabilities include $119,285,700 capital stock—including guaranteed stock of leased lines—and $207,736,000 funded debt. Income for the year included $13,455,884 from passenger traffic, $42,589,298 from freight, $2,775,779 from mail and express, and $5,459,940 other income, the last item being chiefly the interests and dividends on securities held; total, $64,280,903. Expenses totaled $50,048,911, of which almost half is charged to transportation, $13,952,654 to maintenance of equipment and $8,519,025 to maintenance of way and structure. There is no preferred stock outstanding. Dividends have been paid on the common since 1863, the rate varying between 4 and 11 per cent. From 1890 to 1899 the rate was 5 per cent. In 1900 5½ was paid, in 1901 6 per cent, which continued till 1905, when the rate was increased to 7. In 1913 this was reduced to 6, and 2½ per cent was paid in March of the current year.

Booth Fisheries.

N. C. S., Polo, Ill.—The $3,520,000 debentures of the Booth Fisheries company, like other debentures, are not secured by mortgage on the property. They are practically notes of the company. However, it is provided in connection with the loan that no prior lien on assets can be created nor may net quick assets be allowed to fall below $1,250,000 as long as any of the debentures are outstanding. The debentures are subject to the operation of a sinking fund of $150,000 a year, payable each March 1, till 1926, when the debentures mature. This sinking fund will retire all but $509,000 of the bonds before maturity. The debentures have also been made convertible into preferred stock at par. A lien prior to this issue is found in $225,000 of mortgages and bond issues on cold storage plants. Earnings after deduction for depreciation are slightly under twice the interest on debentures and underlying bonds. The debentures are entirely safe as long as the company prospers.

Guaranteed Bonds.

It has been a favorite device, in order to raise money for companies whose credit was not well established, to have the bonds guaranteed by strong companies who are likely to profit by getting business from the weaker concerns. In the construction of a branch or feeder line of railroad it has been found that capital for the enterprise can be raised by entering into a contract with a trunk railroad wherein the trunk line in consideration of certain traffic advantages or other compensation puts its credit behind the bonds of the new line.

An example is the guarantee by the Pennsylvania railroad of the income bonds of the Elmira and Williamsport railroad. This guarantee, which runs for 999 years, enabled the smaller road to raise money on its income bonds and in return gave the Pennsylvania valuable traffic advantages. Again in the construction of a new road the guarantee of a connecting trunk line gives the new railroad a device to raise money on its bonds, an example of which is the guarantee of the Western Pacific first mortgage 5 per cent bonds by the Denver and Rio Grande.

The extent of the guarantee and its value depend upon the nature of the guarantee contract. In some cases bonds have been guaranteed by the indorsement of another corporation and the value of such indorsement would be the same as any other indorsement of the guarantor and subject to the rise or fall of the credit of the guarantor corporation, whereas a guarantee arising from a special contract for that purpose may be more binding on the guarantor and may be made a part of the indenture securing the bond. A guaranty may also be limited to assurance of principal or to guarantee of interest, but the usual case is a guarantee of both principal and interest.

From the standpoint of the investor a guaranteed bond should be judged first by the strength of the issuing company. If he finds that the value of the property securing the bond is insufficient he should not rely on the fact that the bond is guaranteed. There are many cases where the guarantor corporation has fallen into financial difficulties and the value of its guarantee has become nil; for example, the St. Louis and San Francisco wanted to acquire the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, so it guaranteed the bonds of the company and raised money thereby to pay the road's creditors, but with the failure of the Frisco the smaller road's bonds necessarily fell to the level sustained by the credit of the road as a separate company.

In instances where bankrupt roads have made guaranty contracts with subsidiary corporations which are a vital asset the receiver is likely to make good the contract to the exclusion of other guaranties which do not secure vital assets, for example: The receiver of the Pere Marquette railway paid the interest on the bonds of the Toledo Terminal company of which it was a joint guarantor, and defaulted interest on prior lien bonds. This was done because the terminal facilities are a vital asset to a company.

The experience of recent years leads several brokers to say about guaranteed bonds that the guarantee looks impressive in print, but that when conditions become such that the investor must depend on the guarantor to save him from loss just then the guarantor is likely to fail him.

Bonds More Conservative than Stocks.

M. M. M.—Bonds are a more conservative investment than stocks. The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company has paid dividends for many years, but the rate has varied somewhat and may vary again. The price which the company is allowed to charge for gas has been fixed by city ordinances and reviewed by the courts and is subject to change. If the company should be compelled to cut the price materially it might have to cut the dividend rate.

The common shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois would be a speculative purchase and the preferred would not be a conservative investment for savings.

Uncertainty in New Company.

R. G.—The shares of a new company which is preparing to manufacture and sell on a large scale some recently patented article are not a conservative savings investment. Even if the patent is valuable, it is possible there may be long and troublesome litigation before the business is finally launched. If the patent does not prove to be all that was hoped, the situation is still worse. The element of speculation enters largely into the beginning of such an enterprise.

Union Switch and Signal.

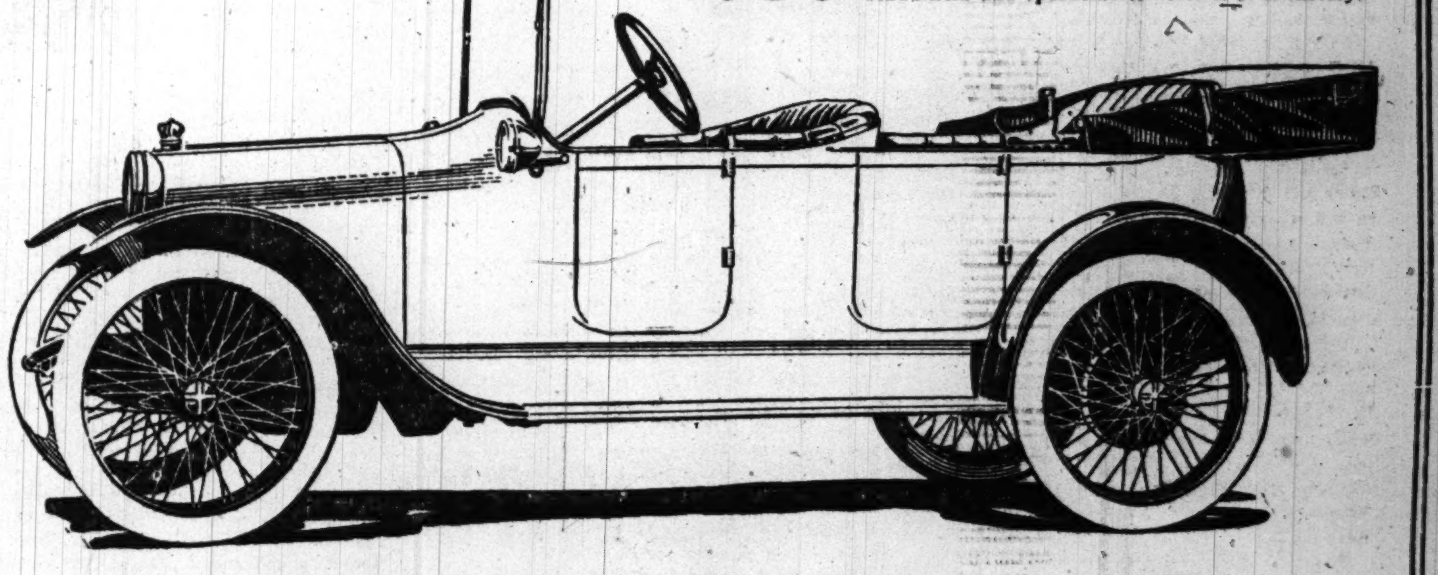
A. C. D.—The Union Switch and Signal company increased its authorized capital stock to $10,000,000 last March and in April a 33 1-3 per cent common stock dividend was paid on both common and preferred. Regular cash dividends have been paid on both classes of stock for years, increasing from 6 on the preferred and 3 on the common to 12 on each, which has been the rate since 1907. The common stock sells now at a price to yield slightly under 6 per cent. No sales have been reported of the preferred shares recently. This stock appears to be closely held.

Not Yet a Seasoned Dividend Payer

M. E. M.—The shares of the university you ask about would not be a conservative investment for savings. It has been paying dividends too short a time.

BRISCOE

$750 with complete equipment, electric lighting generator and electric self-starter, top and boot, wind-shield and speedometer—$900 f. o. b. factory.



The First French Car at an American Price

THREE years ago I conceived the idea of the Briscoe car. It was to build, for less than a thousand dollars, a really high grade small car—a car of as fine material, with as great care in workmanship, of as assured reliability and of as highly finished artistic appearance as any of the best and highest priced large cars; a car built right, whose artistic lines would take it out of the ordinary cheap, clap-trap, uncomely, low-value class and thus singularly appeal to the discriminating buyer.

So I called several engineers together—men who had already designed American cars which were famous for the value they gave. I told them I must have a car that embodied these ideals—and more. They were to take their own time. Thoroughness, not speed, was to be the watchword. And I arranged to be with them day and night until the Briscoe car was completed.

We knew the best American methods, these men and I; for we had been responsible for many successes here. So we went to Europe, where we could study the best of several foreign practices and methods.

And there, in laboratories at Billancourt near Paris, we finally worked out and produced this "first French car at an American price," the finished masterpiece of leading French and German engineers, who for more than a year collaborated with us in its production.

This is the story of the Briscoe car.

Not Experiment That Produced the Briscoe Car.

It was not experimenting in this case—the slapping together of a varied collection of material to catch a season's market. It was rather experience that built the Briscoe car—a finished product of several years' careful investigation and study; the concentrated effort of prominent engineers from three most famous automobile producing countries of the world—tried and proven under every conceivable practical test both abroad and at home.

I will stake my reputation of fifteen years of successful automobile building upon the performance of this Briscoe car.

BENJ. BRISCOE, President.

So impressively tailored and smartly dressed is the Briscoe car that its unusually attractive appearance speaks emphatically for itself. And besides the graceful lines, quality of finish, comfortable appearance and other strikingly visible features, you'll find a real surprise beneath the hood, and so on throughout its whole mechanical construction. Its remarkable efficiency, superb riding qualities and its general road worthiness are most impressively revealed by a thorough demonstration through crowded streets, up steep grades and over rough roads. Here is where the Briscoe shines.

Today the public very wisely thinks of the factory, the men, the organization and the ideals back of the car. In these the Briscoe acknowledges supremacy to none. It is the output of combined facilities at Jackson, Michigan, which have reached a very high standard in their various fields. This group of plants is now equipped with over $1,000,000 worth of the best automobile making machinery—a motor plant 70x400—three stories; an axle plant 250x250; a large and perfectly equipped drop forge plant; a spring plant (one of this country's best); a most efficiently equipped crank-shaft and cam-shaft plant. All of these are grouped in the same 30 acre tract and are supervised by experts in their respective lines. And the sponsors of the Briscoe car have gone through the entire life of the industry. They are thoroughly trained, not only in scientific calculation and the study of automobile construction, but endowed with as large a fund of personal experience as is possessed by any other set of men in the entire industry.

WHEAT FUTURES FINISH STEADY

Prices Work Towards Carrying Charges Basis; Foreign News Has Less Effect.

COARSE GRAINS RALLY.

The wheat market was closer to a normal basis of trading than it has been for several days yesterday. Early quotations were sharply lower, but later there was a firmer tone, due to reports of France taking off duties on farinaceous products and the possibility of Russia prohibiting exports, and to the strength in corn. That the trade is still unsettled and prepared for any kind of markets was indicated by the sales of offers at 16@20c over the closing prices for Monday.

Final prices here were ⅜c off to 1¼c up. Values in the wheat trade appear to be working towards a complete carrying charge basis. December yesterday was ¼c higher and May 1½c up, while the September was ⅜c lower for the day, the September-December spread widening to 4⅛c at the close. Cash trade was quiet and local sales were only 25,000 bu.

Still Hope for Peace.

Early reports from Liverpool indicated a somewhat more cheerful tone to the political news and cables were 2@2¾c lower. The market later was given support at Liverpool. There will be no future trading at the English market on Monday. French reports indicated a strong situation, and foreign countries generally are making such provisions as possible for the conservation of food supplies and for importing necessary stocks.

The weather in the northwest continues clear and with no precipitation of importance. In Canada conditions are not improving any, and the crop prospect is not regarded as at all promising. The export situation is still far from clear, but it is a fact that so far the threatened interruption of foreign wheat shipments has not been in evidence. Clearances from our Atlantic and Gulf ports alone for the day were 1,635,000 bu, and at this rate there will be plenty of wheat put afloat for Europe.

Exports Establish Record.

Revised figures on the clearances for the week from both coasts made the total 9,615,000 bu, the largest weekly shipments of wheat and flour from this country and Canada on record. Canadian shipments at the present time are extremely small, most of the exports being from this country. Country offerings continue fair, but the cash trade is still unsettled. The flour trade also is in an unsettled condition, but there is a fair trade.

Receipts here were 607 cars, with 477 cars inspected yesterday. Western receipts were 2,603,000 bu and for the week were 16,040,000 bu, compared to 12,640,000 bu a year ago. Northwest receipts were 218 cars; last year, 147 cars, and Winnipeg had 95 cars, against 103 cars a year ago. Armour, Logan-Bryan, and King-Farnum were the leading sellers of wheat, and Bartlett-Frazier, Wagner, and commission houses were fair buyers.

Dry Weather Bulls Corn.

Corn was strong and active, prices at the close being 1½@3½c higher, the May leading in the advance, with December a close second. Bullish reports from Oklahoma and Missouri were the main factors. The Oklahoma state report shows a drop of 30 points since last month, to 52; and in Missouri the condition is placed at 68, or 13 points lower than last month. An encouraging feature of the situation is the better demand from the east, with an especially brisk demand for grain for prompt shipment.

Cash prices were 1@1½c up, and sales were 300,000 bu. No rains of importance were shown over the belt, and the predictions for over Sunday were for fair and warmer weather. Receipts here were 160 cars, with 148 cars inspected yesterday. Primary arrivals for the week were 3,338,000 bu; last year, 2,585,000 bu. Liverpool was ½@1¾d lower.

Oats Have Late Upturn.

In oats the trade was active, and after a little setback early a strong tone developed, largely in sympathy with corn, and final prices were ⅝@1⅛c up. Hedging sales were heavy at the start, but later there was not much pressure, while there was a good class of commission house buying. Receipts were 499 cars, with 416 cars the estimate for tomorrow. Western receipts were 1,658,000 bu and for the week primary arrivals were 7,261,000 bu, against 4,116,000 bu a year ago. Cash prices were steady to ¼c off. Shipping sales were 400,000 bu.

Firmer Tone For Products.

The provisions market showed a firmer tone, a further reaction from the decline of the previous day taking place. Hogs were irregular, light grades selling at an advance of 5@10c. Receipts here were 7,000, against 8,000 estimated. The estimate for Monday was 34,000, with 110,000 expected the coming week. Cash trade was reported fairly active. Western receipts of hogs for the week were placed at 344,000, against 371,100 a year ago.

Rye Prices Lower.

Rye sold weak to 2c lower, with No. 2 at 68@70c and No. 3 at 68c. Receipts, 6 cars.

Barley was dull, but steady, at 53@55c for malting and 50c for feed. Receipts, 7 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet at $4.50@5.00 for cash. Clover seed closed unchanged at $10.00@14.00 for cash.

Duluth flax closed 2½@3½c lower, with cash on track $1.68, September $1.69, October $1.71, and November $1.72. Receipts, 9 cars. Minneapolis was 3½c lower at $1.67@1.69 for cash on track. Receipts, 3 cars. Winnipeg closed 2½@3c lower, with October $1.50, November $1.52, and December $1.47½. Receipts, 7 cars.

WILL NOT CALL COUNTRY LOANS

Chicago Banks Believe It Would Be Wrong Policy at This Time.

CO-OPERATION IS ASKED

It is probable that banks outside Chicago have made, through their correspondents here, demand loans on collateral aggregating $20,000,000. These loans are from the balances which the country banks carry and are usually made in what may be called fair weather and to the profit of the country bank as against its correspondent. These loans are negotiated by the Chicago banks for their country friends as a business favor in order to hold their good will and business.

Now in the present situation with all exchanges of the country closed the country banks are asking that these demand loans be paid. They are asking their correspondents to do for them something that the correspondents cannot do for themselves, that is, collect demand loans. The question has arisen whether the request at this time is a fair one.

Wrong Policy Scouted.

It is probable the leading Chicago banks will, to preserve the general situation, insist that their country correspondents stand with them and share the responsibility of the situation. They have already intimated that in their opinion it would be wrong policy to ask the commission houses to try to realize on collateral when there are no markets for such collateral. Since the Chicago banks think it best for themselves, for borrowers, and for the stability of credits in general that there should be no calling of demand loans at this time, the country banks will be expected to take the same view of the matter and allow the situation to rest as it is. Such loans, as far as can be learned, are well secured, and in a way they are backed not only by the collateral of the borrowers but also in effect by the agents of the lending banks.

It may be pointed out that the United States is at this time isolated in the matter of credit. It must stand on its own resources. There can be no recourse to European bankers for credit, it will not be granted. It is not practicable to borrow money in Europe so that it appears the only policy remaining for the banks and borrowers in this country, is to trade among themselves. This they must do and should be willing to do since banks and business are on a sound basis.

New York Bank Figures.

The New York bank statement yesterday showed a decrease in cash of $56,299,000. These were the figures of the "actual" statement and represented the condition of the banks yesterday. The heavy loss in cash resulted in the surplus reserve of $26,173,750, shown the previous week, being wiped out, and in its place there stands a deficit of $17,425,750. It would have been larger but for a decrease of $46,776,000 in deposits.

The "average" statement showed a decrease of but $22,143,000 in cash, so that Thursday and Friday must have been specially severe on the cash resources of the New York institutions.

The actual statement also made an interesting exhibit in that of the $2,058,755,000 loans outstanding there was a decrease of but $1,182,000. Evidently the New York banks are standing pat with their creditors and refraining from calling loans and thus disturbing the current level of values.

The excess reserve is now converted into a deficit of $17,425,750, which compares with a surplus last year of $26,208,100, and a surplus two years ago of $20,398,950. The figures follow:

Would Buy Stocks.

Local commission houses reported a considerable volume of inquiries and a desire to place orders for the purchase of securities. The trend of most bids was above the closing prices of Thursday. There are a great many bargain hunters. They are at the same time willing to pay four or five points above the last quoted prices.

But there is no trading. As noted yesterday morning, the rules of the New York and Chicago stock exchanges forbid transactions in any securities quoted by either organization. Several houses not members of any exchange announced on Friday that they would deal in all securities. At the request of the banks, however, this plan was abandoned. It was held that since the organized exchanges and their members were unable to make quotations it would be unnecessarily disturbing to have irregular prices made with the prospect of disturbing loans.

Sears-Roebuck Sales Off.

The July statement of Sears, Roebuck & Co. showed a decrease in business compared with the corresponding month last year. This is the first decrease noted in the company's showings since the concern was organized. It is regarded as a reflection of dullness in general trade. The decrease, however, was less than ½ per cent. The figures for seven months:

Strike—Exchanges Closed.

Some observers of the relation between the present situation and the railroads were inclined to think that the roads would be sentimentally in a much better position to conduct a strike while the exchanges are closed than if the latter were open. The effect on the prices of securities of tying up the roads would be generally adverse and to that extent cripple the borrowing power of the companies. With the everyday appearance of loss in values the management of the lines would be inclined to grant more concessions in order to preserve their credit than would be the case with the stock exchanges closed and their credit not at stake.

Netherlands Bank.

Announcement came from Amsterdam that a law had been passed by both houses of congress in Holland allowing the Netherlands bank—the Dutch central bank of issue—to reduce its gold reserve against bank notes from 40 per cent to 20 per cent. This means that the bank can issue an additional amount equal to $200,000,000 bank notes without adding anything to its gold reserve.

Foreign Bank Rates Raised.

The Bank of France raised its minimum rate of discount from 4½ to 6 per cent.

The Bank of Netherlands advanced its minimum rate of discount from 4½ to 6 per cent.

The Bank of Belgium raised its rate of discount from 5 to 6 per cent.

Dividends Passed.

The Cities Service company has deferred payment of dividends, including those due Aug. 1, on its preferred and common stocks.

Dividend Declared.

The Mergenthaler Linotype company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent and the usual extra dividend of one-half of 1 per cent, payable Sept. 30 to stock of record Sept. 5.

Money and Exchange.

Bank Shares Dormant.

The local bank share market is dormant. F. M. Zeller & Co., whose quotations have appeared here, say:

"Considering the unsettled condition which existed in other security markets, prior to the closing of all stock exchanges last Friday, and the losses incurred in the depreciation of values, it has been surprising through it all the small amount of bank stocks offered for sale. Only a few comparatively small lots have been seeking a market, and these at very slight concessions under prices prevailing a week ago.

"This demonstrates two facts very clearly—one being that few of our bank stocks are held speculatively, and also that investors have shown great confidence in their holdings.

"Since all trading has been suspended in listed securities, it is only fair that our local unlisted stocks be treated in the same way, and there will be no toleration of any raids on them."

Fair Gain in Clearings.

Local bank clearings for the week showed an increase of $12,465,873, or 4.2 per cent, compared with the corresponding week last year. The figures:

There was further widening of hog prices at Chicago, with sales of prime hogs at an advance of 5@10c from Friday's closing level, while reductions of 5@10c had to be made to clear common mixed packing grades. Fresh receipts of 7,000 head included few loads of prime offerings and packers filled most of these orders at a reduced cost, while eastern shippers paid 5@10c higher for a suitable kind. A top of $9.05 was made by one load of light hogs. Not many reached $9.00, and the bulk of the supply cleared at $8.40@8.90.

Final prices showed a net loss of 15@20c from last week's closing prices on all but the top hogs, which were unchanged. Pigs were largely 10c lower for the week, with not many of them coming. Expectations are for few more than 100,000 hogs the coming week, but packers are figuring on filling orders for mixed animals at further reductions in prices and it is believed the range of values will widen until there is a difference of $1.00 or more between the price of prime hogs and that of plain mixed animals.

SHEEP.

Sheep and lamb values finished the week on a firm basis, but showing no material improvement from the preceding week's close. Receipts for the week showed a substantial decrease, but the requirements of buyers were correspondingly shortened, and local packers worked hard for reduced values. Buying by outsiders kept the market from seeking a lower level for the general run of stock, although there were instances where concessions had to be made to clear muttons not suitable to shipping trade. In spite of the falling off in receipts, shipments for the week increased 3,000 head, or nearly 25 per cent. Lambs topped at $8.25 and closed at $8.15 for the best. Sheep sold up to $5.75 and were quoted up in that figure at the finish.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 1.—The state public utilities commission issued an order today regarding free telephone service and reduced rates, in which it prohibits the telephone companies giving free telephones to cities and counties and to schools and lodges, but provides that telephone companies may, if they see fit, make a reduced rate for churches, hospitals, and other charitable institutions.

CHICAGO IRISH PROTEST SHOOTING OF CELT WOMEN.

Massmeeting Next Sunday Will Condemn Acts of English Soldiers in Dublin Streets.

A massmeeting to protest against the shooting of Irish women and children in the streets of Dublin by English soldiers will be held at Gaelic park at West Forty-seventh street and South California avenue on Aug. 9. The British government probably will be asked to lift the ban on the importation of arms into Ireland, with the alternative that Irish-American "gun running" will begin.

A recruiting station will be established in the park, over which the new Irish flag will fly at half mast in memory of those who died in Dublin.

REAL ESTATE men view the present situation born of Europe's war complications, with a great deal of equanimity, with the declaration it is another and most impressive illustration of the stability of real estate as compared with the disastrous instability of stocks in times of stress like the present.

In the face of a shrinkage of nearly $700,000,000 in the value of American securities since the beginning of the present trouble, a few days ago, real estate has moved serenely along on untroubled waters, there having been a larger number of important transactions during the last week, including downtown as well as outside property, than for some weeks past.

And there is little prospect of its being adversely affected during the months to come while the present struggle continues, should a general war come. It is possible that some owners of a speculative turn of mind may sell more or less of their holdings in order to buy high class stocks at their present low level, but prudent investors as a whole, with the present object lesson fresh before them, will probably be well satisfied with their real estate investments. It is quite probable also that many who have been hit by the present stock slump will transfer their investments to real estate, being entirely willing to sidestep the quick asset for a stable one.

To what extent the mortgage loan market will be affected is uncertain, but it probably will be affected to some extent because of the promised monetary stringency born of the demands which are to be made on the financial resources of this country by Europe.

It is not thought any immediate change from present conditions in the market is to be expected for some time at least. Much will depend on the attitude of the big insurance companies, which are, of course, the largest lenders in the market. They have to put their money out, however, and unless the demands of policyholders absorb their surplus funds, as was the case during the stringency of last year, they probably will continue in the market.

The large loans come from them, and there is more probability of a tightening in this field than in the smaller loans, which come from the people generally and the savings banks. It is possible rates will stiffen somewhat, and probably some lenders will use this as an excuse for demanding higher rates, but it is not thought higher rates are to be looked for for some time at least.

As stated before, there was an unusual number of interesting deals closed during the week in nearly all classes of property, although an exception probably should be made in the case of apartment house property, in which there was practically nothing doing, especially in the higher priced properties. There was no significance to this, however, as several large deals are on in this class of property.

The loop district furnished an important transaction in the sale by Edward A. Shedd of the fee in the property at 116-122 West Randolph street, west of and adjoining the Hotel Sherman, to the Merchants Loan and Trust company and Fanny M. Barnhart, trustees under the will of Kenneth Barnhart, deceased, and to Fanny M. Barnhart, for $375,000.

The land, which is under a lease to Joseph Beifeld of the Hotel Sherman for a term of ninety-nine years from May 1, 1909, is irregular in shape, with a south frontage of 60.5 feet and with a depth of 161 feet on the east line and 70 feet on the west line. The lease provides for an annual rent of $14,000 for the first five years, $16,000 for the second five years, and $18,000 annually for the remaining eighty-nine years of the term. The average annual rent is $17,893, and the investment nets the purchaser 4.77 per cent.

The lot is improved with an old four story and basement building, known as the Fidelity Safe Deposit Vaults building. Under the terms of the lease to Mr. Beifeld, he is required, prior to 1919, to erect a new, fireproof building, on caisson foundations, not less than six stories high, with walls and foundations strong enough to carry eight additional stories. It is thought ultimately the property will be used in connection with the Hotel Sherman. The sale of the fee was negotiated by Albert L. Strauss and Willoughby & Co.

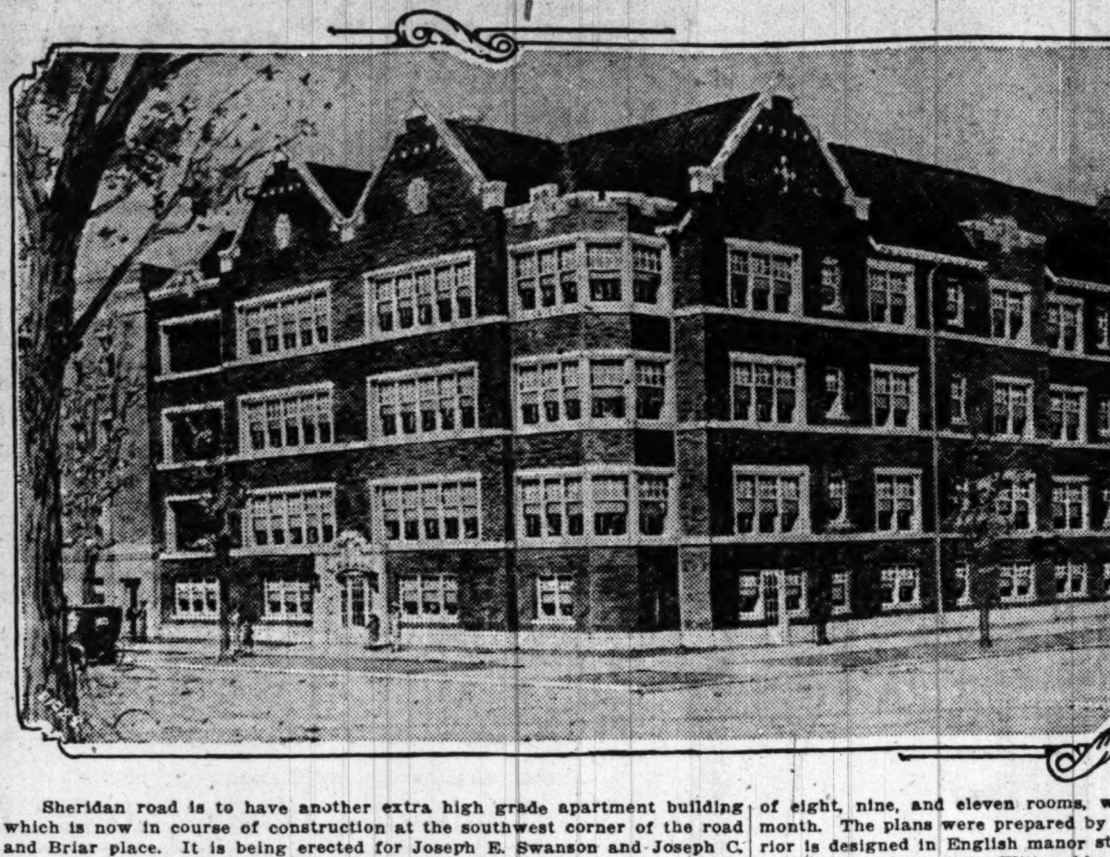
The outside market furnished an unusual number of highly important transactions, the principal one of which was the purchase by the Catholic bishop of Chicago of what is known as the Drexel property, comprising the block of ground bounded by Sheridan road, Pine Grove avenue, Cornelia avenue, and Addison street, as the site of a large seminary.

The property, which is about the last vacant block on Sheridan road south of Evanston, is 673½x532 feet, north front, on Addison street, by 518 feet, south front, on Cornelia avenue, and a west frontage of 673½ feet on Pine Grove avenue. All of the land except a plot 100x200 feet was purchased from Edward T. Stotesbury of Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia for $340,000. The other parcel was purchased from James P. Sherlock, president of the Illinois Nail company, for $61,250, making a total of $401,250. Joseph G. Murphy, who first took title, gave a trust deed to secure a part purchase mortgage of $170,000, three years at 5 per cent.

The bishop is said to have no definite plans regarding the character of the building, or the time when work will be commenced, but it is understood to be the purpose to have it of a most attractive design, and also to embody the latest and best features in buildings of this character.

The purchase figures $400 a front foot for the inside Sheridan road frontage, with lots 298 feet deep, and $125 a foot on Pine Grove avenue, with lots 234 feet deep. The site is a particularly attractive one, overlooking the lake as it does. The sale was negotiated by Cremin & O'Connor, who represented Mr. Sherlock and the bishop, and H. O. Stone & Co., who represented Mr. Stotesbury.

New Apartment for Sheridan Road.



Sheridan road is to have another extra high grade apartment building which is now in course of construction at the southwest corner of the road and Briar place. It is being erected for Joseph E. Swanson and Joseph C. Otis and is expected to cost about $120,000. It will contain nine apartments of eight, nine, and eleven rooms, which will rent at from $135 to $300 a month. The plans were prepared by Architect Andrew Sandgren. The exterior is designed in English manor style with a rich texture of masonry and a red Spanish tile roof. Willoughby & Co. will have charge of the building.

EVANSTON REAL ESTATE MARKET BECOMES ACTIVE.

Both Business Property and Acreage Figure in Important Transactions of the Week.

Evanston furnished several transactions of more than ordinary interest last week, including both business property and acres.

One transaction covered the property at the southeast corner of Main street and Chicago avenue, with a frontage of 187 feet on the former and 185 feet on the latter. The 65 feet of frontage at the corner is improved with an old three story building containing stores, offices, and flats, while the three story eighteen flat building known as the Park apartments is on the alley.

The property was sold by Mrs. Bessie Allen Hoyt to Orlando Noble of Noble & Son, plumbers, at a reported consideration of $85,000, Mr. Noble giving back as part purchase money a mortgage of $50,000, ten years, at 5½ per cent. The purchase gives Mr. Noble the entire frontage on Main street between Chicago and Hinman avenues, 370 feet, but he is said to have no plans for immediate improvement. B. B. Clover & Bro. represented the purchaser and William Hoyt & Son the seller.

Another transaction comprises about 200 feet of frontage on Main near Sherman street, about two blocks west of the Main street station. It is improved with a row of ten eight room dwellings, and it has been purchased by Charles A. Wightman, a real estate broker, from John Bernritter, the consideration in the deed being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $32,500. The actual price, however, is said to have been about $50,000. Mr. Wightman is said to have purchased the property as an investment, and is said to plan extensive improvements.

William H. Johnson and Allen G. Mills bought from the heirs of Henry Harms a tract of sixty acres just west of Evanston for a reported consideration of about $40,000. The property is within two blocks of several attractive North Evanston homes, has a 10 cent fare to the loop and twenty minute service on the Northwestern road. The electric line to the Westmoreland and Glen View Country clubs passes through the property. Chauncey G. Smith represented both parties.

LIVELY VACANT LOT MARKET DOMINATES REALTY DEALS.

Outlying Property Shows Tremendous Activity Compared with Trading in Central Section.

A lively market in outlying vacant land is the sign of a coming active building season, says Construction News. The sales of vacant lands and lots in Chicago are now upon a tremendous scale of activity—in fact, this is the dominating spirit of the market at the present time. Transactions in central business property have been comparatively few this year, but the operations in outlying sections, both in business and residence property, have been upon a large scale.

It would be interesting to know how many lots, dwellings, and two flat buildings have been sold this year, but there are no statistics upon the subject. It is necessary, therefore, to fall back upon the figures supplied by Recorder Connery for the first half of the year, which show only completed transactions, those in which the money or the greater part of it has been paid and the purchaser has taken a deed.

The records show that for the first half of the year 28,407 deeds, involving property to the value of $67,274,212, were filed, against 26,321 deeds to property valued at $68,902,646 for the same period a year ago, a gain of 2,086 in the number of deeds and a decrease of $1,628,034 in amount. The decrease in amount is not real; it is due to the insertion of a nominal consideration. The exact consideration in all deeds would show a heavy increase. The buying is of a substantial character; speculation is negligible.

DEMANDS CITY AID COUNTY.

Deputy Controller Ryan Points Out Banks Pay Less than Cook Offers for Funds.

Deputy County Controller Frank S. Ryan yesterday issued a statement questioning the action of City Controller John E. Traeger in refusing to loan money to the county on anticipated tax warrants. He asks what taxpayer is going to court to force the city to place surplus funds with a bank at 2½ per cent interest while the county, another taxpaying body, is paying 5 per cent for money borrowed from the same banks. He declares it is time for the city controller to ignore legal technicalities and conserve the public's interests.

Real Estate Transactions.

NORTH SALES.

NORTH CLARK STREET.—One of Lake View's historic homesteads figured in a transaction made a matter of record during the week. It was the old George Chapman property, at the southeast corner of Clark stret and Arlington place, which was formally conveyed to St. Vincent's Orphan asylum, which plans to improve it in the comparatively near future with a new asylum.

About a year ago Frank A. O'Donnell took title to the property from Florence Chapman, the consideration being withheld, but the price was said to have been about $90,000. He also acquired an adjoining parcel from Northwestern university for about $22,000, making a total of about $112,000.

Mr. O'Donnell has now quitclaimed the property to St. Vincent's at a nominal consideration. Its present asylum is at La Salle avenue and Superior street, and while no plans have yet been made regarding the proposed new home, it is thought the work of construction will be commenced in the comparatively near future.

The Chapman property is irregular in shape, having a west frontage of 202 feet on Clark street and a north frontage of 125 feet on Arlington place. It extends through in the rear of this frontage about 430 feet to Lake View avenue, opposite Lincoln park, on which it has a frontage of 122 feet. The house, which sets back in the middle of the lot, is a large two and a half story rambling structure, and it is of historic interest because of the fact it was frequently visited by Abraham Lincoln while in Chicago. Madden Bros. were the brokers in the sale of the property to the asylum.

CLARK STREET.—The property at 534 North Clark street, just north of Indiana street, 25x80 feet, with four story and basement stone front store and flat building, has been sold by Gertrude Burns to Samuel Katz for a reported consideration of $25,000. F. W. Proudfoot represented the grantor and Sonnenschein, Berkson & Fishell the grantee in a legal way.

LELAND AVENUE.—The property at the southwest corner of Western and Leland avenues, 125x125 feet, improved with store and flat buildings, has been sold by Mary A. Simmons to Abraham W. Weil, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $27,000.

IRVING PARK BOULEVARD.—The property in Irving Park boulevard, 200 feet east of North Forty-fifth avenue, 49¼x150 feet, improved with store and flat building, has been sold by A. K. Sorensen to William R. Anderson, the consideration being $10, subject to an incumbrance of $7,500.

CENTER STREET.—There was filed for record a conveyance by the Central Trust Company of Illinois to Jacob L. Kesner of the property at the southwest corner of Center street and Lincoln avenue, 123x92 feet, the consideration being nominal.

WILSON AVENUE.—The apartment house property at the northwest corner of Wilson and Sacramento avenues, with 60x120 feet of ground, has been sold by Blanche L. Clark to Mary M. Jones, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $14,750.

OAKDALE AVENUE.—A deal in choice north side residence property has just been closed by Paul Steinbrecher & Co., who have sold for Horace A. Goodrich and Ernest Ulich Jr., trustees, to Charles B. Smith, manager of the Smith-Warner Speedometer company, the attractive vacant property at the southeast corner of Oakdale and Pine Grove avenues, with a frontage of 127 feet on the former and 197 on Pine Grove avenue. The consideration is of a nominal character, and it is stated that Mr. Smith plans to improve the property with an extra high grade apartment building. The property is within one block of Sheridan road and two blocks from Lincoln park.

OAKDALE AVENUE.—In another deal in extra high north side residence property, Edmund D. Hulbert, vice president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust company, has purchased from Robert S. Morison of Cambridge, Mass., the vacant property at the corner of Lincoln park and Oakdale avenue, facing the lake, 55x185 feet, for $33,000, which is at the rate of $600 a front foot.

Mr. Hulbert, it was stated yesterday, has no immediate plans for improving the property, but eventually will build a fine residence on it. The sale was negotiated by Winston & Co. The property is in the same block where Dr. Bevan recently made a purchase with the purpose of improving with a $100,000 residence.

LELAND AVENUE.—George K. Hollingsworth has sold to Hulda Antler the apartment house property at the southeast corner of Leland and Winchester avenues, with 89x152½ feet of ground, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $21,000.

CASTLEWOOD TERRACE.—Mason B. Hill has sold to James J. Harrington the vacant, 50x114 feet, on Castlewood terrace, adjoining the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Castlewood terrace, the consideration being withheld. Mr. Hill took in part payment the property at the northwest corner of West Diversey and North Maplewood avenues, 28x49 feet, improved with a new one story business building. It is stated that Mr. Harrington will at once improve with a high class residence for his own occupancy. Herr & Co. represented both parties.

CENTER STREET.—Peter Hoeffer has sold to John W. Bittner the property in Center street, 200 feet east of Cleveland avenue, 77x105 feet, south front, with 70 feet on the east, with flat improvements, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000. Mr. Bittner conveyed in part payment the property in Institute place, 123 feet east of Sedgwick street, 25x109 feet, for $5,000.

SHERIDAN ROAD.—The deal has been closed wherein Charles H. Kusel of Kusel & Harris, builders, has purchased from Kernott, Beck & Schwarz the property at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Argyle street, 125 feet on the road and 143 feet on Argyle street. The purchasers are said to plan the removal of the present improvements and the erection of a store, office, and hotel building to cost between $100,000 and $150,000. Mark Levy & Bro. represented all the parties to the transaction.

LAKE FOREST.—John Griffith has bought from Mrs. Corralia De Camp six and one-half acres on Mayflower avenue opposite Cyrus H. McCormick's place. It is vacant and the asking price is said to have been $30,000.

SOUTH SALES.

COTTAGE GROVE AVENUE.—The property at the southwest corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-seventh street, an important transfer corner, has been leased by Lafayette McWilliams to George L. Berman for a term of ninety-nine years at an annual rent of $4,000 for the first five years, $5,000 for the following twenty years, and $8,000 for the remaining seventy-four years.

The lot fronts 100 feet on Cottage Grove avenue, with a depth of 120 feet on Forty-seventh street, and is improved with an old frame building of no value. The average annual rental is $5,323, which, capitalized on a 5 per cent basis, gives a leasing value of $106,460, which is at the rate of $1,060 a front foot and $8.87 a square foot.

Mr. Berman is said to plan the erection at once of a high grade three story and basement store, office, and one and two room apartment building, to cost about $100,000. There is much building going on in this vicinity, the new Ortenstein building on Forty-seventh street, east of Cottage Grove avenue, having just been completed; a new building is planned for the northwest corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-seventh street, while Sherman T. Cooper is now erecting on the Marshall Field tract between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth streets, Ellis avenue and Drexel boulevard, a number of high grade apartment buildings the aggregate cost of which, it is expected, will be in excess of $1,000,000. H. R. Wilson is the architect. Mary Levy & Bro. represented the lessors and Mr. Beatty of Ben I. Greenebaum's office represented the lessee. Donald S. McWilliams and Sonnenschein, Berkson & Fishel attended to the legal details.

FIFTIETH STREET.—The fifteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Fiftieth street and Forrestville avenue, with 50x125 feet of ground, has been sold by Henry E. Quindell to John Black of Schneider, Ind., the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000, the seller taking in part payment a highly improved farm of 250 acres at Schneider. G. W. Stewart represented both parties.

WASHINGTON STREET.—There was filed for record the transfer by John Blodgett of Grand Rapids, Mich., to Mrs. Daisy P. Blodgett of Washington, D. C., his stepmother, of the property at the northwest corner of Washington street and Fifth avenue for a stated consideration of $600,000. He also conveyed the leasehold interest in the property, which fronts 101 feet on Washington street and 180 feet on Fifth avenue and is improved with a five story and basement building. The property is under lease to Thad H. Howe for ninety-nine years from Dec. 1, 1911, at an annual rent of $27,000 for the first fifteen years and $30,000 annually for the rest of the term.

The transfer is thought to be of a formal character, in connection with the adjustment of the affairs of the late Delos A. Blodgett, the father of the grantor.

MICHIGAN AVENUE.—Record was made of the transfer by Oscar J. Friedman to the Chicago Title and Trust company of an undivided one-fourth interest in the property at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Lake street, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $425,000. Edward J. Waller Jr. also conveyed a quarter interest to the trust company, subject to the same incumbrance.

PRAIRIE AVENUE.—Dr. David Salinger has sold to Leo L. Brunhild the property at the northeast corner of Sixty-first street and Prairie avenue, improved with a two story building containing one store, offices, and flats. The consideration in the deed is $10, but the actual figure is said to have been $23,000. Sidney C. Edenburg negotiated the deal.

WEST SALES.

WESTERN AVENUE.—An interesting long term ground lease in outside property closed and made a matter of record during the week comprised the property at the southwest corner of Western and Lawrence avenues, 100.42 feet on the former and 125 feet on the latter, which was leased by Eliakim R. Bliss to Charles H. Kusel and Jacob L. Harris for a term of ninety-nine years from June 1, 1914, at an annual rent of $2,500 for the first five years, $3,000 for the second five, $4,000 for the succeeding five, and $5,000 for the remaining seventy-four years of the term. Capitalized on a 5 per cent basis, the average annual rent gives a leasing value of $94,444, which is at the rate of $944 a front foot for the Western avenue frontage. The lease is on a net basis, and the lessee is also required to erect a building to be completed by Oct. 1, 1915, to cost not less than $25,000. It is understood the lessees plan to erect a high grade store and office building, which may also include a theater, the cost of which is expected to be between $100,000 and $125,000. The lease was negotiated by A. Trostler.

TWENTY-SIXTH STREET. — Samuel Lanski has sold to Margaret and Fred Starr through Mark Levy & Bro. the property at 4134-46 West Twenty-sixth street, 144x122 feet, and improved with a building containing seven stores and a theater. The consideration is not given, but it is said to have been in the neighborhood of $40,000. Mr. Lanski also sold to the Starrs the two vacant northwest and northeast corners of Whipple avenue and West Twenty-sixth street, each 39x125 feet, for a reported consideration of about $10,000. Mr. Lanski took in part payment the northwest corner of West Montrose and North Crawford avenues, improved with a store and flat building on the corner, the rest being vacant. The lot is 52x125 feet and the consideration is said to have been in the neighborhood of $40,000. David T. Machette represented the Starrs in the transaction.

NORTH AVENUE.—Louis Shrayer has sold to Edward Billiatt the property at the northeast corner of North avenue and Leavitt street, 72x125 feet, improved with a three story brick, steam heated store and flat building. The consideration is withheld, but it is reported to have been in the neighborhood of $32,000. Blonder Bros. represented both parties. The same brokers sold for Rudolph Levin to R. Afrimonicz the property on the northwest corner of West Division street and North Artesian avenue, 50x125 feet, improved with a two story brick store and flat building, the consideration being withheld.

TWELFTH STREET.—Solomon K. Graff has sold to George Rosen the property in West Twelfth street, 47 feet east of St. Louis avenue, 25x125 feet, south front, with store and flat improvements, for $18,500, subject to $10,000.

Loans and Leases.

AN exceedingly interesting event of the week in the loan market was the loan of $500,000 made by John E. Colnon & Co. It was of special interest because of its magnitude, and also because it emphasizes the recent unmistakable trend toward lower interest rates in the mortgage loan market. The loan, which runs seven years, bears 4½ per cent interest and is secured by the property at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Jackson boulevard, having a frontage of 87½ feet on the avenue and 153 feet on Jackson boulevard, extending back to an eighteen foot alley, and improved with a ten story fireproof building with stores on the first floor and offices and floors in the upper stories, the entire building being well rented.

The property has an interesting history. The entire block in which it is located, comprising 2.9 acres, was purchased in 1836 by Hiram Pearsons for $231, and a few months later was sold by him to William B. Egan at a profit of $20. In 1838 Mr. Egan conveyed the property to E. K. Hubbard for $750.

In 1856 the block was divided, and Thomas H. Hubbard sold the lots covered by the present loan for $20,000. In 1881 George C. Walker sold these lots to William C. Cole of New York City for $36,250, Mr. Cole selling the property in 1909 to the present owner for $750,000. The present building was originally erected for Wilson Bros., manufacturing haberdashers, who took possession in 1893 and occupied it until 1903, when they moved into their new building, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Charles place. It now has a miscellaneous occupancy.

It is in a district which has improved greatly during the last few years, both as regards land values and buildings, some of the more prominent of the latter being the Insurance Exchange building, the Continental and Commercial National Bank building, the hotel building erected by David Mayer at Quincy street and Fifth avenue, and the Moos building, at Adams street and Fifth avenue. The proposed new west side railroad terminal has also materially helped conditions.

The Angel Guardian German Catholic Orphan society of Chicago has given a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure a loan of $150,000 ten years at 5¼ per cent, secured by the property at the southwest corner of Rockwell street and Pratt avenue, comprising forty acres, and twenty acres at the southwest corner of Western avenue and North Shore avenue. The money is to be used for the construction of additional buildings for the society to contain a dining room, living room for children, and a cold storage room.

Sherman T. Cooper has given a trust deed to S. W. Straus to secure a loan of $90,000, five years at 5½ per cent, secured upon the property in Ellis avenue forty-seven feet north of Forty-eighth street, 200x112 feet, which Mr. Cooper is now improving with several high grade six flat buildings.

Frank J. Haggerty has leased to Vernon C. Seaver the first floor and basement of the building at 61 West Randolph street for a term from Aug. 1, 1914, to April 28, 1921, at a term rent of $6,750.

Adolph and Albert Halperin have leased to the Newark Shoe Stores company the store and basement at 1221 Milwaukee avenue, near Ashland avenue, at a term rent of $20,000, the store being 18x20 feet. E. Beatty of Ben I. Greenebaum's office was the broker. This gives the shoe company eight Chicago stores.

Record flat rents for Sheridan road apartments north of Diversey parkway are reported by Baird & Warner in a lease to Richard W. Sears, former head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., of the third apartment in the building at 3726-28 at a monthly rent of $500.

They also report the renting of apartments in the building owned by Carter H. Harrison at 3150 Sheridan road, and Dr. William Allen Pusey at 3120 Sheridan road at $300 a month. As indicative of the demand for high grade apartments in this section, it is stated the firm recently has rented the apartments at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Barry avenue at an advance of 33 1-3 per cent over the rents of two years ago.

The Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank is trustee in a loan of $21,000 on the leasehold interest and new white tile front store and office building to be erected at the southwest corner of West North and North Fortieth avenues. Goldstine & Co., who negotiated the loan, have leased an eleven foot store in the building for ten years at a reported term rent of $16,008, averaging about $140 a month, said to be a record for stores in this vicinity.

Willis & Frankenstein have leased for W. B. Frankenstein to the Daprato Statuary company the four story building at 770 West Adams street for a term rent from May 1, 1915, of $9,000.

Grant Carpenter & Co. have leased for Maurice L. Horner, trustee, et al., to Richard Robinson the three story building at 22 East Jackson boulevard, or Pickwick place, for five years at a term rent of $12,300. It will be remodeled and opened Oct. 1 as a high class specialty restaurant.

Irving Shuman, United States assistant subtreasurer, has just closed the sale of three farms in Illinois, for which he is said to have received about $60,000. He sold to James B. Mathers a farm of 160 acres in Richland county, nine miles northwest of Olney; also 240 acres three miles south of Vandalia, and 160 acres eight miles from Vandalia. The sales were closed by E. Orris Hart & Co.

White and Tabor report the following leases:

Store at 159-161 North Wabash avenue, William Holabird to John M. Grouboa, for a period of years at a term rental of $34,000.

Store at 159 North Wabash avenue, John M. Grouboa to Adolph Mans, for a period of years at a term rental of $8,000.

Store at 207 South Market street, Hankell trust agreement to Managriner, for a term rental of $6,000.

Store at the northeast corner Market and Quincy streets, Dry Goods Reporter company to the Atlas Hosiery mills, for a term rental of $5,000.

Sixth floor at 234 South Fifth avenue, Hamilton Moses to Odegard, Hollenback & Co., for a term rental of $10,000.

Fifth floor at 506 South Fifth avenue, Jacob L. Kesner to A. Goldberg & Co., at a term rental of $5,400.

E. M. Griesheimer & Co. have leased for Frederick R. Barnheisel to A. Seidler, makers of ladies' gowns, the north half of the third floor of the Barnheisel building for a term of years at a rental of $20,000 for the term.

S. Yondorf & Co. have made to Louis and Lipman Eisenstein a loan of $24,000 on a new store and apartment building now being erected at the southeast corner of Fifteenth street and Millard avenue. The loan is in the form of serial bonds for $500 each, paying 6 per cent, and due from two to seven years.

The year 1915 will not only be a Mitchell year, but it will be famous as a year in which the Mitchell establishes another standard of values in automobile building.

Those who have seen the new model—especially dealers—are not only enthusiastic, but are clamoring for the first cars from the factory.

Our Vice-President and Chief Engineer, John W. Bate, who designed the original Mitchell, designed the "1915" from stem to stern and all his ingenious ideas and practical engineering innovations have been utilized.

The result is a car that beats them all—at a price $500.00 less than anything approaching it.

In fact there is no comfort, no "safety first" appliance, no accessory that adds to the enjoyment of automobile riding that will not be found in this car.

And every part is perfect.

Over 98% of the car is made right in the Mitchell shops which cover acres upon acres of space.

No detail is skimped — everything is weighed, judged, measured, tested with critical correctness which gives the great service quality for which the Mitchell is famous.

Read the specifications in another column.

Compare them with any other car and you will find the most in the Mitchell.

But after all don't judge the new Mitchell until you've sat at the wheel of the new model —until you get the personal touch—until you feel the road (whether it be rough or smooth) come up and caress the car.

We invite you to get this personal touch at our expense. We'll put a car at your disposal.

In the meantime send for the new literature which tells the whole story.

Visit Historic Mackinac Island and NIAGARA FALLS
THE MAGNIFICENT 3,000-TON STEEL
Steamship "Minnesota"
Through Lakes Michigan, Huron, St. Clair and Erie

This course is identical with the popular yachting cruise chosen by millionaires; yet the accommodations on their floating palaces are not so elaborate or complete as you will find aboard the "Minnesota," because, on account of her comparatively gigantic size, she is steady in the water and absolutely safe. Then, too, on the "Minnesota," which was built expressly for summer tourist travel, passengers form an interesting community, adding greatly to their mutual enjoyment, through the use of our broad decks for games, promenades; our parlors and ballrooms, with their ORCHESTRAS and Victrolas for dancing, cabaret, etc., entertainments and accommodations same as on the finest ocean liners.

Our staterooms are all "outside" and cool, and each passenger has a far greater deck and cabin space, per capita, than on any other lake steamship.

The "Minnesota" sails from Chicago at 1:30 p. m. every Saturday, reaches Buffalo Tuesday morning, leaves Buffalo Tuesday night and gets back to Chicago Saturday morning. Just a week—but passengers are permitted free stop-overs at all ports of call for a week or even longer.

The "Minnesota" offers the ONLY SATURDAY SAILING for the Buffalo ALL EXPENSES PAID cruise.

Absolute safety; wireless, and all modern appliances.

Think of It, Only $40 for All This—

No additional expense necessary. Is it any wonder that this cruise on the "Minnesota" has done more to popularize the week's lake trip than any other boat afloat?

Recollect that this cruise is cool and invigorating; there is no chance of being disturbed by business, and the "Minnesota" appeals to a high class of patronage—seekers of complete change in daily habit. The constantly changing panorama of passing craft and shifting scene—in fact the joys which are known only to wealthy yacht owners—are experienced by everyone who takes this cruise.

All meals—which, remember, are included in the cost of the ticket, $40—are served in the immense glazed observation dining room, where an unobstructed view of lake and sky gives an enjoyment little less than the pleasure of the splendid meals and perfect table service.

AUTOMOBILES, taken by passengers who wish to avail themselves of our unlimited stop-overs to tour New York and Eastern States, will be carried at the rate of $25 in each direction.

Call or write now for free booklet-folder giving complete description of the trip, the boat, and pictures of the scenes en route. Do not delay placing yourself in communication with us, so that when the time of departure arrives we will have just the accommodations you require. Address today.

SINGLES TO WEST, DOUBLES TO EAST IN TITLE TENNIS

Alex Squair Takes Honors at Onwentsia; New York Duo Also Victor.

MISS M. BROWNE STARS

BY JEWETT E. RICKER JR.
[Vice President Western Lawn Tennis Assn.]

Chicago and New York divided honors yesterday in the western tennis tournament at Onwentsia, when Alex Squair of the Wanderers' club took the title in singles, and George M. Church and Dean Mathey of New York the title in doubles.

Both matches were exceedingly brilliant, and the doubles contest—one of the closest imaginable—had the big gallery cheering until dark.

In the women's singles Miss Mary Browne, national champion, defeated her doubles partner, Mrs. Robert H. Williams, in straight sets, and then, playing together, Miss Browne and Mrs. Williams added the western title to their long string of championships by defeating Miss Steever and Mrs. Beard.

The day's program began in the morning with the playing of the semi-finals in singles.

Gardner Puts Up Battle.

In the upper bracket Alex Squair had little difficulty in defeating Paul E. Gardner of Onwentsia. Gardner was apparently resting for his more important doubles match and seemed unwilling to exert himself. The result was that Squair took three straight sets by the ridiculously easy scores of 6—0, 6—2, 6—3.

In the lower half match Byford was drawn against Joseph J. Armstrong of St. Paul. This match produced a real fight and was close all the way. The first set was nip and tuck all the way and Byford had many opportunities to win. The luck o' the game, however, was with Armstrong and he finally ran out at 9—7.

In the second set Byford showed greatly improved form and led practically all the way, the set going to him at 6—3.

Again in the third the play was as close as it well could be, but again the shade was with Armstrong, who won at 6—4. The fourth and last set was comparatively easy for the St. Paul man, who ran out at 6—3, giving him the match, 9—7, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, and a place in the final round.

Unfinished Match Completed.

Immediately after the playing of the semi-finals in singles Byford and Burdick were put on in their unfinished doubles match against Powell and Gardner. The score at the beginning of this match stood two sets to one for Byford and Burdick, at which point the match had been stopped Friday owing to darkness.

Upon resumption of play yesterday Gardner and Powell started out in whirlwind style and by taking the fourth set at 6—4 evened the set score at 2 all.

Byford and Burdick, however, came back in fine style and quickly assumed a lead in the fifth set. They were playing wonderful tennis, and, taking advantage of all their openings, they quickly ran out the set at 6—2 and the match, 6—2, 2—6, 7—5, 4—6, 6—2.

A big gallery turned out in the afternoon to see the final matches.

In the singles contest Alex Squair of the Wanderers' club was pitted against Joseph J. Armstrong of St. Paul, a former member of the Harvard tennis team. Armstrong, owing to his achievements in the east, was regarded as a slight favorite by many.

Squair Takes First Game.

Squair, however, quickly proved that he was at the top of his game and was out to win. He began by taking the first game on Armstrong's service. The latter, however, reciprocated in kind by taking Squair's and tying the set at 1 all.

Then the program switched and both men won their own services until 6 all was reached, when Squair, breaking through, took Armstrong's service, followed with his own, and won the set at 8—6.

In the second set Armstrong started out with a burst of speed and took the first three games. Squair, however, answered this attack by taking the net on every occasion and literally ran the Harvard man off his feet. The exhibition displayed by Squair was one of the best shown in Chicago this year, and he took five straight games and the set at 6—3.

In the third set both men fought stubbornly for every point and the games were all close. Squair, however, always had the edge and ran out at 6—4, taking the match in straight sets, 8—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Squair will now meet Clarence J. Griffin, holder of the western title, in the challenge round on Monday.

Doubles Match Starts Late.

The finals in doubles, between Byford and Burdick and George M. Church and Dean Mathey of New York, were not put on until 5 p. m. In point of excitement, however, few matches played in the west have excelled this one in interest.

The Chicagoans were slow in starting in the first set, and Church and Mathey ran out quickly at 6—1.

In the second, however, Byford and Burdick played magnificent tennis and gave the easterners no chance to win, taking the set at 6—3 and tying up the match.

The third set was close and games alternated with service to four-all. Then the Princetonians broke through the Chicago men's service, took their own, and won out at 6—4.

The fourth set held the crowd spellbound, and was so exciting that people

Bill to Steve.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 1.—Steve: Well old freind I am not getting in to no ball games but I am haveing the time of my life and seeing every thing they is to be seen as the fellow says. I am glad they is not no Sunday ball played in the east because if they was a man would not have no chance to get out of these here towns that we play in and see other places which has not got no league. Tomorrow is one of these here off days and I am going to spend it down to Atlanta city which is right down on the ocean or that is right a long side of the ocean because of coarse they could not be no town right on the ocean because they could not build no sts. or houses in the water. But this here place where I am going is the swellest summer resort they is in the east and I guess maybe I will get acquainted with some of the N. Y. 400 hitters which is what they call the swellest sosiety they is in N. Y. Schulte is going down there with me and he says he will interduce me to all them swell people that he has meet the different years he has went down there. I says to him Are not you a scared to interduce me to them people and he says No you will get a long all O. K. if you keep your mouth shut and then I says That is not what I mean. I know I will get a long all O. K. but are not you a scared that they wont pay no more a tension to you after they have saw me and he says O I dont care nothing about that because I am a married man. Any of them rich girls that you can cop out you are well come to and you wont hurt my feelings none. So you see Schulte is a pretty good fellow though he has not been hitting and should ought to be on the bench and me playing left field in his place.

Last Sunday I and him went down to Revere beech which is right near Boston and we had some time because we hired a batheing suit and went in swimming and the people down there could not hardly keep their eyes off of me. I say to Schulte Do you notice that all them people is looking at us and is they all looking at you or I and he says They is all looking at you and I says What for and he says they probibly think you have not never saw no water before and they want to see how you will act. I says I have to saw water before because I use to go in the water a hole lot when I was a kid down home and he says O yes but a man out grows a lot of habbits he had when he was a kid and forgets all about them. To look at you a man would think you had not never been in the water, and I guess he ment I was not all sun burned up the way some people is that goes in swimming a lot. I wanted to stay out to the beech all the eve. But Schulte says No he should ought to get back to the hotel and write some letters so we went back to the hotel and I did not have nothing else to do so I wrote a letter to the girl in Chi. I am not going to tell her nothing though about me going to Atlanta City where all them dames is because why should I get her all worried when they probibly wont nothing come of my trip because I wont be down there only long enough to just get acquainted with them and nothing more though may be some of them will want to write letters to me after words.

The hotel which we is stopping at here is pretty near as good as the one we was at in Biston though they dont have no fish here like they have in Boston because here they only got nothing but a river and up there they have the ocean the same one that Atlanta city is a long side of.

Well Steve may be you might think I would be sore because O'Day is keeping me on the bench here but I am not at all sore Steve because I got it pretty strate from one of the boys that he is saveing me up for the N. Y. serious which is skeduled next week and may be that one serious will settle the penant race and when they got a serious comeing that is so important like that why should they get there best men all wore out playing against Philadelphia which is not no ball team but a joy club. O'Day is not no bone head after all Steve no matter what they say about him and I guess may be he is pretty smart keeping me on the bench when the club are playing these here week clubs because what would it get him to stick me in this serious we are playing now and supose I should get hurt and then where would he be at when the N. Y. serious begin.

They say this town is slow Steve and may be it is but I have not never been no wheres where they was so many pretty girls and I guess I could cop some of them out but what is the use of getting a lot of girls on my staff when I got 1 that is nuts over me in Chi and they tell me that her old man has got a barell of money and may be if I should go a head and get married to her I would not have to play ball no longer. I guess they is a lot of pitchers in this here league that would be tickeled to death if I did quit the game but I guess I wont quit yet a while because I want to wait till O'Day has gave me a chance to show some of these smart alex that Wagner and Zimmerman and Leach and them is not the only hitters in the world.

This is not no place Steve for a big man like I to hang a round in because they is not hardly room for me to get a round in the sts. which is not no wider then some of the allies we got home and when I am walking on the side walk I am all ways a scared that a st. car will bump me in the sholders. It would not hurt me much at that Steve because the st. cars here travles a long like a funeral or some thing.

The hotel where we are stopping at is on chessnut st. and I says to Rodger Bresnahan Why do they call this chessnut st. and he says it was because they was so many chessnuts on it and then I asked him where was they at and he told me to walk 15 blocks up the st. a way from the hotel and I would find them and could help my self. Well Steve they is not nothing I like better than chessnuts unless may be it is prunes and so I walked 15 blocks up the st. but could not find nothing but old houses and stores. I was tired out from walking so I road back on a car and so I did not get no chessnuts and it cost me .05 for nothing besides getting me all wore out so if Bresnahan was trying to kid me he will get the worst of it and some of these days when I get a good chance I will bust him. Yours res'y. BILL.

WHITE SOX LOSE FOUR STRAIGHT TO SPEED BOYS

Red Hose Take Last of Series by Swatting After Cals Have the Lead.

MUFF COSTS GAME, 4 TO 2

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Boston's high geared Red Sox made it four straight from the slipping White Sox by capturing the final game of the series yesterday after many thrills and much excitement. The score was 4 to 2.

In the seventh inning, after two were out, Jack Fournier dropped an easy throw from Blackburne, and that little mistake probably cost Chicago the victory. Up to then Boston hadn't scored on Joe Benz, who was hurling in grand style. Only one hit had been made off him until Fournier dropped that ball. After that chaos and disorder ruled. One was on at the time of the error, and then with two on Young Janvrin, said to be the weak hitter of the Red Sox, whaled a triple to the fence.

Sends In Winning Run.

The White Sox were leading, 2 to 0, at the time. Janvrin's triple tied the score. Then Hoblitzel poked up a single, sending in the run needed to win. In the next inning Scott of Boston drove out a home run, just to make the beating decisive.

Ray Collins, the tall southpaw, hurled for the visitors and should have been beaten, but he profited by the luck that seems to hover over a winner. He allowed the Sox only seven hits and was in form, but two runs should have beaten him.

Fournier almost made up for his error with a two base clout in the ninth. Demmitt was on first at the time, and two were out. The blow put Demmitt on third and Jack on second, where a single would have tied the count again. But in this pinch Ping Bodie fanned, ending the game.

Crowd of 8,000 Out.

A big crowd of loyal south side rooters was out to see the final combat with the Speed Boys. Although the south siders had been licked three straight times by the Bostons, it seemed to make no difference to the fans. At least 8,000 of them assembled to root for their favorites.

With Benz and Ray Collins both hurling in swell form the first three rounds were lacking in excitement. Tris Speaker made one of his inimitable catches of Fournier's long wallop, which deprived the Frenchman of a three bagger in the second. In the fourth he turned another thriller which beat Blackburne out of a long swat.

White Sox Score.

Regardless of the great catch the White Sox put a run across the pan in the fourth. After two were out Shano Collins caught one squarely on the nose and sent it sailing toward the left field bleachers. Duffy Lewis sprinted back and got under it, but muffed the ball, and Collins pulled up at third base. Fournier followed this bit of luck with a clean single to right, and Collins counted. Fournier was nailed stealing.

The fifth round was tame, but the sixth presented a sensation. Joe Berger led off by hitting one over Speaker's head, incredible as that may seem. It was good for only two bases, though, because Speaker caught up with the ball, nabbed it on the first bound, and then winged it to the diamond. Blackburne sacrificed, putting Joe on third. Then Demmitt pulled a terrific drive to right, close to the foul line. It looked as if the ball would hit the wall, but Hooper dashed madly toward the foul line with his gloved hand extended, and the ball hit and stuck. Berger raced in from third after the phenomenal catch. Shano Collins followed by beating out a bunt, but was caught stealing.

Three for Hubites.

The seventh was sad. Benz began by walking Scott. Speaker was retired on a fly to Collins and Lewis died on a pop to Berger. Gardner bounded to Blackburne, and it should have ended right there, but Fournier dropped Blackburne's easy toss. Scott was on second and Gardner safe at first. Young Janvrin then lined to right center, the ball bounding over Bodie's head and rolling to the wall for a triple, while Scott and Gardner scored, tying the count. Hoblitzel followed with a single, sending Janvrin home. As Hobby started to steal Carrigan lined over second, but Blackburne running to cover the bag was able to stab the ball with one hand.

In the eighth after two were out young Scott whaled one to the wall in deep right center and made a home run of it by splendid leg work.

SLIPS AND SWATS CRUSH CUBS, 10-4

Six Runs Off Pierce and Humphries in Round Two Settle Clash.

THREE HOMERS POLED.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Another bully chance to close up on the crumbling Giants was lost by the Cubs today when they were licked, 10 to 4, in he fourth game of the set here. The Phillies got the jump with six runs in the opening inning on a mess of bad pitching by Pierce and a pair of boots by Corriden. With that handicap the Cubs never had a chance to catch up and the Dooins won as they pleased.

Pierce was unable to stay through the first round, retiring after four tallies had counted. Humphries was next and would have checked the Phils there, but Corriden blew two more runs home. Bert got by for the next three spasms finely, but was tagged for two earned tallies in the fifth, then gave way to a pinch puncher without result. Hageman finished and was thrown down by his support to the extent of two runs in the seventh.

The Cubs made seven swats off Mayer, but never could get into the game after the bad start. It was home run day, three grand circuit smashes being peeled off. Leach and Zim of the Cubs and Magee of the Phillies were the peelers. Leach started the scrap with his quadruple with the bases empty. Zim's and Magee's were good for two runs each.

Leach Swats Home Run.

The Cubs got only one run out of a mess of things in the first round, and might not have made even one if T. Leach had not whaled the second ball pitched high into the left field seats for a home run. Good singled, took second on Paskert's fumble, and third on Knisely's out. Zim was punctured and started a double steal on which Good was nailed at the pan. Heine stole third and had home base stolen, too, but it was on Saier's third strike, so it did not count.

The Phils made that run look sick in their half. Pierce passed Martin with one out. Becker singled and Magee flew out; then Cravath singled, scoring Martin. Paskert doubled, scoring Becker, and Luderus walked, filling the bases. Killifer pickled one safely to left, driving Cravath and Paskert home. Humphries was summoned to the rescue and passed Mayer, filling the circuit again. Byrne hit to Corriden, who fumbled, letting Luderus score, then threw wild to the plate, trying to stop Killifer, and everybody moved up. Sweeney threw out, Martin stopping the count at six runs.

Magee Also Gets Four Baser.

Humphries choked the Phils off for three innings with good support, but in the fifth they mauled him for two runs. Becker led with a two baser over Leach's dome, and Magee followed with a four baser over the tall right field wall. After that Humphries got three in a row.

The Cubs did not get a hit off Mayer from the first to the sixth spasm; then they came across with a pair of tallies. Good singled, but was forced out by Kniseley. The great Zim pulled a long drive into the left field stand, giving Peter a ride in the same car.

Hageman took the slab, with Hargrave as receiver, in the domestic seventh. A tangle in the outfield gave the Phils two runs. Magee was on first, with two out, when Paskert hit a Texas leaguer to short right. It belonged to Sweeney, but Good tried for it and could not reach it. Magee registered and Paskert reached second, from where he counted on Luderus' single to right.

Hargrave bounced a double off the right field wall with one out in the ninth. Johnston fouled out for Hagerman. Bates singled, scoring Hargrave, but Good flew out.

TINX TO TACKLE PITFEDS AT FEDERAL PARK TODAY.

Joe Tinker and his north siders will jump into Chicago today for one game at Weeghman park. The Pittsburgh Feds will be the opponents of the Tinx. After the game both teams will jump back to Pittsburgh to resume warfare there. The reason of the long jump for a single game is that Sunday ball is not played in the Smoky City and it is near enough to permit the teams to entertain in Chicago for the single day and reap the profit from the usual Sunday crowd. After the Monday game in Pittsburgh the Tinx move to Baltimore for a series of three games before returning to the north side for a long spell.

TINX TRIUMPH OVER PITTFEDS

Hendrix Outpitches Camnitz and Chicago Wins by Score of 3 to 1.

NINTH TELLS THE TALE

BY SAM WELLER.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Claude Hendrix outpitched Howard Camnitz in a pretty twirling duel today and the Tinx landed a 3 to 1 victory by driving across two runs in the ninth inning.

Each side registered one counter in the fourth inning. Two hits and an error were needed to give the Tinx their tally. A triple and a punk throw developed the run for the home talent. The error did not matter, as a single which followed would have scored the run anyhow.

Hendrix yielded five hits to the Pittfeds. Davey Jones, who scored the locals' runs, was the only Pittfed to reach second base in eight innings.

After the Chifeds had counted twice in the ninth, an error, a walk, and a fielder's choice filled the sacks in the Pittsburgh half. Hendrix showed his real class in that crisis by fanning two batters and forcing the third to pop a weak fly to the infield.

Off Camnitz the Tinx gathered only six safeties. The winning run in the ninth was earned legitimately, but it required two errors and a perfectly executed squeeze play to score their third tally.

Umpire Van Sickle had a rough time with the Pittsburghers all through the fray. He finally was forced to fire Shortstop Holly from the field, and the wild howls of the home athletes caused the crowd to start roasting the innocent ump.

Mixup Over Starting Time.

There were fewer than 4,000 fans in the stands when the combat started. Apparently the populace was not certain of the starting time, for stragglers drifted in during several innings. A big river regatta kept some folks away and a threat of rain in the air also cut into the receipts at the ball orchard.

The game was slated to begin at 3 o'clock, but the umpires failed to appear on the field until ten minutes after that hour. Some of the fans cheered derisively when they finally showed up.

Not a runner reached second in the first three innings. Two Pittfeds got to first, but Hendrix caught one of them napping and Wilson shot the other dead trying to steal second. Two hits and a walk were wasted by the Chifeds in the meantime.

A bum throw by Bradley gave the Tinx the jump in the fourth. Wilson started with his second single and Wickland glanced a hit off Camnitz's glove. Stanley's out advanced his mates and Wilson scored when Bradley heaved low to the plated on Beck's bounder. After Fritz popped Farrell walked, filling the bases, but Hendrix skied to right.

Triple by Davy Jones.

Davy Jones evened matters immediately. He poled a triple to left and counted when Wilson hit him in the back in an attempt to catch him off third. The run would have scored without Wilson's error, for Manager Oakes singled after two were out. The Rebel died stealing.

Davy Jones robbed Beck of an extra base swat when he plucked the ball out of the air while speeding towards the fence in the third chapter.

Camnitz retired the Tinx in order for three rounds after that. A single by Savage with one out in the seventh was the only break against Hendrix. Oakes forced Savage and Wickland made a tumbling catch of Bradley's pop fly back of third.

Umpire Van Sickle fired Holly for kicking on a called strike in the eighth. Rheam went to bat and singled to center, but was doubled trying to steal on Berry's third strike.

Beck a Batting Hero.

Wickland started the ninth with a punk Texas leaguer which Jones, Oakes, and Savage could have handled. Stanley sacrificed and Beck drove home the winning run with a single to center. Oakes' throw went to the stand and Beck reached third.

Fritz squeezed Beck across the plate with a bunt and was safe when Camnitz threw low to first, but later the Pittfed hurler caught him napping.

In the home half the Pittfeds filled the sacks before anyone was out, but Hendrix fanned Savage and Oakes and forced Bradley to pop an easy fly to Farrell. Stanley booted a tap by Menosky, who batted for Camnitz. Jones walked and everybody was safe when Hendrix tried to force Jones an Delehanty's sacrifice. The crowd pulled off some real rooting then, but Hendrix's spitter was too much for the Pittfeds who followed.

Notes of the Tinx.

Camnitz got fifteen Chifeds via the pop route. Twelve of the chances went to his outfielders.

Fisk, Prendergast, and Lange went to Chicago to take care of the pitching tomorrow.

After Holly was chased Rheam went to third and Savage moved over to the short field.

Tinker took fourteen players with him. Hendrix, Zeider, Black, Watson, McGuire, Brennan, and Clemons were left here.

Ad Brennan will go to Youngstown, O., on Monday to have Bonesetter Reese examine his left wing, which has been weak all season.

A few drops of rain fell after the Pitfeds filled the bases in the ninth, but there was not enough moisture to interfere with Hendrix's spitter.

ASK WAIVERS FOR LAJOIE; CHASE ON SCOUTING TRIP.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The management of the Cleveland baseball club has asked the other clubs of the American league for waivers on Napoleon Lajoie, the star second baseman, and Frank Chance, manager of the New York Yankees, already has waived any rights to the player. The probabilities are that Lajoie will obtain his unconditional release.

Neither Owner C. W. Somers nor Manager Birmingham will make any statement further than a denial that waivers have been asked, but that this action has been taken is known to be a fact. Lajoie, while neither affirming nor denying the fact, said he would rather wait until some definite action is taken in his case before he makes a statement.

While the Nap fans were digesting the Lajoie morsel of food for thought it was learned that Federal league agents are planning a raid on the Naps and on the Yankees. Hal Chase of the Buffalo Feds arrived in town with President Gilmore of the Federals. Chase snooped around the Nap camp looking for players with contracts containing the ten days' clause. He found only one, Doc Johnston, the Nap first sacker, and the three players the Naps received in the Gregg trade, Pitchers Coumbe, A. Rankin Johnson, and Catcher Ben Egan. What success he had is not known. Chase met with greater success with the Yankees and it is reported that he has grabbed off at least a couple of Chance's men.

DETROITER LOSES, 11-9

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Charles Evans Jr., western amateur golf champion in 1909 and 1912, won the title for the third time by overwhelming James Standish Jr. of the Detroit Country club, 11 and 9 in the thirty-six hole final at the Kent Country club today.

Never in the history of the classic has the winner given such a remarkable display of skill. Through the morning round he played golf that would have taxed the leading professionals of the world. Five times he was under par and only once did he go over, that being when he was stymied at the ninth hole and really entitled to a par 4. Against this remarkable work the young Detroit player had absolutely no chance to win and his only hope was to keep his deficit down to reasonable proportion.

No Chance for Standish.

Standish is a clever player, having twice held the Michigan title, but he was able to win only two holes of the twenty-seven played. Through the morning round he went hungry, but in the afternoon he won the first hole when Evans made a poor second, and later at the eighth hole Standish scored another when Evans was stymied on a long putt.

It was the most one-sided finals in the history of the Western Golf association, and Evans' work was so accurate as to be almost monotonous. Seldom did he miss the green on his pitches, and most of the time his ball was inside that of the Detroiter.

Taking a glimpse into the future, it looks as if Evans has the best chance in his career of winning the national open and the national amateur championships. If his play in these events is anything like his work at Grand Rapids he will finish at the top.

Evans' Wonderful Record.

Chick made his first round of the hilly course in 69 last Saturday and followed with a 71 on Sunday and in the qualifying rounds he made 73 and 74. Since which he had rounds of 75, 71, 70, 71, 76, and 77. Approximating several finishes, he averaged 71 8-12 for twelve rounds, which is a trifle better than the record made by Albert Seckel when he won the title at Detroit.

Evans' record breaking display rounded out a wonderfully successful tournament, in which the scoring was remarkably low, and while the new champion had an easy final, he was given hard battles by Joe Bole of Cleveland and by Ned Sawyer of Wheaton.

Weather Fine for Golf.

The Kent club was favored with a great week of weather, a rain storm on the opening day being the opening drawback. When the players teed off this morning the wind was from the southwest, which is the easiest wind on the course. For three holes Standish held his own, but the break came at the long fourth, where Evans took the lead, and from that point on steadily increased it. Both players drove well and when they got into the rough it made little difference, as the rough mostly was hay.

Standish missed several of his massie shots in the morning, but on the greens he was fairly accurate.

Match in Detail.

HOLE 1—367 YARDS PAR 4—Standish putted his drive to the edge of the rough, Evans getting 300 yards straight down the course. Standish put his iron second sixty feet by the pin. Evans made a perfect pitch, but missed a three foot putt and they halved in fours.

HOLE 2—388 YARDS, PAR 4—Both pitched to the green on their seconds. Standish missed an eleven foot side hill putt and Evans a straight one of six feet and they halved on 4.

HOLE 3—298 YARDS, PAR 4—Even drives were followed by short pitches to the green. Standish being thirty feet by and Evans eleven feet short. They approached close and halved in 4.

HOLE 4—525 YARDS, Par 5—A long drive and a sparkling brassey put Evans on the green. Standish skied his brassey and landed in the hollow sixty yards short of the green. Standish made a good approach, but missed a five foot putt and lost, 5—4.

HOLE 5—340 YARDS, PAR 4—Standish dubbed his mashie pitch to a cross pit and, although he got a good out to the green, he lost, 5—4. Evans missed a twelve foot putt for a three.

HOLE 6—353 YARDS, PAR 4—Evans' second ran off the edge of the green eighteen yards from the flag, but he approached dead. Standish was three inches short on a thirty-five foot putt and they halved in 4.

HOLE 7—128 YARDS, PAR 3—Evans put his tee shot from down in the valley three feet from the pin, a great shot. Standish stopped on the hillside. Standish overran the pin to the far edge of the green, Evans winning, 2—4, and being 3 up.

HOLE 8—375 YARDS, PAR 4—Evans laid one of his copyrighted pitches and holed a six foot putt for a 3, Standish getting a regulation.

HOLE 9—423 YARDS, PAR 4—A drive and an iron put Evans on the edge of the green. Standish stopped on the slope leading to the green and put his third past the hole thirty feet. Evans' third curled five feet to the right of the pin and Standish on his down hill approach putt laid him a dead stymie. Evans played the slope of the green, but missed and halved in 5. Evans, 4 up.

HOLE 10, 305 YARDS PAR 4—Standish sliced his drive to a deep trap and chopped out short. Evans was home in two, missing a twenty foot putt and winning, 4—5.

HOLE 11, 338 YARDS, PAR 4—This is a punch bowl hole and Evans played a great approach pitch from forty-eight yards, running down the slope to six feet from the cup. He made the putt and won, 3—4. Standish was over the pin on his second and missed a long down hill approach putt.

HOLE 12, 315 YARDS, PAR 4—Evans was home in two, but Standish dubbed another mashie pitch and was short, losing 5—4. Evans, 7 up.

HOLE 13, 150 YARDS, PAR 3—Both laid long approach putts dead and halved in three.

HOLE 14, 410 YARDS, PAR 4—Standish missed a fifteen foot putt and Evans one of ten feet. Halved in four.

HOLE 15, 542 YARDS, PAR 5—Standish putted to the rough, but got a good iron second. His third from 120 yards reached the green. Evans from sixty yards laid fourteen feet from the cup and they halved in five.

HOLE 16, 215 YARDS, PAR 3—Driving into a stiff wind, Evans laid his brassey shot on the green, ten feet from the pin. Standish was just off the green and overapproached, losing, 4—3. Evans, 8 up.

HOLE 17, 375 YARDS, PAR 4—Standish sliced to the edge of the rough, but reached the right edge of the green on his brassey second. Evans pitched to thirteen feet and holed a curly putt for a win, 3—4.

HOLE 18, 363 YARDS, PAR 4—Evans tried hard for a 3 on a thirty foot putt and overran the hole six feet, but holed for a four. Standish missed a fourteen foot putt for a three.

ANTHONY FREDERICK WILDING
QUIN HALL
SOME TENNIS PLAYER

BY HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

ANTHONY FREDERICK WILDING, born in New Zealand thirty years ago, but now a resident of London, is considered the greatest tennis player in the world. His right to that honor will be tested next week at the Forest Hills courts on Long Island, if the Australasians survive the final round against the Britons—as most critics expect they will—to determine the challengers for the Davis international cup, now held by the United States.

Wilding is regarded as the mainstay of the challengers from the antipodes, despite his defeat in straight sets by Norman E. Brookes, a teammate, for the first time since 1909 in the all-English championships this year. Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco, nearly seven years younger than Wilding, is the hope of the United States in its defense of the cup. McLoughlin, then—barring the upsets which occur in tennis as well as in other sports—is the disputant of Wilding's right to be called "the world's greatest."

Singularly enough, Wilding first began to take tennis seriously when he was 19 years old. At that age, McLoughlin, a San Francisco school boy, played in his first Davis cup competition in Australia. The modest Australasian confesses that at the same age McLoughlin was 15 better than he. He does not state what he thinks will be the result of their present meeting, but he confesses a great respect for the Californian's game, so great a respect, in fact, that he doubts the ability of himself and his teammates to lift the cup, while admitting that he expects his team to go clean to the challenge round.

McLoughlin and Wilding have met twice before. In both instances the Australasian was victorious. The first meeting was in Australia in 1909—McLoughlin's first year as an international player. Wilding, who beat Brookes for the first time that year, was at the top of his game, while McLoughlin was a dashing, impetuous, but inexperienced youngster. The measure of Wilding's success was 3—6, 8—6, 6—2, 6—3. At Wimbledon, England, last season, Wilding won from McLoughlin in straight sets, 8—6, 6—2, 10—8. Without disparaging Wilding's victory, it should in justice to McLoughlin be stated that he had been through a series of hard matches, and perhaps was stale, although he made no such claim himself.

Despite these two previous victories over the United States No. 1 man, Wilding considered the effort of lifting the cup so serious a task that he has played more tennis this season than for several years. He has practiced on the continent and in England. Barring the possibility of going stale, he will be in his best form in the challenge round.

Wilding, who was born on Oct. 31, 1883, in Christchurch, N. Z., is an athlete by breeding as well as by physique. His father, a barrister in New Zealand—and K. C., if you please—held a place on the doubles championship team of his adopted country for many years. Wilding Sr. was an excellent cricketer. As a boy in England, he held the public schools' long jump record and established a reputation in all the school sports. So much for his son's athletic breeding. Now for the physique.

Standing over 6 feet tall and weighing 190 pounds, Wilding presents an attractive figure on the court. Erect and alert, he meets his opponent with volley or ground stroke with equal skill, and that deadly "kill" of short lobs is always in reserve. In his grace and ease, and particularly in his long drives, he reminds one strongly of William A. Larned when the latter was in his prime.

Wilding received his early education in New Zealand, where two brothers and a sister comprise the rest of the family, but went to Cambridge when he was 19 years old. He had played cricket in all positions and football at three-quarters more than tennis up to that time. He was elected captain of the varsity tennis team which for three years easily vanquished Oxford, and because tennis and cricket came at the same season, he did not make the varsity cricket team, although playing on his college—Trinity—squad in both cricket and football.

"And were you a good student?" we asked.

"I did the minimum amount of studying to pass examinations," replied Wilding.

Perhaps that was an exaggeration, for after a year in chambers he passed his examination as a barrister in 1906, following his Cambridge degree in 1905. He then returned to New Zealand, and in the following year was proclaimed a barrister there.

But Wilding had made acquaintances and connections during his university days in England which called him back. For two years he was engaged in the lumber business, importing timber from Norway and Sweden, where he spent much of his time. Two years ago he became a director of the Victor Tire company of London. His duties take him to the continent often, and he combined his duties with his desire to practice tennis this winter after it became assured Australasia would make a determined effort to lift the cup.

"And what are your duties as a director of the tire company?" we asked.

"That's rather hard to answer," replied Wilding. "In England the director of a company really directs. I suppose you would say I am more concerned in the sales department."

Wilding ought to make a good salesman. He is a thoroughly likable chap with an engaging personality and an entire absence of egotism.

Wilding played his first Davis cup matches when 21 years old, in 1905, the year that he received his degree from Cambridge. Australia was defeated in a preliminary round by the United States, whose team consisted of Larned, Beals Wright, and Holcome Ward. He played again in 1906, and with Brookes in 1907 took the cup from England to Australasia, where it remained until 1912. He was on the successful defending teams of 1908 and 1909. In 1910 he won the all-English championship, and for three years thereafter captured all the principal tennis titles of Europe.

Because of business connections, Wilding has been inclined to lessen his tennis activity, but urgent requests of enthusiasts in his native country caused the reentry of the "Great Australasians"—Wilding and Brookes—into the international arena for '914.

Whether this combination will prevail, and whether Wilding will retain his position as the greatest tennis player in the world will be answered next week. Despite frequent rumors, so far as known there is no future Mrs. Wilding to offer congratulations or sympathy.

S—8.
H—A, 10, 7, 6, 4.
C—Q, 9, 7, 4, 3.
D—Q, 6.

Score, 0—0. North dealt. North bid one royal, east two hearts, and the bidding stopped. South had the opening lead.

The play:

	S.	W.	N.	E.
1	8 S	J S	A S	9 S
2	H A	H 3	H Q	H K
3	D Q	D 9	D 2	D 3

11	H 7	Q S	7 S	H 8
12	H 6	K S	10 S	H 2
13	9 C	10 C	D 8	H 5

East secured but three tricks and lost 250.

Whether east was justified in bidding two hearts is a matter on which players will undoubtedly disagree. This bid, however, would only be warranted if north and south had made some score toward game or were a game ahead. Had east passed, south would have taken his partner out with two hearts and north in his turn would have allowed the heart bid to stand or gone to no trump. East and west should have been able to save the game against either bid. There was considerable argument, also as to whether west should have bid two royals to get his partner out of the heart bid. West should not have done this, however, after the initial bid by north.

Lake Charles, La.—[To the Editor.]—Will you please decide this question for us?

North bid three no trump and failed to keep his contract, losing one. East revoked and north took 100 in honor column for penalties. Do the adversaries get the 50 lost by north? I know he might have three tricks below the line, but he didn't do so. M. H. H.

Answer—When the declarant takes 100 points for a revoke the opponents lose whatever penalty they may have secured from the failure of the declarant to make his contract.

North Lake, Wis.—[To the Editor.]—I've been requested to ask your opinion of my bid to the following hand:

Diamonds—A, J, 10, 9, 8, 6. Hearts—10. Spades—K, J, 9. Clubs—Q, 10, 8. Score, 0-0, rubber game. I dealt and bid two, diamonds; west, 2 hearts. My partner 2 no trump. Partner took ten tricks, scoring game and rubber. Our opponents censured my bid; it was deceptive, not holding ace and king. I think I was justified with a singleton and possibly 2 or 3 entries in suit. Was I not? E. J. H.

Answer—The diamond bid was not warranted in this case. The proper bid was two spades, holding the diamond bid in reserve for the next round if partner did not respond.

Auto Kills Former Chicagoan.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—An auto driven by Richard Kent ran into a low stone wall forming the side of a bridge at Dellwood park, jumped the wall and overturned, killing Fred Martin, formerly a Chicagoan. Martin Gallagher of Joliet was injured. Kent and another passenger, Will Hummell, also were hurt.

TENNIS HONORS WELL DIVIDED

willingly missed their dinners to witness its conclusion.

In the first part of the set it was all Byford and Burdick, the Chicagoans gaining a lead of 3—1. Then Church and Mathey scored three games and took the lead at 4—3. Byford and Burdick, however, came right back and tied the score at 4-all. The ninth and tenth games were also divided, bringing the score to 5-all.

In the eleventh—a long deuce game—Church and Mathey succeeded in breaking through Burdick's service and led at 6—5. It looked at this point like the easterners' set, but the Chicagoans came back splendidly and took Mathey's service, tying the score at 6-all.

From this point on the set was anybody's time and again, and all four players made the most spectacular of shots. Once, with the vantage game against them and the score love-40 on Byford's serve, the Chicagoans brought the crowd to their feet by running out the game, a long deuce session.

Wonderful Rallies Seen.

All four men during this period of the match were often close into the net and some wonderful rallies resulted, Mathey at one time returning a smash by Burdick when his racket was in back of him and his body turned directly away from the ball.

In point of closeness no match could have excelled this set, Church and Mathey finally winning at 14—12 and taking the match, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4, 14—12.

In the women's singles, Miss Mary Browne, national champion, showed her best form when she defeated Mrs. Robert H. Williams, her doubles partner, in straight sets, 6—4 and 6—3.

New Coach for Purple Linemen.

ELMER W. McDEVITT

Northwestern university athletic authorities yesterday took another step towards putting football on a good basis in the Purple institution by announcing that Elmer W. McDevitt had been appointed line coach for next season.

McDevitt, while a western man, is a graduate of Yale, where he played guard and was an All-American selection. He received his prep school training at Andover. He played on the Yale teams in 1910-1911. In 1912 he acted as field coach at Yale. After the Yale-Harvard game he took charge of the Navy line, and was largely responsible for the victory over the Army. Last year McDevitt was line coach at Minnesota.

The Purple authorities have been negotiating with McDevitt since the close of last season, but have been unable to close with him until now because the coach has been undecided about his law practice. Purple rooters believe that they have one of the best line coaches in the country, and, with Fred Murphy as head coach, alumni and students think that the coaching problem at Northwestern has been satisfactorily settled.

The addition of "Willie" McGill to the staff as trainer is a welcome one, as the Purple heretofore has been handicapped by insufficient training help.

SHERIDAN'S SCALP SOUGHT BY PLAYERS' FRATERNITY.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The baseball players' fraternity intends to take steps to have Umpire Jack Sheridan retired from service on grounds of incompetency, according to an officer of the organization, who declines to let his name be used because he does not care to arouse the wrath of Ban Johnson against him.

He stated today that Sheridan's work had been so unsatisfactory this season that the players of several clubs had been making notes of bad decisions, and when the fraternity makes its demand for the retirement of Sheridan this evidence will be presented.

Many of these wrong decisions have cost games. That they were wrong, players of the teams benefited as well as of the teams harmed will testify.

U.S. LEVIES ON BALL PLAYERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1.—[Special.]— he assessment of federal income taxes pon nearly a dozen members of the Phil- adelphia team was a feature of the nation- l pastime today. Just before the game with the Chicago Cubs a government tax agent went to the players' clubhouse and after asking a few personal questions decided that Dooin, Magee, Lobert, Alexander, Killifer, Paskert, Luderus, Byrne, Mayer, Moran, and a few others whose salaries range between $3,000 and $10,000 a year were in debt to the government.

EVEN BREAK IN CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—Cleveland and New York halved a double header this afternoon, Cleveland winning the first, 7 to 0, while New York took the second, 9 to 2. Mitchell's pitching was responsible for the Cleveland victory, it being the only one in the series of seven games with New York. McHale and Brown were hit hard and poorly supported. Second Baseman Turner of Cleveland was badly spiked in the hand during the first game. Outfielder Kirke, also of Cleveland, was ordered off the field by Umpire Evans for protesting a called third strike. As Kirke persisted in talking, the umpire pushed him with his shoulder toward the bench, and a fist fight was averted only by Catcher Sweeney getting between the player and the umpire. Scores:

Notes of the Sox.

Connie Mack and his big champions open a series of four games at Comiskey park today.

It was announced officially last night that Ed Walsh would pitch against the world beaters in the first game.

There may be some relief for the White Sox when they think that the Red Sox left town last night, but it's spoiled by the fact that the Athletics are arriving this morning.

Rumors were afloat that Yerkes of the Red Sox is about to jump to the Feds. President Lannin said yesterday he was willing to let Mr. Yerkes go if that was what he desired.

Jack Fournier knocked his thumb out of joint while sliding to second in the ninth. Umpire Chill snapped it back. The injury may keep the clouting Frenchman out of the game for a day or two.

In the first inning Blackburne made a wild throw to first on Scott's roller because the umpire was directly in the way. Scott tried to get to second, but Mayer was backing up the play and nailed the man easily.

Scott's homer was a drive to the fence in right center. Bodie recovered the ball and heaved it to Berger, who had to take it on a short bounce. He lost just an instant there before shooting it home and that instant was just enough to let Scott score.

Cub Sydelights.

It looks like anybody's National league pennant, with the Giants slipping and the Cubs skidding.

They don't look much like the Cubs we remember from former pennant crops.

Archer sailed a long one into the left field seats in the seventh inning, but it landed foul by a couple of inches according to Umpire Hart.

O'Day trotted out some reserves in the seventh. Williams singled for Humphries with one out. Bates drew a pass, but Good and Knisely grounded the side out.

Becker's two bagger in the fifth inning bounded against the top of the barrier in front of the center field seats, missing a home run by less than a foot.

The season's series between Cubs and Phils stands ten games to five in favor of Chicago. The Dooins have won three of their five games from the O'Days in the last three days.

In the home sixth a pair of singles put the Phils on third and first with one gone. Killifer tried to score when Corriden copped Martin's pop fly in short left, but Red wheeled quickly and doubled him up at the plate.

Byrne robbed Good of a base hit in the third inning by a brilliant stab, knocking down the ball with one hand and recovering it in time to get Wilbur, who can get to first as fast as most of them.

Chicago would have had another tally in the first inning if Good had hit the dirt when he tried to complete the double steal started by Zimmerman. Wilbur went in standing up and Killifer nicked him in spite of a high return by Martin.

Zim's attempt to steal home in the first inning was made with two balls and two strikes called on Saier. Heine beat the ball all right, and Killifer muffed it, but it split the plate and Saier had to swing at it, missing it entirely. Killifer recovered in time to tag Saier for the third out, and that vitiated Zim's steal and run.

Sherger Bible Class Wins Two.

Sherger bible class defeated the Second German M. E. in a double header yesterday by the score 12 to 2 in the first game and 7 to 1 in the second.

DECATUR BUMPS DUBUQUE; HONOR COMISKEY AT GAME.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Decatur pounded Gregg all over the lot and won from Dubuque, 7 to 0. It was Comiskey-Connolly day. The flag pole given by Comiskey was dedicated and Comiskey was presented with a gold medal from citizens of Dubuque by Congressman Connolly. A. R. Tearney, Three Eyes president, and other notables were here.

MOVIES BEAT ECLIPSES IN FOURTEEN INNINGS.

Roseland fans saw their second extra inning game in a week yesterday when the Chicago Movies downed the Eclipse in a fourteen inning contest, 4 to 3. Two hits off Howes caused that pitcher's retirement in the ninth inning and Penn was charged with the loss of the game when Govier booted the first ball hit, letting the Movies tie the count. A double by Aaron and Wright's triple in the fourteenth gave the visitors the decision. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Brooklyn pushed Pittsburgh into last place by taking both sessions of today's double header, 7 to 1 and 10 to 1. Daubert's home run over the right field wall after Dalton had scored Smith with a double was enough to win the opening game. Twelve Brooklyn batters faced O'Toole and McQuillan in the second inning of the second game, seven men scoring before a putout was recorded. Scores:

PAIGE

You cannot possibly appreciate the full significance of this announcement until you have actually seen the new Paige "36".

Then—like everyone else—you will agree that an absolutely new standard of value in the moderate price field has been established.

Paige cars have always been regarded as the pacemakers in automobile value, but now, all Paige records have been surpassed. For "this is the greatest Paige of them all"—and the price is only $1195.

If you seek an explanation of the extraordinary value which you will find in the new "36", consider, for a moment, the following facts:

In the first place this is a business organization. The destinies of the Paige Company are guided by ten men who have won national reputation as Manufacturers, Bankers, Lawyers and Directors of Giant Industries.

These men—known as "The Ten Associates"—were the organizers of the Paige Company and they have directed every phase of Paige activity, from the very beginning.

Their combined experience and judgment have been exercised to correct the thousand and one leaks, weaknesses, and general "mistakes" which characterize a youthful industry.

As a consequence the Paige Company has suffered from no serious blunders or costly errors in Administration, Manufacturing, or Merchandising.

These men have insisted upon economical, efficient management.

They have kept the company clear of all bonded indebtedness—they have authorized only conservative capitalization—and they have guarded the quality of every cotter pin which goes into the construction of the Paige car.

With practically unlimited resources behind them, the "Ten Associates" have built well and strong.

They have made no compromises with their own convictions—they have deliberately started out to build the best car for the money in the world—and they have unfalteringly held to this ideal.

In the light of these facts is it strange that the Paige should have won such a signal success?

Is it strange that this company can achieve each year new standards of excellence which are impossible for the less experienced—less perfectly equipped—manufacturing organization?

Think it over carefully and let the local Paige dealer show you the new "36".

You will be surprised—just as others have been surprised—to see how much automobile value can be purchased for $1195. F. O. B. Detroit, Mich.

RITCHIE ADMITS EXPECTING CINCH IN WELSH FIGHT

Willie Did Not Believe There Was Chance to Lose Ring Title.

THINKS REFEREE BIASED

BY KNOCKOUT.

Willie Ritchie, ex-lightweight champion of the world, arrived in town yesterday, and there wasn't a mark on the Californian's features to show that he was in a battle that cost him his title less than a month ago.

"When a ballplayer tries to steal and is caught they call it a 'bonehead' play," said Ritchie, as he looked sadly at his trunk labeled with the title of "lightweight champion of the world." "When a fighter tries to get away with something and gets nailed they tell him he ought to have had better sense."

Ritchie practically admitted that had he thought things over carefully before he signed for the Freddie Welsh match he never would have taken a chance on the other side.

Title Dear to Ritchie.

"My title was the dearest thing I had in the world," went on the ex-champion. "But I figured Welsh was a cinch for me and never dreamed that I was taking the remotest chance in losing to him."

Ritchie gives Referee Corri credit for being a straight and honorable man. But he did say that he thought Corri was biased in his decision, and that after looking at the pictures he couldn't see how any one could give Welsh the decision.

"Just to show you that I wasn't punished and that Freddie never reached my face at any time with a hard blow, I want to say that I had a little cut over my left eye that I got in the last day of my training. Just before I went in the ring I thought I'd fool Welsh by putting a piece of court plaster over my right optic, so I should have Freddie fooled as to which eye was cut. After the bout was over, neither of the plasters had been touched, and they were as firmly stuck on at the end of the twentieth round as they were just before the first. So you see he couldn't have landed on me very hard, or else I should have lost either one of the pieces of tape."

Decision Only Complaint.

Willie says that, outside of the decision, the English people treated him great, and he has no complaints to make.

Ritchie tried to get a set of films to bring to this country to show to his friends in private. The representatives of Uncle Sam, however, wouldn't stand for it. Bob Vernon, the New York sporting man, tried to get a reel of the pictures into the port of New York, but the pictures were seized by a customs officer, and Vernon came near being put in the bastile on a smuggling charge.

Ritchie intends staying here until the end of the week. When he arrives home in San Francisco he will superintend the construction of an apartment building that he is having erected with the $26,000 he received as his end for the battle with Welsh.

Charley White Preferred.

Ritchie will start training the latter part of October for any one who wants to box him. Charley White is Willie's preference of all the lightweights. The best weight Ritchie will make for the Chicagoan is 135 pounds at 5 o'clock. Ritchie said that he would never do ringside weight for any one.

Accompanying Ritchie on the return to this country was Leonard Hicks of Chicago, who made the trip across the pond. Hicks voiced the same opinion as Ritchie about the Corri decision.

CLABBY KNOCKS OUT SMITH; FIGHT LASTS 60 SECONDS.

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 1.—Jimmy Clabby, the American middleweight, knocked out Dave Smith tonight in the first round. The fight, which was billed for twenty rounds, lasted just sixty seconds. A heavy punch to the jaw did the work. By his victory Clabby becomes middleweight, light-heavy, and heavyweight champion of Australia. Smith outweighed him ten pounds.

Lake George, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The mile championship of North America for power boats was won today by Baby Speed Demon, owned by Mrs. Paula H. Conners of the Buffalo Yacht club, was second, with a performance of 1:24. There were no other contestants.

ANTIPODES TEAM IN CLEAN SWEEP

LONG SET TO KREUTZER.

Pittsburgh Pa., Aug. 1.—Australasia's tennis pair, Norman E. Brookes and Anthony F. Wilding, made a clean sweep of the Davis cup matches on the courts of the Allegheny Country club at Sewickley, Pa., today, by beating Otto Froitzheim and Kreutzer, the Germans, in the singles.

The real honor of the day fell to Kreutzer, who in the third set of his match against Brookes played the famous Australasian off his feet. Kreutzer could not hold the pace, however, and he had to let down on his sensational racquet work with the result that Brookes' final score was 6—4, 6—2, 6—8, 6—2.

The thing that amazed the crowd, which numbered about 1,000, was the fact that Brookes displayed signs of fatigue, failing completely to steady himself when the young German pressed him hard. In this set Kreutzer was the master and outplaced his rival better than 2 to 1.

Easy for Wilding.

Wilding had little to do to defeat Froitzheim at 6—3, 6—4, 6—2. The rallies were good and well fought. Wilding showed his ability to hold the winning shot, however, and he won without any apparent effort.

The German players left for New York City tonight and probably will stay at the Crescent Athletic club until they sail for Germany, which will be at the earliest opportunity. The Australasians will not leave here until tomorrow. Brookes and his wife will be the guests of a motor party which will journey to Boston, where the Australasians will meet the British Isles team for the right to challenge the American holders of the Davis cup.

New York, Aug. 1.—Only eight men were left in the running when the last match was finished today on the turf courts of the Crescent Athletic club, Bay Ridge, where the annual lawn tennis tournament for the championship of New York state in singles and doubles is being contested. Maurice E. McLoughlin, R. Lindley Murray, Fred Inman, T. C. Bundy, and F. B. Alexander are the most prominent survivors.

G. A. L. Dionne of the West Side Tennis club was McLoughlin's victim, 6—4, 6—3.

Bundy again defeated Walter Merrill Hall, a former middle states champion, 6—2, 6—2.

R. Lindley Murray, the California phenomenon, continued his uninterruptedly victorious march by taking Louis Graves into camp, 6—4, 6—1.

Alexander won from S. Howard Voshell, central New York state champion, 6—1, 6—4.

Inman put Hugh Tallant out of the tournament, 6—2, 6—1.

PRINTERS TO PLAY BASEBALL

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Delegations from all the cities represented, including Chicago, arrived tonight to participate in the seventh annual tournament of the Union Printers' National Baseball league, which will be formally opened tomorrow afternoon at Redland field with a double header.

Mayor Frederick S. Spiegel will pitch the first ball, while Garry Herrmann, chairman of the national baseball commission, and who has donated the Herrmann trophy for which the teams will contest, will be on the receiving end of the battery. Herrmann still retains his membership card in the printers' union.

The visitors were the guests of honor tonight at a reception and ball at the Gibson house, their headquarters. Two games of ball will be played every day but Wednesday at Redland field. No team knows against which it will compete, this being decided by drawing.

Various forms of amusement have been provided for by the visitors, and on Wednesday they will be the guests of Garry Herrmann at Laughrey island, where one game of ball will be played. The tournament closes next Friday with a grand ball.

FIVE GO AFTER MACKINAC CUP

Olympian, Michicago, Neoga, Stephia, and Redskin in C. Y. C. Race.

LOCAL BOATS IN LEAD.

Beating against a head wind from the northeast, five yachts started yesterday afternoon in the annual long distance cruising race of the Chicago Yacht club. The fleet is the smallest that has ever competed in one of the northern races, but most of the boats are evenly matched, and the struggle for the historic Mackinac cup is expected to be an interesting one.

The starters were Frank J. Snite's sloop Olympian, C. D. Chapin's sloop Michicago, and Dawson and Benedict's yawl Neoga of the Chicago Yacht club; Grant T. Stephenson's schooner Stephia of Wells, Mich., and Henry C. Grebe's sloop Redskin of Milwaukee. The race is a time allowance affair, and Stephia is the scratch boat. As the Michigan craft is not particularly speedy, and as it will have to allow from five to eight hours and one-half to the other contestants, Stephia is not conceded much of a chance to win the honors.

Chicago Sloops Favorites.

The race is thought to lie between the class P racers, Michicago and Olympian, and the critics are picking one of the pair to win the trophy, although if the weather during the trip is extremely light Redskin, formerly the local sloop Illinois, should do well. If the wind conditions that prevailed at the start of the contest hold for any length of time the race is likely to be a long drawn out one. If the wind shifts, however, and gives the fleet a reach or a run to the straits, the leading boats should check in at Mackinac late Monday afternoon.

When the starting gun was fired at 3 p. m. Skipper Barcal put Olympian over the line in the lead, with Michicago, Neoga, and Redskin following. Just before the signal was given from the judges' boat, Marigold, Skipper Stephenson got Stephia in irons and the big twin sticker lost several minutes before it at last was able to come about and get under way.

On Even Terms.

Olympian and Michicago, sticking closely together, came about and stood out in the lake, with the first named in the lead. When last sighted, the pair were on practically even terms. The skipper of Redskin held farther inshore, while Stephia and Neoga took a long tack to the southeast.

With Stephia on scratch, the time allowances were as follows: Redskin, 5:17:36; Michicago, 6:31:29; Olympian, 6:31:29; Neoga, 8:30:19.

Chairman Sheldon Clark of the regatta committee and Chairman William F. Cameron of the board of judges left immediately after the start of the race on the steamship Northland, which had orders to go out of its course and follow the race until sundown.

Yacht Owners in Protest.

A complaint from the owners of several yachts which participated in the race for the George B. Carpenter & Company trophy yesterday afternoon over the Arrow-Head course of the Evanston Yacht club, that other boats started before the signal was made to the regatta committee of which Raymond A. Eddy is chairman. A decision will be given today by the committee.

It was the second of three races which will decide the winner of the trophy. Undine, owned by F. B. Hutchins, was the winner of the race. This yacht also won the first race of the series held July 25. Dawn, owned by A. B. Andrews, was second and the Chiquita third.

Ten boats will leave the Evanston Yacht club this morning for a cruise along the North Shore.

RESOLUTE BEATS VANITIE IN RACE BEFORE THE WIND.

New London, Conn., Aug. 1.—Resolute won a fifty-four mile race dead before the wind from Vanitie today by 2:25 in elapsed time and by 5:35 corrected time.

From the start at the eastern entrance of Smithtown bay to the finish at the mouth of the Thames, both cup defenders sailed with spinnakers either to port or starboard. Vanitie had a forty second lead at the start, and it was an hour before Resolute caught and passed the Cochran yacht.

Resolute then gained slightly for the next two hours, but in the last twenty miles Vanitie drew up, but could not overhaul the Herreshoff yacht. The breeze covered eight knots throughout the run.

Clothes, Noise, Color and Other Fishing Things.

by Neal Brown

ARTICLE II.

[Copyright: 1914: By Neal Brown.]

I HAVE never seen any fashion plate fishermen, although I believe living specimens can still be found. I understand fox hunters still wear red coats, yet golfers have long since abandoned the zebra legs of golfing's infant days in this country. In those days striped legs were a condition precedent to the playing of golf. At this time it is not distinctively fashionable regalia for any kind of sport. This statement may be borne of an ignorance acquired in a habitat remote from the centers of fashions. In country golf fields golfing is conducted in commonplace shirt and trousers.

Nor do I attempt, in this brusque way, to remove feminine recreationists from the realms of fashion. The woman angler, or golfer, or tennis player, may be fast in fashion's chains, for all I know. The ruling passion may be strong even in the pursuit of sports a-field. But no chromo fishermen infest the country hereabout. One may see them in old pictures of our chromo age, dressed in impossible uniform, standing on impossible rocks, fishing in impossible streams, and catching impossible looking trout—but not in real life.

The nearest (and he is not very near) to this type is the genteel angler who now and then comes to fish. He will enter the stream for a day's work, clad in a slightly outworn suit that he has, by some miracle, saved from wife and her accomplice, the old-clo's man. He is decked in a collar and tie and a pair of cuff buttons. He may even wear gloves. He will return at night (accident not intervening) unsoiled, undisarrayed, neat, natty, and debonair, a miracle of gentility. I envy him, but cannot imitate him, for I must needs, owing to some uncontrollable law, wallow disheveled, and return bereft of human semblance. Neither example or precept nor all the pumice of polished associations can smoothe this roughness down.

I do not hold this esteemed angler up for disparagement, but only as a constant wonder. Happily, clothes do not unmake the angler and this one is liable to be a knight of approved skill and address. After all, clothes are but the tailor's stamp, an angler may be an angler for a' that.

In a work designed for the information of anglers something should be said of the utility element in clothing. The color should be inconspicuous, for very dark clothing, or a dark hat, may frighten many trout who would otherwise become familiar. A light green color is preferable, but in lieu of this khaki will do very well. The angler should blend into all surrounding objects, not present startling effects and contrasts. For the same reason he should avoid startling or quick motions and clumsy noises in the water with his feet. The water is a sounding board and a means of telephonic communication for some distance. A minor wrist movement is all that is necessary to cast a fly, and a wise angler does not splash the water except when he falls down. He should creep upon his prey as soundlessly as a red Indian and without unnecessary motions.

THE NEXT TIME I TAKE THIS JOB I'LL HIRE A MOTOR TRUCK!

"I look forward to the day when I can have accompany me an agile caddy."

I have seen a deer in the water undisturbed by the approach of a silent angler until a fly could have been cast over its back. There is a superstition that loud talking or vocal noises disturb fish. But this is untrue. The human voice, unless raised to vast volume, has no terrors for fish. The angler can sing songs, carry on raucous debates with a brother angler—if he be so foolishly hospitable as to allow one to fish with him—indulge in loud expletives addressed to a gibbeted leader, or practice orations upon the water like another Demosthenes, and no trout will be the wiser. But he must not smite the waters with clumsy steps nor take unruly tumblings over rocks and logs.

The only outer noise that seems to affect trout is that of nearby thunder.

But to return to clothes. I have known a veteran fisherman to paint his creel a light green in obedience to these principles. A vest with many big pockets is a useful garment. To this can be added a fishing jacket, or jumper, made of stout cloth and with a multitude of ample pockets. Blue jeans is good material for these garments. Either the vest or the jacket alone may be enough. The only object and purpose of these is to furnish a plentiful supply of pockets. The way to make them is to plan and make the pockets first and then fit the garment around them. The pockets are the principal thing—the balance of the garment a mere incident. These garments are not worn for protection from cold or rain. For the first, the angler will wear other clothing; for the last, will carry a common slicker tightly wrapped up and suspended over his back, or he will fend against rain by crawling under a log or a leaning tree or a thick topped fir or hemlock. These pockets are the fisherman's base, his supply train, his ever present help in time of trouble. He is no more efficient than his pockets. Every place on such garments where a pocket can be located should have one.

I do not favor the high water, short jackets affected by some good anglers. Their only use is to keep supplies out of the water. But there is no room in them for pockets. They are only one-storied.

A better plan is to have the jacket of fair length—say, about like a dinner coat. The lower pockets will occasionally be below the water line, but this can do no harm.

Fly books, matches, and other treasures damageable by water can be carried in the upper stories, and nonperishable commodities lower down.

This jacket should have very wide and deep inside breast pockets, one on each side, so that the fly books cannot lose out. Eight inches by five or six inches is not too much for these, and if the angler has an expansive chest he can make them even larger. There should also be smaller outside breast pockets for many little accessories. Lower down, should come good sized pockets and cavernous inside pockets, running all round the lower part of the jacket, and these should be deep enough so that their cargo will not shift, even though the angler be up-ended by some peril of the stream. More sportsmen lose their valuables through shallow, undersized pockets than from any other cause.

FORE!
TEE! HEE!

"Golfers have long since abandoned zebra legs."

In an emergency trout can be carried in these lower inside pockets, although it is a messy matter, and I have always found some other way of bearing home my sheaves.

The proper bestowal and transport of lunch is yet an unsolved problem. It should be of small compass, because no earnest fisherman treasureth his stomach, nor can he become very hungry before nightfall, yet there is no safe abiding place for it in his pockets.

Small though its bulk may be, it is too bulky for an upper pocket, unless it shall displace therefrom more valued inmates—a thing not to be thought of; if it be stored in the creel, either a rising water will spoil it or the trout carried therein will mix up in it, and cause it to lose its savor. If it be placed in a lower pocket it will often sink below the water line and havoc and watery dissolution come to it.

There is no second chamber in the angler's hat for it. It is an incumbrance, past adequate replacement.

I have sometimes carried it in a small leather cartridge bag over my shoulder. Until our vast inventive genius has devised some other plan this last storage may be used.

I look hopefully forward to the day when I can afford to have accompany me an agile caddy, who will walk along the shore near me, who will not fish unless I grant permission, who can carry the lunch, extra rod, hatchet for cutting down small trees that may steal a leader or climb a tree to recover a leader—who can, when my trout creel grows unduly heavy, transfer the contents to his own, and in general make himself useful. Why should a mere golfer be allowed by custom a faithful servitor of this kind, and not an angler?

But let us return to our apparel.

Do not attempt to buy this at any shop. There is no shop or place in the world that carries any proper garments of the kind. You must have them made to order, according to your own plans and specifications, which should mean those herein set forth.

The makers of ready made sportsmen's clothing know nothing about pockets.

It is rarely that they contrive a pocket that will hold more than my lady's handkerchief.

Have specifications made for the pockets and then fit the garment around these central values. You may be able to induce your laundress or some woman who has raised six boys on nothing a year to sew and finish the garment. But abate not your watchful care at any stage of construction. Your watchword should be, pockets—big pockets. When the angler thrusts anything into such a pocket he knows he cannot lose it out, no matter how distrait or forgetful he may be.

Yet he may lose things in such a pocket, but he will know their general location. He may have to sap and mine and blast out superimposed strata and unearth ancient remains before he finds what he is after.

The angler of profound wisdom will keep a careful mental inventory of the contents of each pocket, and of the place where each article is bestowed. He should be as exact and methodical in this as a bookkeeper or Lamb's London clerk.

There will be a certain order in disorder in these pockets, yet nothing need ever be mislaid, nothing lost, even though it cannot be immediately found. It will come to light sooner or later. Many a time I have worked these old and abandoned shafts and found long lost valuables.

WAR MAY STOP YACHT RACE.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Sir Thomas Lipton is seriously considering whether if Great Britain is involved in the European war, he will race his yacht Shamrock IV. for the America cup this year. Sir Thomas inclines to the opinion there should be no race while the country is engaged in war.

Olympic Cup Golf Team Winners

Inquisitive Fans.

Minneapolis, Minn.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Batter hits fly ball, which strikes on foul ground between home and third and then bounds in on fair ground. How do the major league umpires rule on this? TWO READERS.

If the ball settled on fair ground before being touched, or was first touched while on fair ground, it was a fair ball.

Polo, Ill.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—What happens [a] when, with first and third occupied, the pitcher makes a balk to home plate; [b] when, with first and third occupied, the pitcher makes a balk to first base; [c] when, with first and third occupied, the pitcher makes a balk to third base; [d] when, with no one on bases and the call three and two on the batter, the pitcher makes a balk at home plate; [e] when, with none on bases and the call nothing to nothing on the batter, the pitcher makes a balk to home plate? M. T. DINGLEY.

[a] Both runners advance one base. [b] Both runners advance one base. [c] Both runners advance one base, but a bluff to throw to third is not a balk. [d and e] Depends on which one of the nine kinds of balk is made. An illegal delivery would count as a "ball," and there is no other kind of balk with the bases empty.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A is on third and B on second, with one out. C hits to the pitcher, who throws him out at first. A remains on third, but B, thinking there were two out already, runs over to third and stands on the base with A. Ball is thrown to catcher, who tags home plate, claiming a forceout. B, however, returns to second and A remains on third. Neither was tagged with the ball. Is either out? T. E. W.

Only C is out, as B could not force A off third and had the right to get back to second if he could. The last sentence of rule 59 defines the only way in which a forceout can be made.

Virden, Ill.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Man on first. Foul ball is batted on right field line. Runner crosses second. Umpire calls ball foul. Runner returns to first without touching second. Is runner out? W. REEPER.

Not unless the foul was caught on the fly.

Fargo, N. D.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—[1] Runner going to first on infield hit. Play is close. He goes over base, failing to touch it. Does not baseman have to touch him with ball before he is out, or would the fact the baseman held the ball on the base retire him? [2] Runner on first. Batter hits to short. Runner slides to second, but misses bag. Second baseman touches second and throws to first, retiring batsman. Was man on second out? I claim second baseman had to touch him off the base and that section 13 of rule 56 does not apply. J. CAREY.

[1] Runner is out, under section 5, rule 56. [2] Both men are out. Section 13 has nothing to do with it, but section 11 has.

Oshkosh, Wis.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Man on second base tries to steal third. Catcher throws ball and in trying to field it as runner slides into third base knocks it into coacher's territory. Coacher tells third baseman the ball went into left field and the runner scores. At the same time the ball rolls between the coacher's feet, where it rested. Opposing players say coacher stepped on ball and hid it, and umpire changes his decision and calls runner out when he had declared him safe. F. S.

It was up to the umpire to decide whether or not the coacher deliberately interfered with the play, and his verdict probably was correct.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—New York Nationals won 48 and lost 32 games. Cubs won 48 and lost 37 games. How many games were the Cubs behind the Giants?

Two and a half games.

Oak Park, Ill.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—1. With runners on second and third and two out the batter triples. Long after both runners have crossed home plate the ball is relayed home and the man who was on third is tagged out for failure to touch home plate. Does the run of the man who was on second base count? 2. If there had been less than two out would not the second runner be out for scoring before a preceding baserunner had scored or been retired? If not, why not? A. HOLDEN.

1. No. 2. No. The second run would have counted. Major league umpires would rule that the first runner was technically out when he failed to touch the plate.

S. Doow, Chicago: "The Tribune" does not decide bets.

A. C. Fraiel, Pontiac, Ill.: Walter Johnson is an American, born in Pennsylvania.

Minneapolis, Minn.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—[1] Runner on first. Batter hits a long fly which looks safe. Left fielder makes catch when runner is turning second on way to third. Runner starts back to first, but fails to touch second base, and reaches first safely. Can he be retired by holding the ball on second base, or does he have to be touched? Does rule 56, section 13, apply? [2] Pitcher makes move to throw to first, which is occupied, but the ball slips out of his hand and falls behind him. Is it a balk? [3] Pitcher winds up to deliver ball to batter, with no bases occupied. Ball slips out of his hand and falls behind him. Is umpire justified in calling a ball on the batter on account of this nondelivery? W. S. A.

[1] Yes. [2] Yes. [3] A balk of this kind never counts as a ball, but would entitle a base runner to advance.

Ottumwa, Ia.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Is a game that is called when the score is a tie registered as an official game? Does the box score of such a game count in the official averages of the players? O. H. HOFFMAN.

A tie game of five innings or more counts in the official averages of the players but in no other way. It is considered a postponed game to be played off.

Negaunee, Mich.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—With runners on second and third bases the batter makes a long hit to center. The center fielder makes a sensational catch and returns the ball to second before the runner who was occupying same could return, thereby retiring the side. The runner on third meantime held third base until the fly was caught, then scored before the putout at second was completed. Does the run count? WALTER HANSEN.

Certainly. See rule 59.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—1. Pitcher winds up to pitch and batter steps out of box. Is it a ball or strike as the case may be? 2. If there was a runner on base and batter stepped out of box just as pitcher was going to deliver and pitcher failed to pitch, would it be a balk? 3. Runners on first and second. Batter hits a fast one to third which is fumbled. Runner from second turns third, but fails to touch base. Baseman recovers ball and holds it on third before runner returns. Umpire calls him safe, saying he had to be touched. Would not merely touching third retire the batter? A. A. READE.

1. Yes. 2. Yes. 3. Runner at third was forced out and did not have to be touched.

R. D. Friday, Swift Current, Sask.: The recognized world's champions previous to 1900 were: 1884, Providence [National]; 1885, draw between St. Louis Browns and Chicago Nationals; 1886, St. Louis Browns; 1887, Detroit Nationals; 1888, New York Nationals; 1889, New York Nationals; 1890, Brooklyn [American association]. There was no world's series from 1890 to 1903, although the first and second teams in the National league played for the Temple cup in 1894, 1895, 1896, and 1897. New York and Cleveland won the cup once apiece and Baltimore twice.

St. Joseph, Mo.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—1. Pitcher, standing on pitcher's slab, winds up to deliver ball to batsman. Runner on third attempts to steal home and catcher steps up in front of home plate in an attempt to retire the runner, but does not keep the batsman from hitting the ball safely. Are runs scored on this play legal or would it be regarded as a balk because the catcher stepped out of his lines and only one run allowed? 2. Is it customary for minor leagues to pay umpires' transportation from their homes to the league when ordered to report? W. G. KIRBY.

1. If a ball is hit safely before a balk is declared umpires usually let the play go as it was made. Sounds impossible that a catcher could "step up in front of the plate" without keeping the batsman from hitting the ball. 2. Do not know, but John Holland of the St. Joseph team probably can inform you. If not, J. H. Farrell, Auburn, N. Y., can.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Ball is batted to shortstop, who stoops to field ball, but allows it to pass untouched between his legs. Scorer gives batter a hit. Should not batter be charged with a time at bat and shortstop charged with an error? FAN.

Batsman should be charged with a time at bat whether it is scored as a hit or an error, but the decision calling it a hit or an error is left to the scorer's judgment.

G. I. Champine, Chicago: Walsh joined the White Sox in the spring of 1904 and became a regular pitcher in 1906. He was with Newark in 1903.

Martin Warshausky, Chicago: No, to both questions.

WILLARD STANDS AS "WHITE HOPE" TO STOP JOHNSON

Langford Also Conceded Chance to Dethrone Big Champion.

ECHO OF PARIS SCANDAL

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

There are only two heavyweight fighters in the world today who are considered capable of dethroning Jack Johnson as world's champion. Unfortunately for pugilism, perhaps, it happens that one of these possibilities is, like the champion, a negro. That is Sam Langford, known the world over as the "Boston Tar Baby." The other is Jess Williard, the Kansas cowboy.

The performance of Johnson in that odor bearing contest of twenty rounds with Frank Moran of Pittsburgh recently in Paris has convinced all those who are "in the know" that the negro is just about ready for plucking. Johnson no longer is the invincible Johnson that rocked Jim Jeffries to defeat in Nevada four years ago. In fact, it is the general belief that the first strong young aspirant with a hard punch and a little bit of cleverness to come along will upset him.

Langford Hot After Johnson.

Sam Langford for years has been chasing Johnson. When Jack captured the championship by stopping Tommy Burns in Australia, Langford immediately set sail for Europe in an effort to connect somewhere and force Johnson into a match. He failed to gain any success, for Johnson was a wise bird and sidestepped so prettily that a lot of fans did not believe that Jack was evading the "Tar Baby."

There never was a time since Johnson has held the title that he couldn't draw down a big chunk of money for fighting Langford. The persistent efforts of Langford now, however, seem to have placed the champion in a corner from which he will find it hard to emerge without engaging in actual combat with Sam.

Willard Has a Chance.

Jess Willard, the only other battler conceded a good chance against Johnson, has started on his way for Europe, where he hopes to make a match with the champion. In tow of his noisy manager, Tom Jones, Willard may be able to land a match with the negro.

In knowledge of the fighting game there is no comparison between Johnson and Willard, but the negro, if he stacks up against the cowboy, will find that he is tackling the most sizable game that he has run against in many a long day. It will not be a case of Johnson towering over his opponent; on the contrary, it will be the other way, for Willard has several inches the best of Johnson in height and reach and carries just as much weight.

Besides this advantage, Willard is game and can hit hard. He has shown on several occasions that if he gets set he is capable of planting a punch on the jaw that will send an opponent into dreamland. Willard is a willing mixer, which was just what the champion liked to meet when he was "good," but for him to try that game against a man of Willard's strength, now that he has passed out of the invincible class, would be very likely to result in his coming out second best.

Tells of "Frameup."

A new angle was sprung the other day by a Chicago fan who saw the affair between Johnson and Moran in the French capital. This fan also was present in London when Referee Eugene Corri gave the decision that took the world's lightweight championship away from Willie Ritchie.

Dan McKettrick, who looks after the managerial interests of Moran, was the first to start slinging the mud after the bout had been staged. He declared that an agreement for Moran to lay down in the eighth round had been entered into the morning of the fight. Johnson came back with an answer in which he declared that McKettrick had not told the truth. Johnson said that the agreement made was for the bout to go the limit of twenty rounds. "You pay your money and take your choice" if you want to know who is telling the truth in this case.

Mouthpiece for Moran.

Now, here's the new angle; The Chicagoan who saw the bout happens to be well acquainted with both Johnson and McKettrick. McKettrick is the mouthpiece for Moran, who has kept a discreet silence, since the fight. What the fan had to say is the first first hand information received in this country, and because of his acquaintance in the fight game he insisted that his name be withheld. Here's what he said:

"When I was in London just before the Ritchie-Welsh contest was held I met McKettrick, who is Moran's manager. He asked me if I had lost any money over in Paris on the Johnson-Moran bout. I told him I hadn't, because I wasn't taking any chance on a crooked contest. Then he told me that the bout was a frameup and that Georges Carpentier, the referee, was scheduled to play the part of the 'goat,' for which he was to receive ample reward later on.

Carpentier Gets Cold Feet.

"Here's the way the scheme had been worked out. Carpentier was to disqualify Johnson on a technicality, which would give the world's championship to Moran. Then the crooked wheel was to be given another turn and Carpentier was to battle Moran and win the championship from the Pittsburgher.

"It will be remembered that Carpentier in one of the early rounds cautioned Johnson for foul work. According to the frameup, only one warning was to be given before the disqualification. The few who knew about the scheme expected to see the French referee declare Johnson loser, but he didn't, for the simple reason that he got cold feet and was afraid to take the chance."

Unfortunately for gilism, perhaps, it happens that one of ese possibilities is, like the champion, a egro. That is Sam Langford, known the orld over as the "Boston Tar Baby." e other is Jess Williard, the Kansas wboy.

The performance of Johnson in that or bearing contest of twenty rounds ith Frank Moran of Pittsburgh recently Paris has convinced all those who are in the know" that the negro is just out ready for plucking. Johnson no nger is the invincible Johnson that cked Jim Jeffries to defeat in Nevada ur years ago. In fact, it is the general lief that the first strong young aspirant ith a hard punch and a little bit of everness to come along will upset him.

Langford Hot After Johnson.

Sam Langford for years has been chas- g Johnson. When Jack captured the ampionship by stopping Tommy Burns Australia, Langford immediately set il for Europe in an effort to connect mewhere and force Johnson into a atch. He failed to gain any success, r Johnson was a wise bird and side- epped so prettily that a lot of fans did t believe that Jack was evading the Tar Baby."

There never was a time since Johnson as held the title that he couldn't draw wn a big chunk of money for fighting angford. The persistent efforts of angford now, however, seem to have aced the champion in a corner from hich he will find it hard to emerge with- t engaging in actual combat with m.

Willard Has a Chance.

Jess Willard, the only other battler con- ded a good chance against Johnson, has arted on his way for Europe, where he opes to make a match with the cham- on. In tow of his noisy manager, Tom ones, Willard may be able to land a atch with the negro.

In knowledge of the fighting game there no comparison between Johnson and illard, but the negro, if he stacks up gainst the cowboy, will find that he is ckling the most sizable game that he as run against in many a long day. It ill not be a case of Johnson towering ver his opponent; on the contrary, it ill be the other way, for Willard has everal inches the best of Johnson in eight and reach and carries just as uch weight.

Besides this advantage, Willard is ame and can hit hard. He has shown n several occasions that if he gets set he s capable of planting a punch on the jaw hat will send an opponent into dream- nd. Willard is a willing mixer, which as just what the champion liked to meet hen he was "good," but for him to try hat game against a man of Willard's trength, now that he has passed out of he invincible class, would be very likely result in his coming out second best.

Tells of "Frameup."

A new angle was sprung the other day y a Chicago fan who saw the affair etween Johnson and Moran in the rench capital. This fan also was pres- nt in London when Referee Eugene orri gave the decision that took the world's lightweight championship away rom Willie Ritchie.

Dan McKettrick, who looks after the managerial interests of Moran, was the irst to start slinging the mud after the out had been staged. He declared that n agreement for Moran to lay down in he eighth round had been entered into he morning of the fight. Johnson came ack with an answer in which he de- lared that McKettrick had not told the ruth. Johnson said that the agreement made was for the bout to go the limit of wenty rounds. "You pay your money nd take your choice" if you want to now who is telling the truth in this ase.

Mouthpiece for Moran.

Now, here's the new angle: The Chi- agoan who saw the bout happens to be well acquainted with both Johnson and McKettrick. McKettrick is the mouth- iece for Moran, who has kept a dis- reet silence, since the fight. What the an had to say is the first first hand in- ormation received in this country, and because of his acquaintance in the fight ame he insisted that his name be with- eld. Here's what he said:

"When I was in London just before the Ritchie-Welsh contest was held I met McKettrick, who is Moran's mana- ger. He asked me if I had lost any money over in Paris on the Johnson-Moran bout. I told him I hadn't, because I wasn't tak- ing any chance on a crooked contest. Then he told me that the bout was a frameup and that Georges Carpentier, the referee, was scheduled to play the part of the 'goat,' for which he was to receive ample reward later on.

Carpentier Gets Cold Feet.

"Here's the way the scheme had been worked out. Carpentier was to disqualify Johnson on a technicality, which would give the world's championship to Moran. Then the crooked wheel was to be given another turn and Carpentier was to battle Moran and win the championship from the Pittsburgher.

"It will be remembered that Carpen- tier in one of the early rounds cautioned Johnson for foul work. According to the frameup, only one warning was to be given before the disqualification. The few who knew about the scheme expected to see the French referee declare Johnson loser, but he didn't, for the simple reason that he got cold feet and was afraid to take the chance."

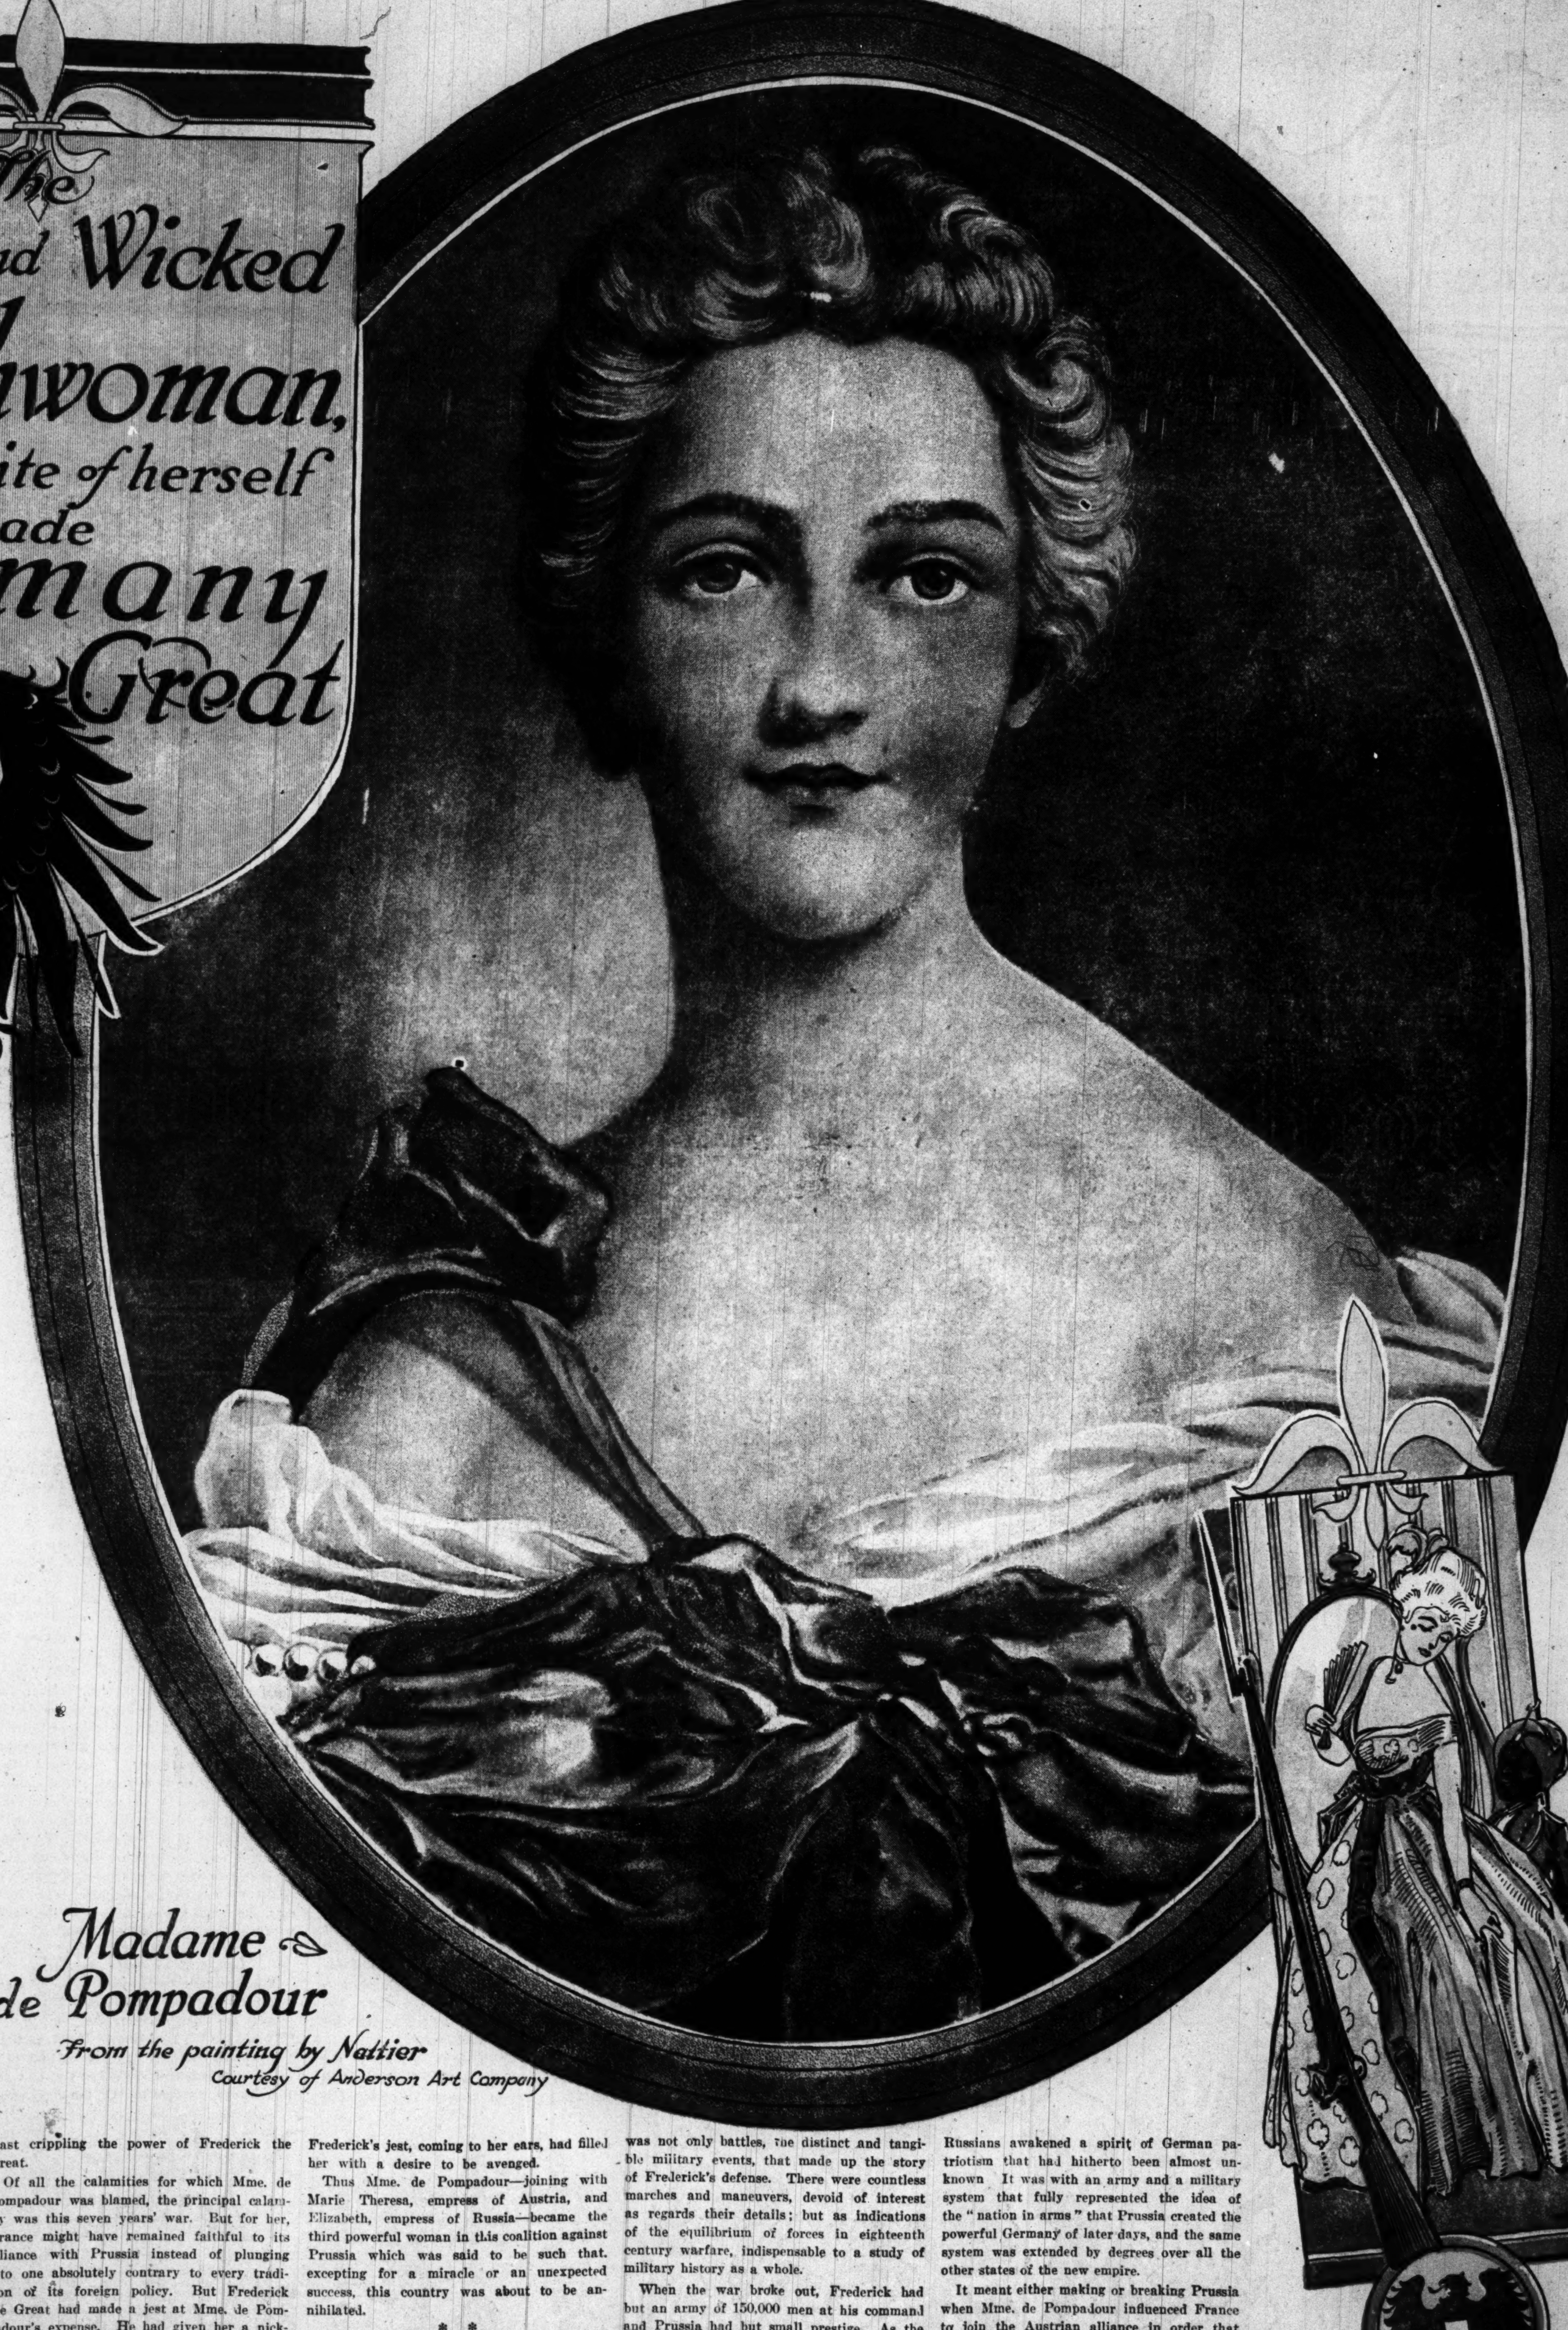
The Weak and Wicked Frenchwoman, Who, in spite of herself made Germany Great



Madame de Pompadour

From the painting by Nattier

IN reviewing Mme. de Pompadour's career we are inclined to conclude that surely naught but evil followed as the result of her influence over that sorry sovereign, Louis XV. of France. The blame for so much that was destructive has been attributed to the mistress who first captured the monarch with her physical charms, and later, through marvelous cunning, kept him in her power. But a close study of history reveals that after all, in spite of herself, Mme. de Pompadour made Germany great.

Much has been written about how, for nearly twenty years (1745-1764) the whims and caprices of this little bourgeoise ruled the realm. Beautiful and pretty at the same time—a phenomenon indeed—she was a prime minister in petticoats, who had her own political system, appointed or disgraced ministers, directed fleets and armies, and reversed the time honored alliances of France. She was the queen of fashion in a society where corruption blossomed luxuriously, and in a reign of satiety she managed to remain indispensable to the day of her death.

Selfish as Mme. de Pompadour was in all her motives, Germany has reason to be grateful today that there was in the ensemble of this woman's countenance such a mixture of vivacity and tenderness that she was at will superb, imperious, calm, roguish, lively, sensitive, inquisitive, attentive, accordingly as she gave to her glances, to her lips, to her forehead, such or such a variation or expression; that she sang, played masterfully on almost any instrument, danced with the grace of a nymph, and excelled especially in the art of always displaying her attractions at the proper time and setting them forward only at the favorable moment when they should be best appreciated.

It really turned out for the best interests of Germany that Louis XV., while hunting in the forests of Senart, chanced to meet this daughter of a clerk and wife of Le Normant d'Etioles, and that he drew her from the mire in a manner equally scandalous and unpardonable.

Germany was helped by Mme. de Pompadour's invented negligees, the shapes of which were such that they resembled jackets in the Turkish style, tight about the neck and buttoned about the wrist; adapted to the roundness of the bust, and fitted closely about the hips, making prominent all the beauties of the figure, by appearing to conceal them.

Germany was helped by all these charms, which first enslaved the king.

Frederick's Costly Jest.

It was at a time when the ablest ministers and the greatest generals of the army were either vilely submissive to Mme. de Pompadour, or unjustly sacrificed to her vanity or to her vengeance, that there came the event of the seven years' war, which arose from the formation of a coalition between Austria, France, Russia, Sweden, and Saxony against Prussia, with the object of destroying or at least crippling the power of Frederick the Great.

Of all the calamities for which Mme. de Pompadour was blamed, the principal calamity was this seven years' war. But for her, France might have remained faithful to its alliance with Prussia instead of plunging into one absolutely contrary to every tradition of its foreign policy. But Frederick the Great had made a jest at Mme. de Pompadour's expense. He had given her a nickname that reminded the world too well of what she really was. And at this time, when the physical charms of her youth were vanishing, when she was busy with every sort of intrigue to have position as well as power, Frederick's jest, coming to her ears, had filled her with a desire to be avenged.

Thus Mme. de Pompadour—joining with Marie Theresa, empress of Austria, and Elizabeth, empress of Russia—became the third powerful woman in this coalition against Prussia which was said to be such that, excepting for a miracle or an unexpected success, this country was about to be annihilated.

Victories Arouse German Patriotism.

What was really the result? Realizing the tremendous odds against her, Prussia put up a resistance which laid the solid, if then the unseen, foundations of modern Germany. It was not only battles, the distinct and tangible military events, that made up the story of Frederick's defense. There were countless marches and maneuvers, devoid of interest as regards their details; but as indications of the equilibrium of forces in eighteenth century warfare, indispensable to a study of military history as a whole.

When the war broke out, Frederick had but an army of 150,000 men at his command and Prussia had but small prestige. As the result of the defense which he put up, Prussia emerged from the war as an undoubted power of the first rank, and the expansion of the country was assured.

The glorious victories over the French and Russians awakened a spirit of German patriotism that had hitherto been almost unknown. It was with an army and a military system that fully represented the idea of the "nation in arms" that Prussia created the powerful Germany of later days, and the same system was extended by degrees over all the other states of the new empire.

It meant either making or breaking Prussia when Mme. de Pompadour influenced France to join the Austrian alliance in order that she might be avenged for Frederick's jest. And Prussia was not broken. Instead, the military spirit was hammered into her which resulted in making Germany the power that she is today.

THIS IS CHICAGO

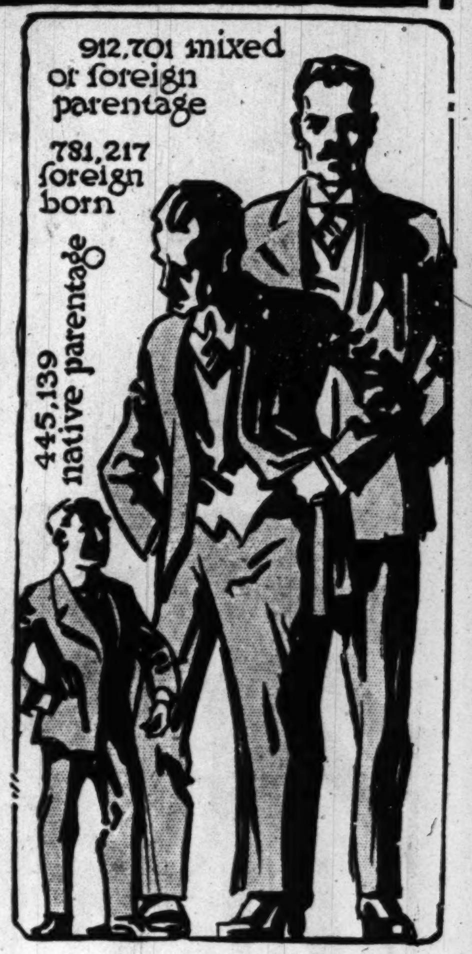
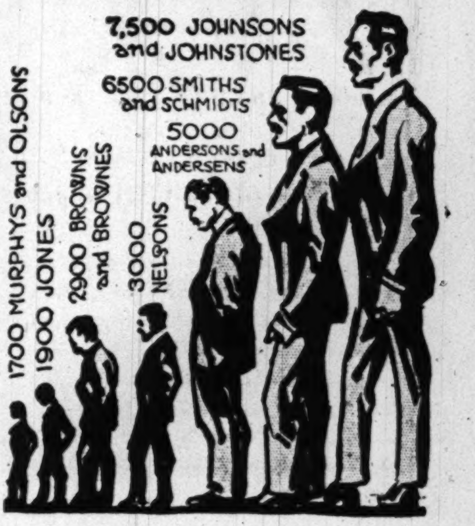
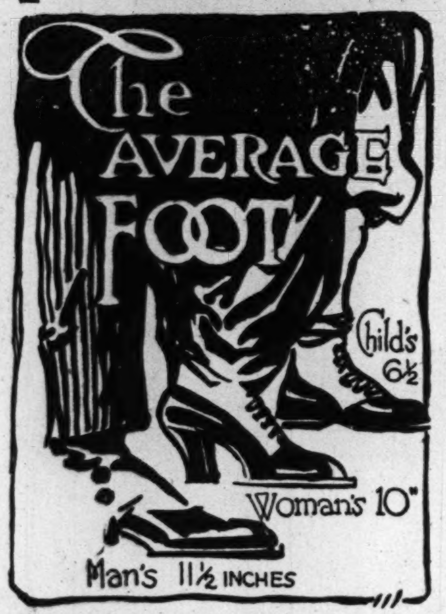
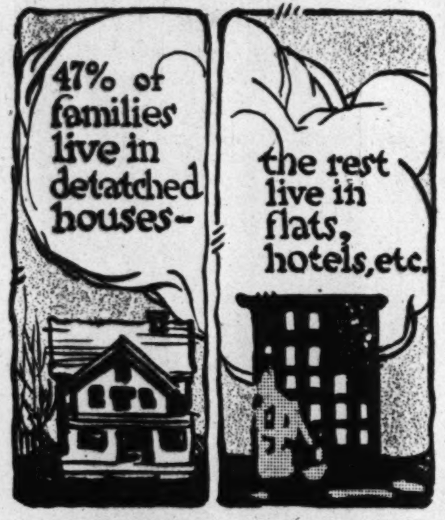
CHICAGO'S AREA exceeds St. Louis, Boston, Cleveland and Baltimore Combined

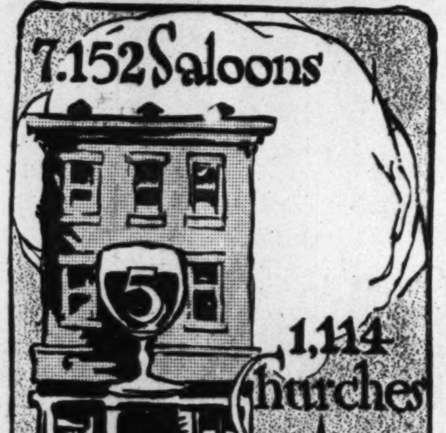








47% of families live in detatched houses-
the rest live in flats, hotels, etc.



MR. AVERAGE CHICAGO MAN arises at approximately 6:45—using the traction company figures—gives a prodigious yawn, which if rolled into one would extend almost fifty-five miles, dresses, and goes down to breakfast. His favorite breakfast, the restaurant men believe, consists of eggs cooked in various ways. To supply him with the necessary amount a hen weighing about 8,758,838 pounds would be required, and she would have to be a fine layer. If he eats ham with his eggs a porker that would produce hams weighing 118,285 pounds at least would be necessary. A coffee cup of about 177,427 gallons capacity would be necessary to hold his morning drink.

For this and his other meals Mr. Chicago imports, in addition to what he produces himself and buys from his own country, $478,675 worth of breadstuffs, $618,054 worth of cheese, $103,519 worth of cocoa and chocolate, $857,037 worth of fish of all kinds, $1,295,120 of fruits and nuts, $462,378 worth of maple sugar, $218,051 worth of pickles, sauces, etc., and $37,330 worth of salt.

Mr. Chicago produces within his own boundaries—though a large part of these products are sold outside of the city—bread and bakery products worth $26,908,000, baking powder and yeast worth $7,009,000, canned and preserved goods worth $3,827,000, coffee and spices worth $29,593,000, and meats and allied products worth $325,062,000.

Widely Varied Noon Menu.

For his noonday meal Mr. Chicago eats many different kinds of food, ranging from sandwiches to salmi of mallard duck, but among his favorite orders are a ham sandwich, pie and coffee; soup—six days a week—pie and coffee; beef stew and coffee; chicken pie and coffee; corned beef hash and coffee. With the last three lunches, when served by himself at a one-armed chair, two slices of bread cut into several pieces are included. For his beef stew or his chicken pie Mr. Chicago Man requires a dish at least 12,500 feet by 18,500 feet. He drinks perhaps a little less coffee than at his morning meal and his wife and children probably a great deal less.

The men, women and children of the 473,141 families living in the 246,741 dwelling places of the city slide 5,370,566 shoes under the breakfast table. The average child, a well known shoemaker declares, wears a shoe six and one-half inches long, the average woman one of ten inches, and the average man one of eleven and one-half inches. Mr. Chicago's youngsters therefore would wear a shoe 5,291,747.5 inches long, Mrs. Chicago one of 6,473,610 inches, and her better half one of 8,312,280.5 inches.

Forty-seven and one-tenth per cent of the families of Chicago live in detached houses—a single family to the house. The rest live in flats, tenements, hotels, or boarding houses. Thirty and six-tenths per cent live in buildings where there are two families, 12.3 in those where there are three families, 8.5 per cent in those where there are four, five, or six families, and 1.5 in those where there are seven or more families.

The last census considered as a "dwelling" any building where people lived that is not devoted to business or manufacturing. This, of course, included hotels, flats, and boarding houses. It was found that the number of people to a dwelling in Chicago was 8.2 and the number to a family 4.2—which included servants but not necessarily married children or those living in other places.

Of the 473,141 families of the city 342,472, or 73.8 per cent, rented their places of abode and 121,447, or 26.2 per cent, owned their homes, but of the latter number only 12 per cent owned their homes free of incumbrance.

Mr. Chicago's business suit which he is wearing as he leaves the house requires somewhat more than 2,439,473 yards of cloth, a loop tailor asserts. He hurries down part of the 2,948.15 miles of Chicago streets, 1,863.36 miles of which are paved, and, taking a car, travels over part of the 1,350 miles of street railway. Perhaps he takes a suburban train and forms part of the crowd of 123,188 people that daily use that method of transportation.

Churches Growing in Number.

If he has more leisure he may take a stroll on a section of the forty-eight miles of boulevard and gaze at the 1,114 churches, chapels, and missions, or drop into one of the twenty-two libraries to read some of the 760 newspapers and periodicals that are published in the city. Meanwhile 315,737 school children and 19,012 college and university students are getting ready for their day's work.

There are 7,152 saloons in Chicago, but only 1,114 churches, chapels, and missions, thirty-seven convents and monasteries, ninety—eight asylums, and 294 schools, not including branches.

Churches are born and die, but the excess of the birth rate over the death rate is encouraging. During the last few years the birth rate has totaled from thirty to over fifty a year—the number for last year being 51—while the death rate during an average year will not reach two.

The city may be divided into three sections. In the downtown section there are but few churches, and many of these are mortally ill. There must be a special, individual reason for any church remaining in the loop.

Surrounding the loop is a district wherein the churches are rapidly being pushed out by business. In these two sections, therefore, the death rate is far above the birth rate. But in the residential and suburban district that sweeps in a semicircle around this manufacturing section the birth rate so greatly exceeds the death rate that the total for the city shows a decidedly healthy growth.

In the residential districts congregations are growing in number, small churches are being replaced by larger ones, and entirely new organizations are being formed. In the suburban district the same state of affairs prevails—the churches being smaller in size, perhaps, but the birth of entirely new churches is rapid.

A Man of Some Weight.

Mr. Chicago is a sizable gentleman. He is 4,083,859.55 feet tall and weighs 108,421,050 pounds. His wife towers to a height of 3,430,910.3 feet and weighs 80,045,125 pounds. It is no wonder, therefore that he can turn out the work that he does. The total value of the products that he produces with the help of his wife, sister, and children amounts to more than $3,510,057.53 a day.

The population of Chicago at the last census was 2,185,283, of which number 1,125,764 were male and 1,059,519 female, or 106.3 males to each 100 females. Of the total number of people of the city more than 31 per cent were men of 20 or more, more than 20 per cent boys under 20, more than 28 per cent women 20 years and over, and more than 20 per cent girls under 20. Fifty-three and six-tenths per cent of the city's people of marriageable age were married, 41.6 single, and 3.3 widowed. In spite of the city's reputation but 3,949 were given as divorced.

If he is one of the rank and file of the union men he will be paid for his day's work from 29.63 cents an hour to 75 cents. His total wages for the year will be the neat little sum of $174,112,000. The material he works with will have cost the manufacturer $793,470,000, and the capital the latter has invested totals almost a billion dollars.

The Johnson family is numerically the strongest in Chicago, people of this name forming an army of over 7,000, with an auxiliary army of over 500 Johnstones. The Smiths number over 5,000, not including their German allies, the Schmidts, about 1,500 of whom are listed in the directory. Over 4,600 Andersons and 400 Andersens are next on the list, with about 3,000 Nelsons following them. Nearly 2,800 Browns and over 100 Brownes follow, with 1,900 Jones, 1,700 Murphys, and a like number of Olsons next in order.

When Mr. Chicago returns to his home in the evening 61,485 dogs on whom taxes have been paid will woof-woof at him, wagging an unknown number of tails—it must be remembered some have been lost in the strenuous life of the city—as they do so to show that there is no hard feeling in the demonstration.

Perhaps on his way home he dropped into a saloon and helped the saloonkeepers of the city pay their more than $1.40 a minute for license by contributing a nickel for a glass of beer. If he and his family are to keep up their end by drinking their share of the malt liquor consumed yearly in the United States, Mr. Chicago, his wife and children—even three day old John—each must drink 19.96 gallons a year. If he took but one drink a day a beer glass large enough to hold that drink would have to contain 27,606,239.54 cubic inches.

Home of All Nations.

Mr. Chicago is a cosmopolitan being. He should feel at home almost anywhere in the world. There are within his boundaries 445,139 people of native parentage, 912,701 of mixed or foreign parentage, and 781,217 who were born in foreign lands. Of the foreign born part of him, 13.5 per cent is Austrian, .2 Belgian, 11.2 Canadian, 1.2 Danish, 3.7 English, .1 Finnish, .4 French, 29.6 German, .4 Greek, 1.2 Dutch, 2.2 Hungarian, 12.1 Irish, 4.4 Italian, 2.8 Norwegian, .3 Roumanian, 10.9 Russian, 1.3 Scotch, 6.9 Swedish, .4 Swiss, a trifle more than 1 per cent Turkish, .3 Welsh, and 3.9 other foreign nationalities.

In the evening Mr. Chicago may take his choice of 640 theaters—with more building rapidly. In the larger ones alone he will find 110,203 seats ready for him and his family. Besides theater tickets Mr. Chicago indulges in other luxuries. He imports each year art works over twenty years old to the value of $160,835, antiquities over 100 years old worth $257,515, books, music, etc., worth $95,525, cigars and cigarets worth $151,968, diamonds and precious stones worth $602,771, and wines worth $572,600, but only $70,501 worth of soap.

Sometimes after a large evening Mr. Chicago is picked up wandering about within the boundaries of his city—which exceeds in area St. Louis, Boston, Cleveland, and Baltimore combined—and one of his 4,955 policemen takes him before the judge. Among the 83,852 people arraigned during the course of a year one finds 117 actors—good or bad not specified—fourteen artists, and 102 attorneys—physician cure thyself, one might advise. The barbers cease from shaving long enough for 529 of them to be arrested, and the handlers of the demon rum, the bartenders, are brought up to the number of 822. Four thousand and seventy-nine chauffeurs face the judge during the course of a year, but they are not as bad as this figure might indicate, for they have a little law of their own with which they amuse themselves.

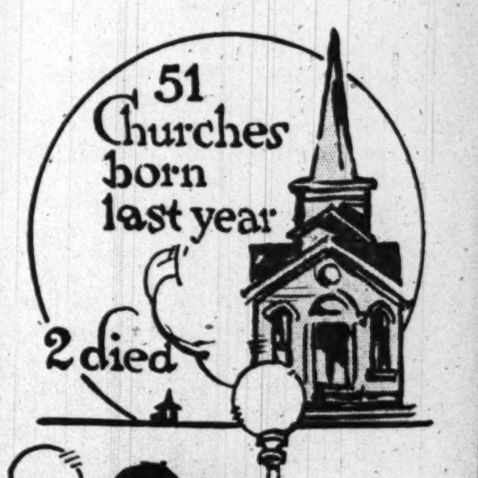
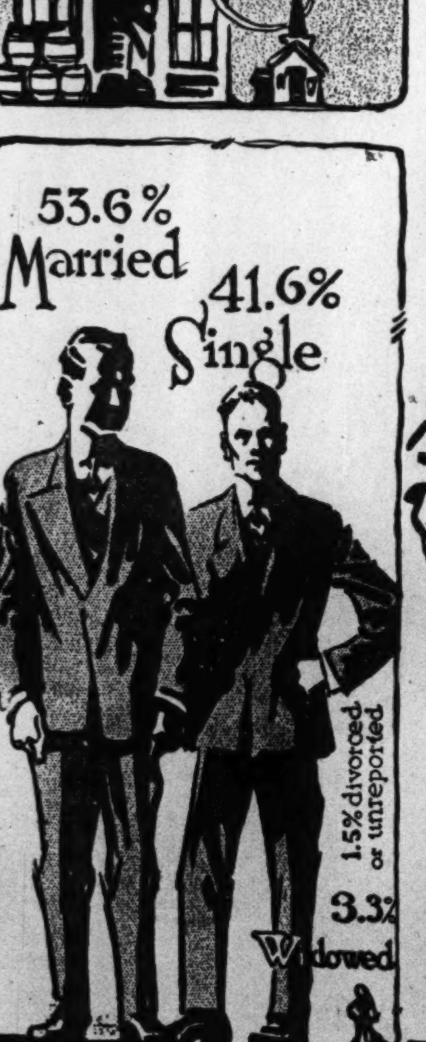
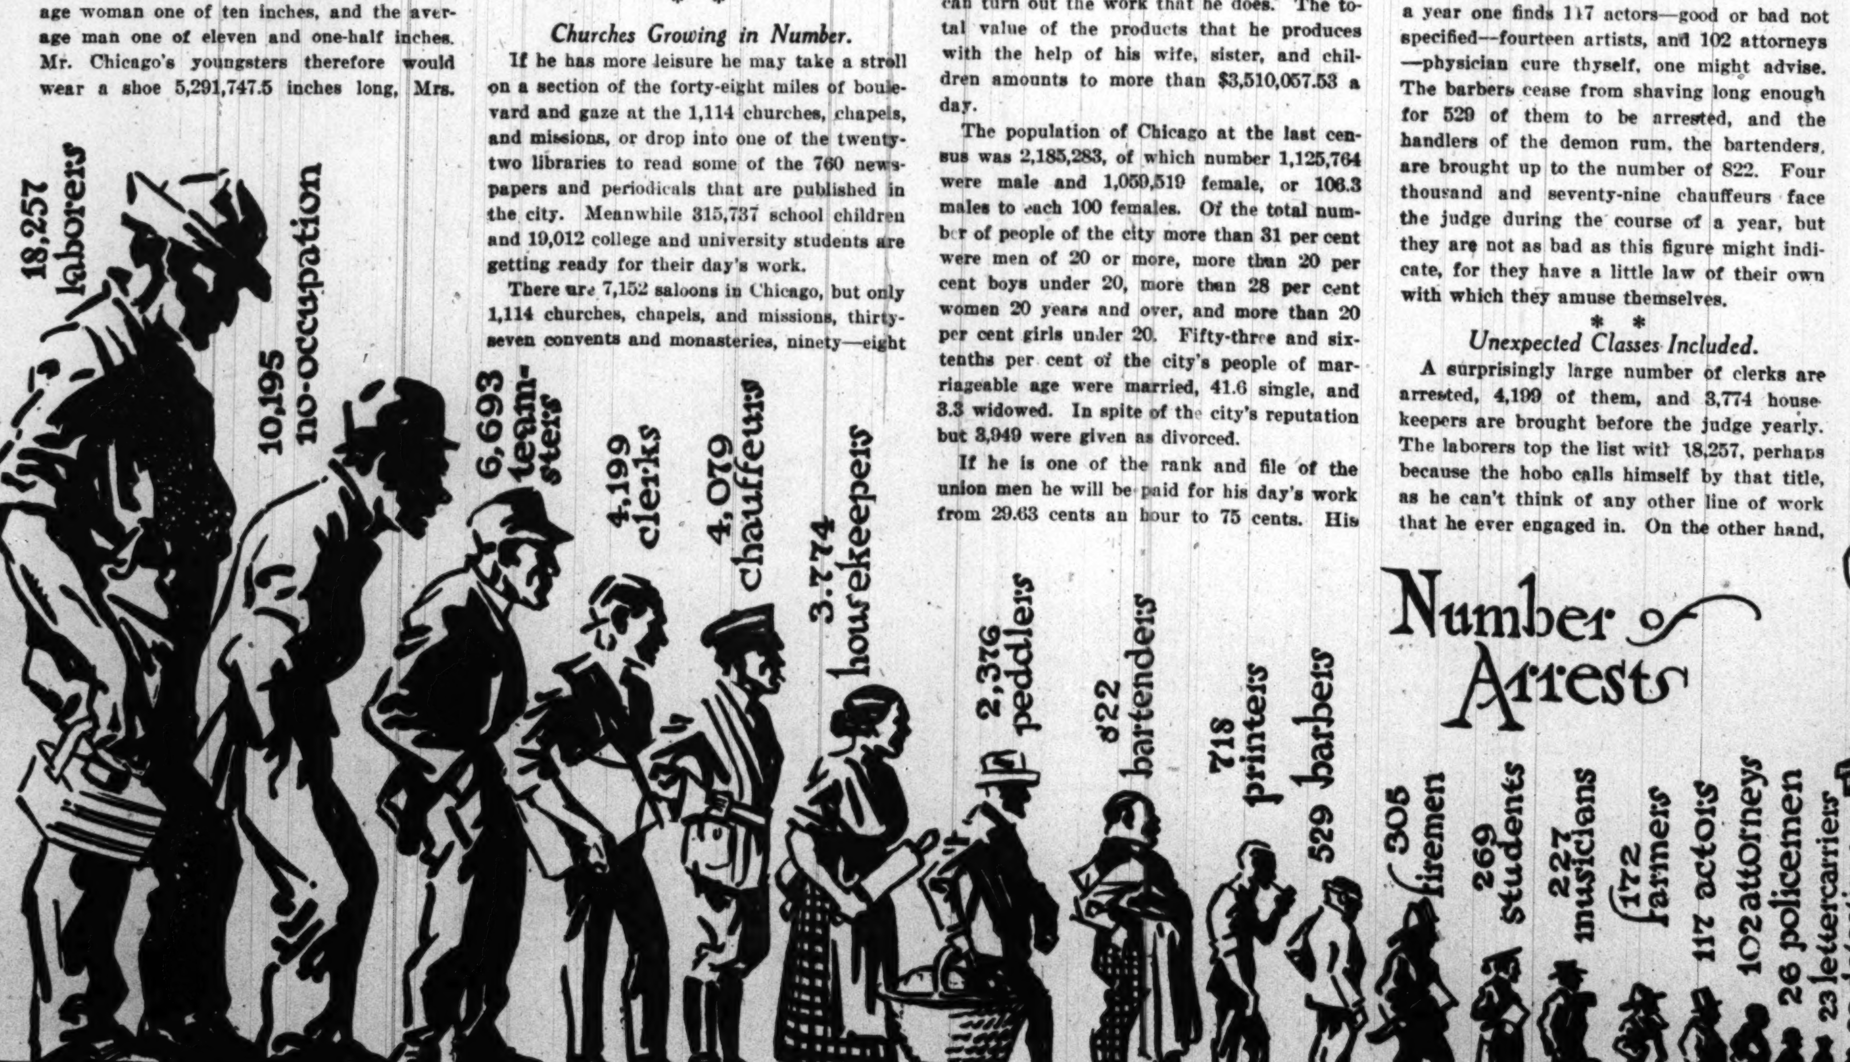
Unexpected Classes Included.

A surprisingly large number of clerks are arrested, 4,199 of them, and 3,774 housekeepers are brought before the judge yearly. The laborers top the list with 18,257, perhaps because the hobo calls himself by that title, as he can't think of any other line of work that he ever engaged in. On the other hand, 10,195 who give no occupation as their calling are arrested yearly. Special laws that govern them may account for the large number of teamsters and peddlers that are arrested, there being 6,693 of the former and 2,376 of the latter class.

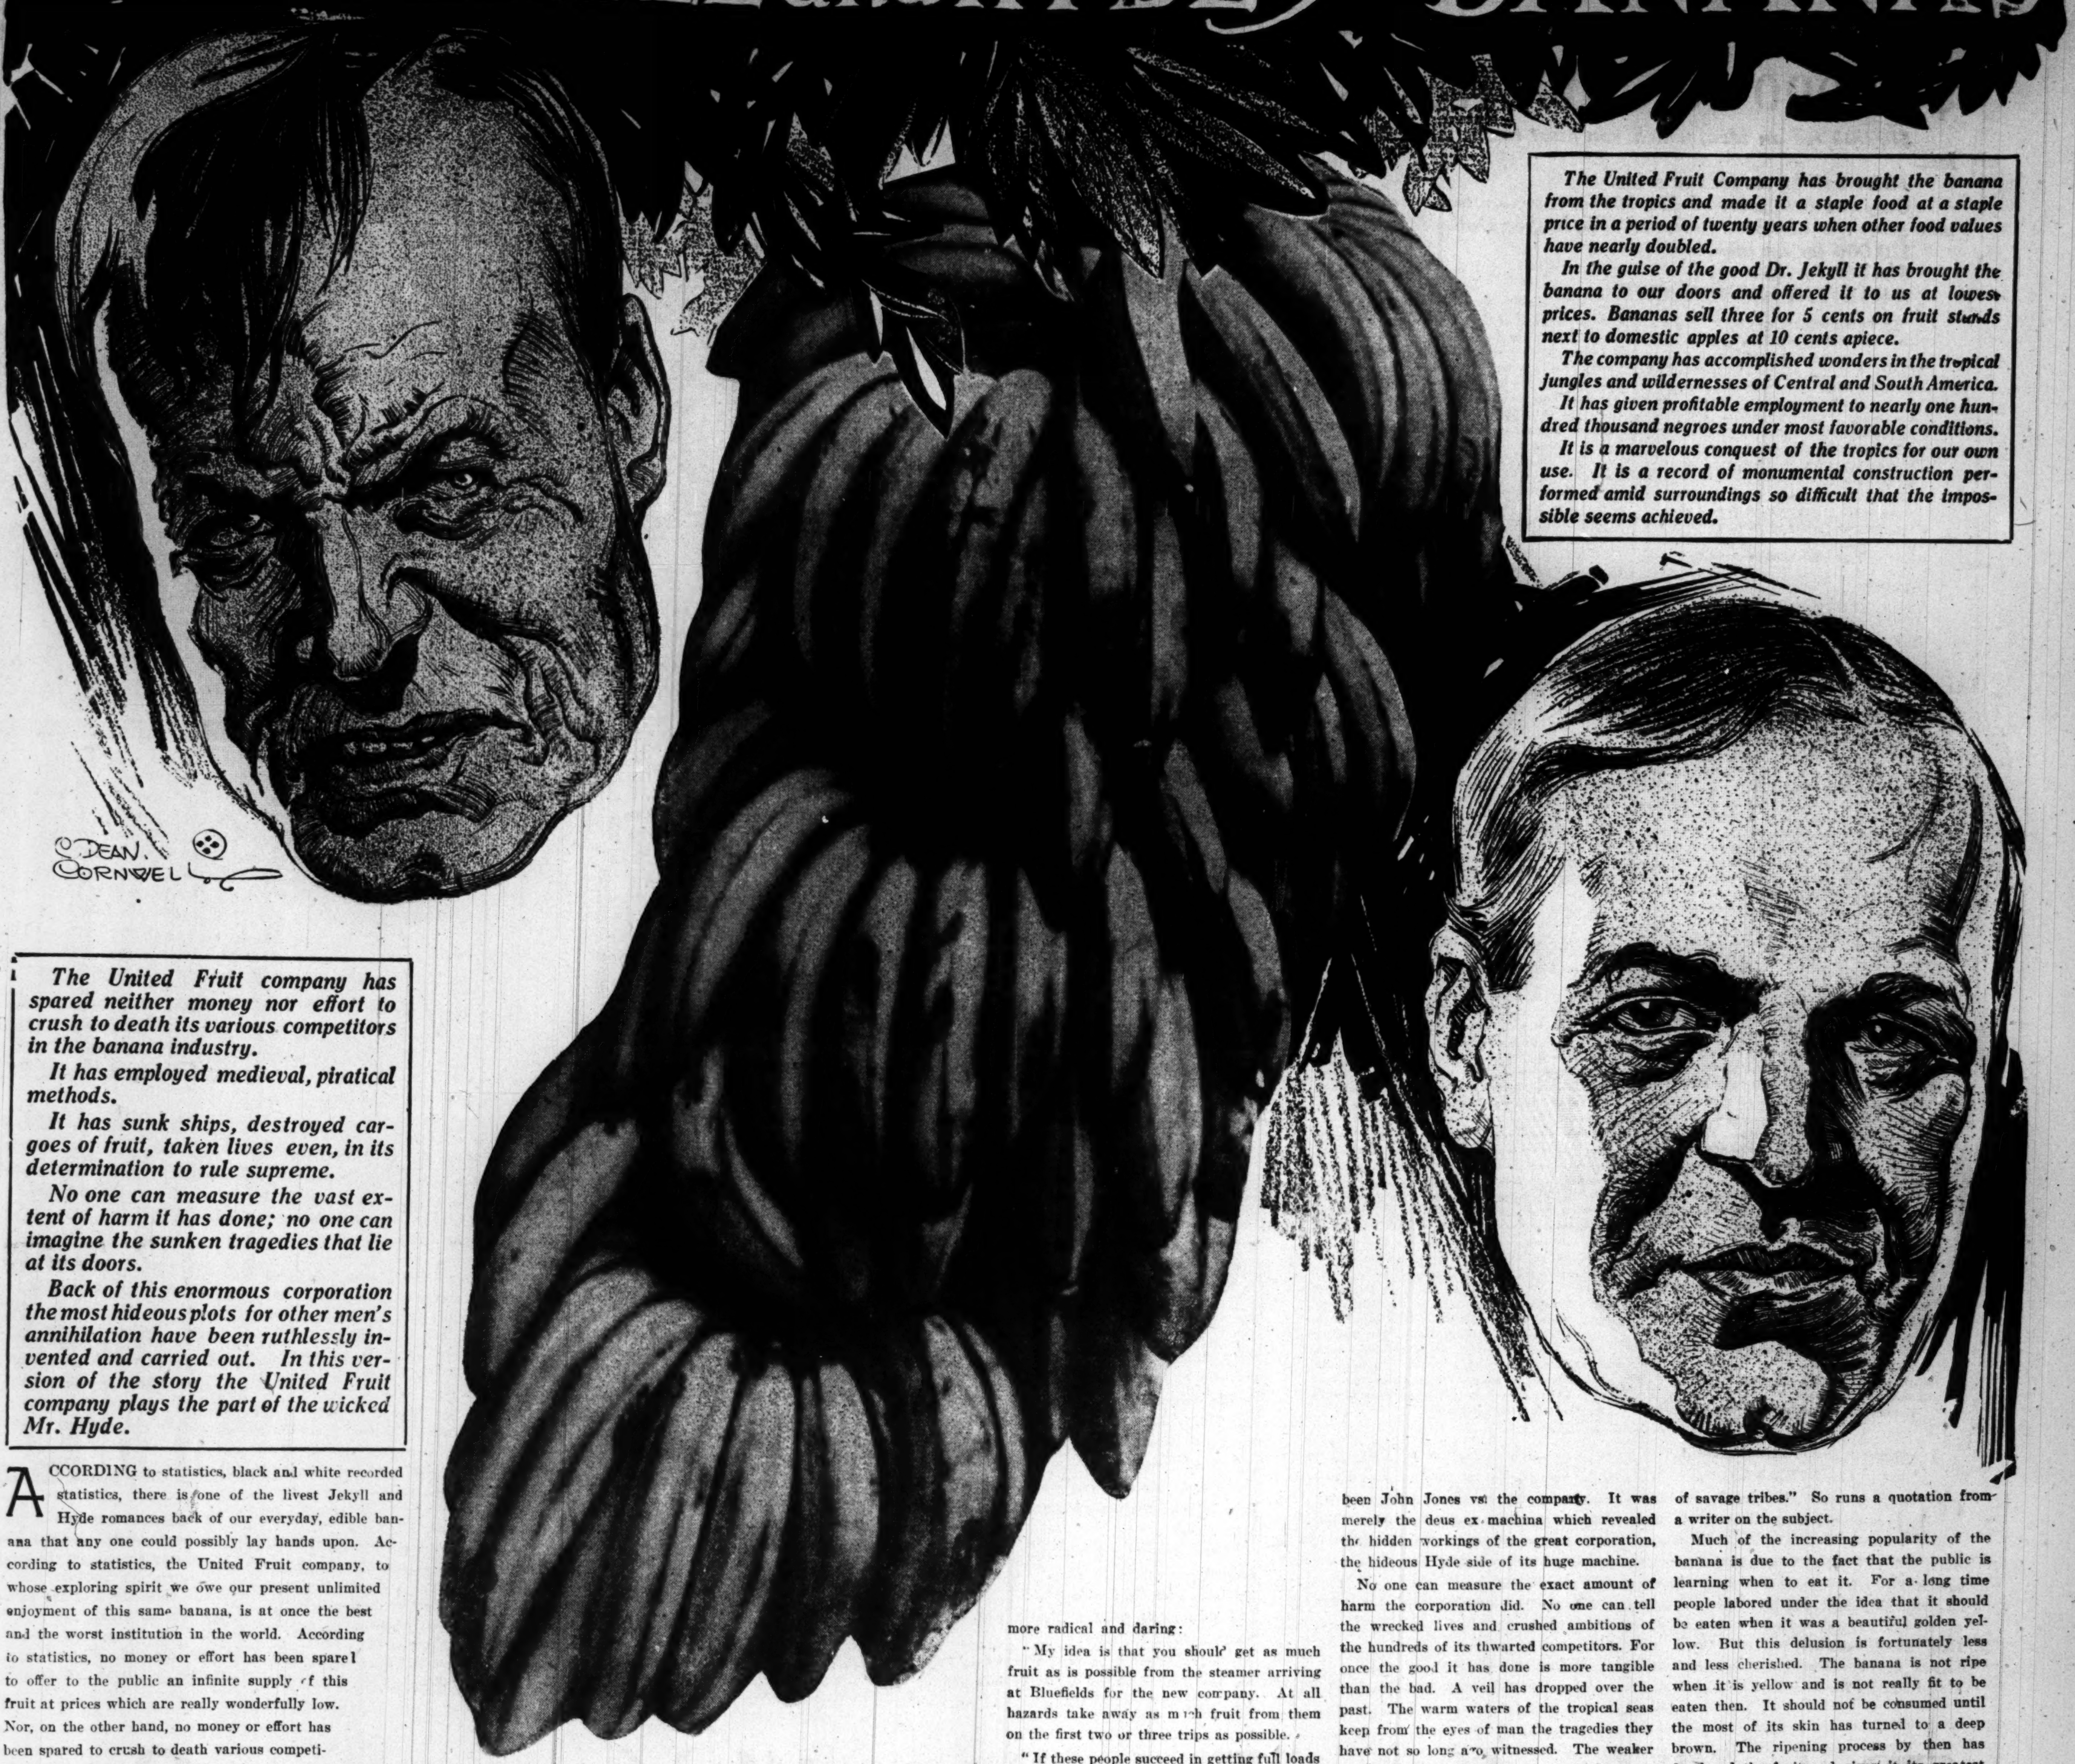
One finds some unexpected classes among the number arrested. Ten clergymen are listed, twenty detectives, 305 firemen, twenty-three letter carriers, and twenty-six policemen. Two hundred and twenty-seven musicians are "nabbed" by the policemen, 718 printers, and 269 students, but the newspapermen are so good that they have no separate classification. The 172 farmers that are in the list probably had been worrying their heads over why the 4,611 acres of parks were not used for raising corn rather than going to waste, as they are at present. The parks thus utilized should bring in a yearly revenue of about $79,539.75.







THE UNITED FRUIT COMPANY
THE JEKYLL and HYDE of BANANAS



The United Fruit Company has brought the banana from the tropics and made it a staple food at a staple price in a period of twenty years when other food values have nearly doubled.

In the guise of the good Dr. Jekyll it has brought the banana to our doors and offered it to us at lowest prices. Bananas sell three for 5 cents on fruit stands next to domestic apples at 10 cents apiece.

The company has accomplished wonders in the tropical jungles and wildernesses of Central and South America.

It has given profitable employment to nearly one hundred thousand negroes under most favorable conditions.

It is a marvelous conquest of the tropics for our own use. It is a record of monumental construction performed amid surroundings so difficult that the impossible seems achieved.

The United Fruit company has spared neither money nor effort to crush to death its various competitors in the banana industry.

It has employed medieval, piratical methods.

It has sunk ships, destroyed cargoes of fruit, taken lives even, in its determination to rule supreme.

No one can measure the vast extent of harm it has done; no one can imagine the sunken tragedies that lie at its doors.

Back of this enormous corporation the most hideous plots for other men's annihilation have been ruthlessly invented and carried out. In this version of the story the United Fruit company plays the part of the wicked Mr. Hyde.

ACCORDING to statistics, black and white recorded statistics, there is one of the livest Jekyll and Hyde romances back of our everyday, edible banana that any one could possibly lay hands upon. According to statistics, the United Fruit company, to whose exploring spirit we owe our present unlimited enjoyment of this same banana, is at once the best and the worst institution in the world. According to statistics, no money or effort has been spared to offer to the public an infinite supply of this fruit at prices which are really wonderfully low. Nor, on the other hand, no money or effort has been spared to crush to death various competitors in the same field.

Mediæval, piratical methods have been employed. Ships have been sunk, cargoes of other men's property and scores of other men's lives have been destroyed. For the last twenty years a secret warfare, no less fierce for being surreptitious, has been carried on in our own part of the world. With bland assumption of utilitarian purpose the present owners of the greatest fruit company in the world took upon themselves the gigantic task of converting the miasmic swamps and jungles of South America into huge plantations of waving banana plants. And from their efforts tremendous good has indisputably resulted. This same good is the Jekyll version of the story.

Cheaper than Apples.

Thirty years ago the banana was a luxury afforded only by the rich. Fifty years ago it was not to be had outside of the tropical zone. Today we have bananas brought to our door from thousands of miles away and selling on our stands three for five cents, while next to them are our own home raised apples selling for 10 cents apiece!

During the last ten years when an advance of food prices has been witnessed, so great that the statesmen of the world have been dazed, helpless, there have been only two products which have been exceptions to this rule of steadily increasing prices, and they have been the banana and sugar, both of them under the control of this same fruit machine. By the untiring efforts of this great fruit company, this huge, human, almost miraculous machine, the banana has been rendered a staple food at a price which has been consistently cheap from the beginning and which has undergone few fluctuations.

This, indeed, should be written in gold letters to its credit and remembered when we turn the pages later to the Hyde version of its past and stumble onto dark, painful, even hideous things.

Still further deeds of virtue trail in its wake. Wonderful plantations in Central and South America are conducted under most healthful conditions. Profitable employment is given to nearly 100,000 negroes. Churches have been built for them, sanitary places constructed to house them, arrangements made for them to visit their home towns for a few weeks every year. Hospitals wage continuous war against all tropical menaces to life and to health. Modern scientific sanitation has accomplished wonders in the virginal tropical wildernesses. Past the point of civilization railroads are pushed into the jungles and structures are raised in the midst of pestilential swamps—a marvelous conquest of the tropics for our own and foreign use; a record of monumental construction, performed amid surroundings so difficult that the impossible seems to have been achieved. For all this we are indebted to the United Fruit company—a considerable debt of gratitude, one that should not be forgotten.

Twentieth Century Pirates.

Then, like a flash, before we can wholly forget the low prices and the abundant fruit, we are given the other side of the story. We get glimpses into strange documents that seem unbelievable in this age of twentieth century enlightenment, documents which are still lying in our southern courts which sound more as though they might have been written by savage pirates in the days when the Caribbean sea was first opened to foreigners and when men of all nations and kinds swarmed down upon the natives, killing them and destroying their property.

One letter of particular interest and showing up the company's deliberate, diabolical methods of procedure is an excerpt from the report to the United States court by Special Master Chaffe made in February, 1911. Since 1899 it was found as a fact that the United Fruit company had controlled this Bluefield Steamship company. The letter follows:

"BLUEFIELDS, Nic., May 20, 1902.

"Capt. E. T. Ryde, Superintendent Loading Plant, Rama.

"Dear Sir: If you can possibly arrange in some way to have the S. S. Banan intercepted at Rama or the pilot to run her aground so that her cargo will be a total loss, do so. Frank Turner gave a hint that he can control Downs, who is the pilot; this information he sent to me through Settoon the last time.

"Now between you and Turner and no one else this can be done; either run her hard against the rocks or run her aground in a shallow place in the river so as to insure her cargo being a total loss and that the matter will not get out; it might put a stop to further opposition here. If money can accomplish your purpose do not hesitate to use it. I will arrange with you.

"We wish you to destroy this letter after reading and committing the contents to memory. Yours very truly,

"BLUEFIELDS COMPANY,
"Manager."

A civilized piracy this, when other men's efforts, gains, and lives even are ordered wiped out by a single stroke of the pen.

Sink Ships if Necessary.

Another letter written to R. C. Bemiss, manager of the same Bluefields company, is even more radical and daring:

"My idea is that you should get as much fruit as is possible from the steamer arriving at Bluefields for the new company. At all hazards take away as much fruit from them on the first two or three trips as possible.

"If these people succeed in getting full loads the first few trips it will be harmful to us, as I am satisfied their means are limited and that they are making calculations on having successful trips at the beginning. . . .

"Now, how to scheme this out is for you to figure out at your end. Do it—and it does not matter how it is done the first few trips. The thing is to do it.

"You will also look into the matter of their not getting any available boats at your end, as they have no loading plant so far, and I have found out that they are calculating in the beginning on securing loading plant at your end.

"If Capt. Wright and Mr. Wilderson have boats you will see that they do not make use of them against us if you have to charter them, buy them, or even sink them.

"The hardest fight will be at the beginning. The question is not whether it would cost us five dollars or five thousand. The question is to do it and do it well.

"Please acknowledge receipt of this letter and give us your views. Lose no time. Should my brother Charles arrive in due time please talk the matter over with him carefully.

"Even if we have to go to the expense of sinking all their boats . . . it would be a better policy to do this than to let an outside line bring the first few cargoes here with full loads."

Public Reaps the Benefit.

Much of this came out in the United States Court of Appeals in 1909, when a certain Frederick Steele, stockholder in the Bluefields Steamship company, filed a bill against the United Fruit company. The details of it are not important, nor the name. It might have been John Jones vs. the company. It was merely the deus ex machina which revealed the hidden workings of the great corporation, the hideous Hyde side of its huge machine.

No one can measure the exact amount of harm the corporation did. No one can tell the wrecked lives and crushed ambitions of the hundreds of its thwarted competitors. For once the good it has done is more tangible than the bad. A veil has dropped over the past. The warm waters of the tropical seas keep from the eyes of man the tragedies they have not so long ago witnessed. The weaker have vanished. The stronger are supreme The public reaps the results of the conquest.

It is interesting to note how such a world old fruit as botanical historians claim the banana to be should only recently have figured as the cause of such painful and piratical deeds. There are botanists who insist that it was the banana and not the apple which was the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden. No one seems able to say what it was called in olden times, however, or who was responsible for its varied migrations from one country to the other. It has been called by some botanists the "musa sapientium." They named it such because of their conviction that it served as a fruit for the wise men of India.

Banana Century-Old Luxury.

But whether it is sixty centuries or sixty thousand centuries since the first ripe banana was plucked from its stem, it is certain it was considered throughout the history of the world a luxury unobtainable except by those who visited its native lands. Even when Rome was at its height and her power embraced the world and soldiers returned from the tropics telling of the lusciousness of the long, yellow fruit, no mighty emperor was able to import it for his own banquet table.

That remains to have been done within the last generation. Banana plantations are now on the site of once huge and populous cities. "Beneath the rustling fronds of a veritable wilderness of bananas lie the ashes of races whose rise and fall are lost to history. The people of our day gaze with a lack of comprehension on the ruined temples and towering monuments which form the center of these same plantations; on the mighty works of men who had risen to a high civilization in an age when our Saxon ancestors were still members of savage tribes." So runs a quotation from a writer on the subject.

Much of the increasing popularity of the banana is due to the fact that the public is learning when to eat it. For a long time people labored under the idea that it should be eaten when it was a beautiful golden yellow. But this delusion is fortunately less and less cherished. The banana is not ripe when it is yellow and is not really fit to be eaten then. It should not be consumed until the most of its skin has turned to a deep brown. The ripening process by then has developed the fruit and given it its greatest value. No one would dream of eating the potato in its uncooked state, and yet they will throw away the banana when it has just become thoroughly ripe and wholesome in the belief that it is rotten and unfit for consumption.

It is different if the banana is to be cooked. Then it may be taken in its vividest yellow hues, for the heat renders it digestible and tasty.

Hard Work Done on Banana Diet.

Its food value, too, has just lately been appreciated. From a sanitary point of view it is superior to most fruits, as it has to be peeled before eating and is not exposed to germs when it is offered on fruit stands and in markets. Some physicians claim that the most strenuous form of labor can be maintained on a banana diet, and in many of the tropical countries where the natives are famous for the endurance of their working classes the diet is almost exclusively coffee and bananas.

There are a dozen ways of cooking and eating bananas now where formerly any such digression from the raw fruit was unthought of. In the tropics flour and meal are made from the dried fruit. Here it is used to make breakfast foods; banana biscuits are appetizing; banana vinegar is considered excellent; banana marmalade is popular. Then, too, it may be baked or fried or broiled all with equal success.

Perhaps with its many sided nature and its capacity to serve the public in so many divers ways it is quite worth the price its conquest has exacted; is worth all the strife and woe, all the fierce competition, all the huge successes and the crushing failures that have followed in its wake.

$10,000 for 100 Words.

$10,000 for an idea, which you must tell in 100 words or less.

There will be no second prize.

Only one first prize of $10,000 for the man, woman or child who gives the best idea to finish "The Million Dollar Mystery"!

$10,000 for an idea.

READ THE CONDITIONS.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE prints today another installment of "The Million Dollar Mystery," a mystery story for the solution of which a prize of $10,000 will be given by the Thanhouser Film corporation. The story will run twenty-two consecutive weeks in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. As each chapter appears in THE TRIBUNE a two reel film corresponding with it may be seen in the various moving picture theaters. By this arrangement with the Thanhouser Film corporation it will be possible for TRIBUNE readers both to read the story and see the moving picture of it as it progresses from week to week. The first film was released on June 22. Each week another will be released until Monday, Nov. 16. The last chapter of the story will appear in THE TRIBUNE on Sunday, Nov. 22.

CONDITIONS GOVERNING THE CONTEST.

The prize of $10,000 will be won by the man, woman, or child who writes the most acceptable solution of the mystery, from which the last two reels of motion picture drama will be made and the last two chapters of the story written by Harold MacGrath.

Solutions may be sent to the Thanhouser Film corporation, either at Chicago or New York, any time up to midnight, Jan. 14. They must be received not later than that date. This allows eight weeks after the first appearance of the last film releases and seven weeks after the last chapter is published in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE in which to submit solutions. The Chicago address of the Thanhouser company is 166 West Washington street and the New York City address is 71 West Twenty-third street.

A board of three judges will determine which of the many solutions received is the most acceptable.

The judges are to be Harold MacGrath, Lloyd Lonergan, author of the scenario, and Miss Mae Tinee of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The judgment of this board will be absolute and final. Nothing of a literary nature will be considered in the decision nor given any preference in the selection of the winner of the $10,000 prize. The last two reels, which will give the most acceptable solution to the mystery, will be presented in the theaters having this feature as soon as it is possible to produce same. The story corresponding to these motion pictures will appear in this newspaper coincidentally, or as soon after the appearance of the pictures as practicable. With the last two reels will be shown the pictures of the winner, his or her home, and other interesting features.

Solutions to the mystery must not be more than 100 words long. Here are some questions to be kept in mind in connection with the mystery as an aid to a solution:

No. 1—What becomes of the millionaire?
No. 2—What becomes of the $1,000,000?
No. 3—Whom does Florence marry?
No. 4—What becomes of the Russian countess?

Nobody connected either directly or indirectly with "The Million Dollar Mystery" will be considered as a contestant.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Stanley Hargreave, millionaire, having joined what he believed to be a great socialist movement, finds that in reality he has been trapped by the Black Hundred. After a miraculous escape from the den of the brilliant thieves he lives the life of a recluse for eighteen years. One night, surrendering to a restless spirit of rebellion, Hargreave enters a Broadway restaurant and there comes face to face with the Black Hundred's leader, Braine.

After the meeting, during which neither man recognizes the other, Hargreave hurries to his magnificent Riverdale home and lays plans for making his escape from the country. He writes a letter to the girls' school in New Jersey where eighteen years before he had mysteriouly left on the doorstep of the institution his tiny baby daughter—named "Florence Gray" by the note attached to the handle—and arranges that she be sent to him at once. He also pays a visit to the hangar of a daredevil aviator.

Braine and members of his band surround Hargreave's home at night, but as they enter the house the watchers outside see a balloon leave the roof. The safe is found empty—the million which Hargreave was known to have drawn that day gone. Then one of the men outside announced that he had punctured the balloon and sent it to the bottom of the ocean.

The next day Florence arrives from the girls' school and is greeted by the butler, Jones, whom Hargreave has taken into full confidence. She is later visited by Countess Olga, Braine's companion, who claims to be a relative. Two bogus detectives also call, but they find themselves thwarted by Norton, a newspaper man, who happens to be on the scene at the right moment.

Later, Florence is lured from home by the band, but succeeds in freeing herself from their clutches. The next day Jones removes a box from its hiding place and, pursued by Braine's men, rushes to the water front. A race in motorboats ensues. Jones drops the box into the sea and with his automatic sets fire to the pursuing boat.

CHAPTER VI.

"DID you get the range?" asked the countess, when late that night Braine recounted his adventure.

"Range!" he snarled. "My girl, haven't I just told you that I had to fight for my life? My boat was in flames. We had to swim for it till we were picked up by a Long Island barge tug. I don't know what became of the motor man. He must have headed straight for shore. And I'm glad he did. Otherwise he'd be howling for the price of another boat. Olga, for the first time I've had to let one of the boys have a look at my face. Doesn't know the name; but one of these days he'll stumble across it, and the result will be blackmail, unless I push him off into the dark. It was accidental."

The countess leaned forward, her hands tightly clenched.

"But the box!"

Braine made a gesture of despair.

"Leo, are you using any drug these days?"

"Don't make fun of me, Olga," impatiently "Did you ever see me drink more than a pint of wine or smoke more than two cigars in an evening? Poor fools! What! let my brain go into the wastebasket for the sake of an hour or so of exhilaration? No, and never will I. I'm keen about the gray matter I've got, and by the Lord Harry, I'm going to keep it. There's only one dope fiend in the Hundred, and he's one of the best decoys we have; so we let him have his coke whenever he really needs it. But this man Felton has seen my face. Some day he'll see it again, ask questions, and then . . ."

"Then what?"

"A burial at sea," he laughed. The laughter died swiftly as it came. "Threw it into eight hundred feet of water, on a bar where the sands are always shifting. He'll never find it, even if he took the range. He could not have got a decent one. The sun was dropping and the shadows were long. He threw the chest into the water and then began pegging away at us, cool as you please, and fired our tank."

"It looks to me as if he had wasted his time."

"That depends. Between you and me and the gate post, I've a sneaking idea that this man Jones, whom nobody has given any particular attention, is a deep, clever man. He may have been honestly attempting to find a new hiding place; the advertisement in the newspaper may have drawn him. He may have thrown the box over in pure rage at seeing himself checkmated. Again, the whole thing may have been worked up for our benefit, a blind. But if that's the case, Jones has us on the hip, for we can't tell. But we can do what in all probability he expects we'll cease to do—watch him just as shrewdly as before."

"THE BLACK HUNDRED ALWAYS GOES FORWARD, WIN OR LOSE, AND NEVER FORGETS."

FLORENCE WAS DELIGHTED AT THE IDEA OF THE PARTY.

Olga caught his hand and drew him down beside her. "I wasn't going to bother you tonight, but it may mean something vital."

"What?" alertly.

For reply she rose and walked over to the light button. She pressed it and the apartment became dark.

"Come over to the window, quick!" She dragged him across the room. "Over the way, the house with the marble front."

A man emerged, lit a cigaret, and walked leisurely down the street.

"No!" she cried, as Braine turned to make for the door, doubtless with the intention of finding out who this man was. "Every night after you leave he appears."

"Does he follow me?"

"No. And that's what bothered me at first. I believed he was watching some apartment above. But regularly when I turn out the lights he comes forth. So there's no doubt that he watches you enter and takes note of your departure."

"But doesn't follow me. That's odd. What the devil is his idea?"

"I'd give a good deal to learn."

The shadow and the glowing cigaret disappeared around the corner, and the lights in the apartment were turned on again.

"He's gone. You really think he's watching me?"

"He is watching this apartment, I know that much."

And even at that moment the watcher was watching from his vantage behind the corner.

"Suspicious!" he murmured, tossing the cigaret into the gutter. "They're watching me for a change. I'll drop out. I know what I know. It's a great world. It's fine to be alive and kicking on top of it." He went on without haste and took the subway train for downtown.

"Is there any way I could get near him?" asked Braine.

"Tomorrow night you might leave by the janitor's entrance. I'll keep the lights on till you're outside. Then I'll turn them off and you can follow and learn who he is."

"It's mighty important."

"Don't scowl. At your age a wrinkle is apt to remain if you once get it started."

He laughed. "Wrinkles!" She could talk of wrinkles!

"They are more important than you think. Every morning I rub out the wrinkle I go to bed with."

"I wish you could rub out the general stupidity which is wrinkling my brain. I've made three moves and failed in each. What's come over me?"

"Perhaps you've had too many successes. The wheel of chance is always turning around."

"May I smoke?"

"Thanks. At least it proves you still have some consideration for me. You would smoke whether it was agreeable or not. But I like the odor of a good cigar. And it always helps you to think."

Braine lit the cigar and began his customary pacing. At length he paused.

"Suppose we have a real old fashioned coaching party out to the old mansion we know about?"

"And what shall we do there?"

"Make the mansion an enchanted castle where sometimes people who enter can't get out. Do you think you could get her to go?"

"I can try."

"Olga, I must have that girl; and I have her soon. Sometimes I find myself puzzled over the whole thing. If Hargre alive, why doesn't he turn up now that it's tically known that his daughter presides his household? I might understand it if I know that Hargreave is really afraid of ing. In the great newspaper office there w mighty racket. Midnight always means demonium in the city room of a metropo daily. Copy boys were rushing to and fro, sengers and printers with sticky galleys in hands; reporters were banging away at typewriters, and intermingling you could the ceaseless clickety-click from the room.

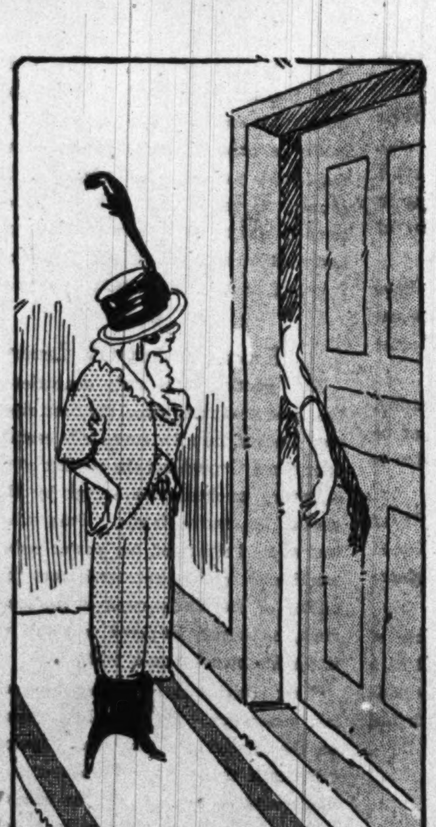
An "Unsilent" Evening with MARGUERITE SNOW nd JA

I WAS sitting in my room chatting with the darling white haired mother of Coles Phillips, the artist, when the telephone bell rang and Mrs. James Cruze—Marguerite Snow—asked me over to her apartment for dinner and to spend the evening.

"The whole bunch is coming," she informed me. "I can't guarantee the dinner, for my cook's had a falling out with her gentleman friend and, being undecided whether to commit suicide or murder, is much preoccupied. But I can guarantee that you won't be lonesome. Come on."

I demurred for a minute. The Thanhouser people are great entertainers, and since my arrival I had spent so much time eating, drinking, getting sick from too much dissipation, and recovering that I felt the evening in question should be spent in writing. But Peggy Snow isn't to be denied. She announced that should I fail to appear she would bring the party and the dinner over to my room—I was right across the street from Beacon Hall, an apartment building almost entirely occupied by studio people—and just show me whether I could refuse perfectly good invitations with impunity.

Knowing that without a doubt she would keep her word, I promised, and the hour found me buzzing away at the Cruze doorbell. The door was opened stealthily. The face of "The Million Dollar Mystery" villainess peered out. The slender white arm of "The Million Dollar Mystery" villainess reached out and I was drawn inside.



The slender white arm of "The Million Dollar Mystery" villainess reached out.

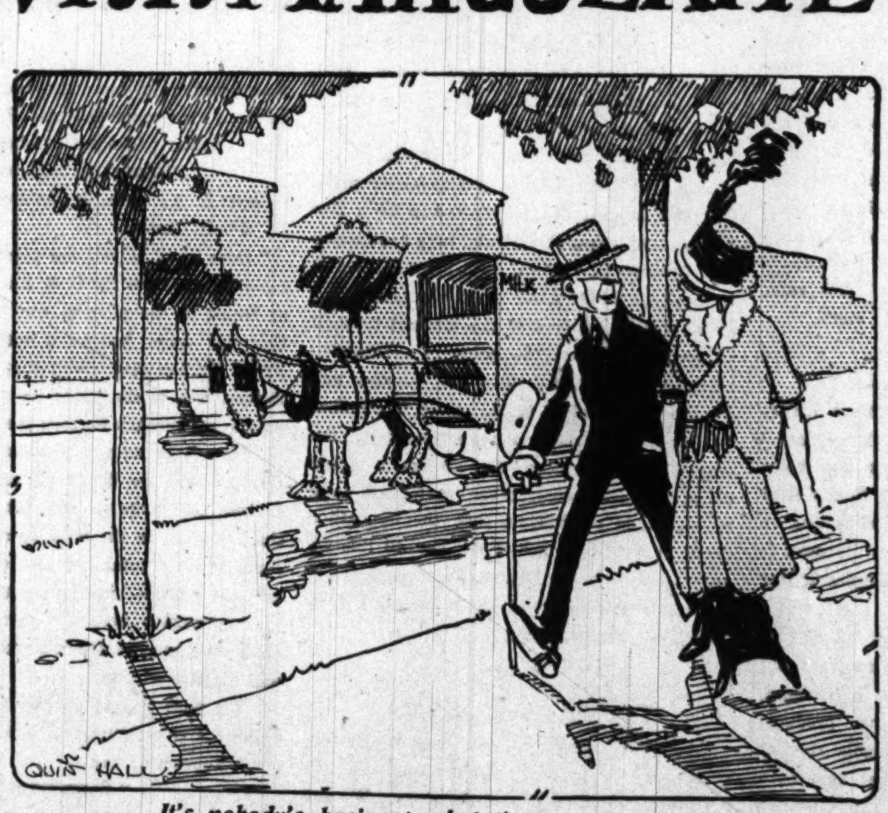
Miss Tinee Earns Her Drinks.

"Sh!" "The Million Dollar Mystery" villainess said, spookily. Don't make a noise! I've just got the baby to sleep. She's teething, poor little thing, and she's so uncomfortable! Jimmie, here's what didn't want to come!"

She pushed me into the warmly lighted living room, and I found myself in the center of a gabby group who were engaged in drinking their before dinner milk and vichys. Who was there? O, let me see. There were Sidney Bracey, Frank Farrington, Irving Cummings, Mignon Anderson—the Thanhouser daredevil—Fanny Bourke, Lila Chester, Mr. and Mrs. Lonergan, the Cruzes, of course, and myself.

I reached out for my own drink, but Jimmie Cruze put out a restraining hand. "O, no—not like that; like this: You come in, see—just like this—and I turn around suddenly and say: 'Why, Miss Tinee, I'm awfully glad—but how pale you look!' You look pale—like this—see? Then I say, 'Why, let me give you a chair—heavens! the woman's fainting—here, Miss Tinee, take this'—and then I give you your drink. See?"

"All right," I said, and I backed out. I came limping in. Mr. Cruze, by that time busily engaged in conversation, turned suddenly at my entrance. He extended both hands. "Why, Miss Tinee—I—why, what's the matter? What has happened? You're faint (the taxi driver has overcharged you!). Here—let me give you a chair. The-rr-rr-rre! Now, sip this. Ah, she's better already. Waiter, another one?"



It's nobody's business what time we went home.

"And where," asked a voice from the doorway, acidly, "do I come in?"

Said Mr. Cruze to me, without turning: "It seems to me I hear something. Did you by any chance bring anything with you?"

"Yes," I said; "my little dog—and in the name of charity, kind sir, I beg you bring it in and give it something to drink. It is perishing with thirst!"

"Woof-wr-r-row!" howled Peggy Whereupon there was a rush for her and was brought in and made happy.

Jimmie and Peggy a Happy Pair.

You know, there's a popular supposition stage people, "movie" or otherwise, are happy if married. The layman has the idea their one notion in getting married is to how soon afterwards they can get a divo try it again. I used to think something kind myself, but the Jimmie Cruzes have a long way toward changing my mind.

Their apartment is just as homey and tive as it can be, and they are just as and folksey as—well, any bank clerk and wife. And their baby, Julie—well, I just you could see her! A little cooing, thing, as carefully nurtured as any baby in home in the world. We all trooped in to after dinner and made fools of ourselves for entertainment, while the nurse prepared her and got things ready for the night. She politely interested in us all, but Sidney and Mignon Anderson made the hit of the ing with a dance they originated, using and spoons in lieu of cymbals and tambou much do you want?" asked the night city editor.

"Column and a half."

"Off with your glad rags!"

"Anything good?" asked the managing editor.

"The lid has been jammed on tight. No wine in any restaurant after 1 o'clock. There'll be a roundup of every gunman in town."

"Good work! Go to it."

It was 1 o'clock when Norton turned in his last sheet of copy and started for home. Just outside the entrance to the building a man with a slouch hat drawn down over his eyes stepped forward.

"Mr. Norton?"

"Yes." Norton stepped back suspiciously. The other chuckled, raised and lowered his hat swiftly.

"Good Lord!" murmured the reporter.

"Will you take a ride with me in a taxi?"

"All the way to Syracuse, if you say so. Well, I'll be tinker damned!"

"No names, please!"

What took place in that taxicab was never generally known. But at 10 o'clock the next morning Norton surprised the elevator boy by going out. Norton proceeded downtown to the National bank, where he deposited $5,000 in bills of large denominations. The teller had some difficulty in counting them. They stuck together and retained the sodden appearance of money recently submerged in water.

. . . .

Florence was delighted at the idea of a coaching party. Often during her school girl days she had seen the fashionable coaches go careening along the road, with the sharp, clear note of the bugle rising above the thunder of hoofs and rattling of wheels. Jones was not enthusiastic; neither was he a killjoy.

"But you are to go along, too," said Florence.

"I, Miss Florence?"

"The countess invited you especially. You will go with a hamper."

"Ah, in my capacity as butler; very good, Miss Florence." To her he gave no sign of his secret satisfaction.

The hour arrived, and the gay party bowled away. They wound in and out of the streets toward the country to the crack of the whip and the blare of the horn. Florence's enjoyment would have been perfect had it not been for the absence of Norton. Why hadn't he been invited? She did not ask because she did not care to disclose to the countess her interest in the reporter. They were nearing the limits of the city, when the coach was forced to take a sharp turn to avoid an automobile in trouble. The man puttering at the engine raised his head. It was Norton, and Florence waved her hand vigorously.

"A coaching party," he murmured; "and your Uncle James was not invited! O, very well!" He laughed, and suddenly grew serious. It would not hurt to find out where that coach was going.

He set to work savagely, located the trouble, righted it, and set off for the Hargreave home. He found Susan and bombarded her with questions which to Susan came with the rapidity of rain upon the roof.

"So Jones went along?"

"In his capacity of butler only."

Norton smiled. "Well, I'll take a jaunt out there myself. You are sure of the location?"

"Yes."

"Well, good-by. I'll go as a waiter, since they wouldn't invite me. I'm one of the best little waiters you ever heard of; and all things come to him who waits."

What a pleasant, affable young man he was! thought Susan as she watched him jump into the car and go flying up the street.

Jones was a good deal surprised when Norton turned up at the old Chilton manor.

"What made you come here dressed like this?" the butler demanded.

"I'm a suspicious duffer; maybe that's the reason."

"Do you know anything?"

"Well, no; I can't say that I do. But, hang it, I just had to come out here."

"Maybe it's just as well you did," said Jones moodily.

"I know this place. The housekeeper used to be my nurse, and if she is still on the job she may be of service to us. You don't think they'll question or recognize me?"

"Hardly. I'll put in a word for you. I'll say I sent for you, not knowing if we had enough servants to take care of the luncheon."

"And now I'll go and hunt up Meg."

Sure enough, his old nurse was still in charge of the house; and when her "baby" disclosed his identity she all but fell upon his neck.

"But what are you doing here, dressed up as a waiter?"

"It's a little secret, Meg. I wasn't invited, and the truth is I'm very desperately in love with the young lady in whose honor this coaching party is being given. And . . . maybe she's in danger."

"Danger? What about?"

"The Lord only knows. But show me about the house. I've not been here in so long I've forgotten the run of it. I remember one room with the secret panel and another with a painting that turned. Have they changed them?"

"No; it is just the same here as it used to be. Come along and I'll show you."

Norton inspected the room carefully, stowing away in his mind every detail. He might be worrying about nothing; but so many strange things had happened that it was better to be on the side of caution than on the side of carelessness. He left the house and ran across Jones carrying a basket of wine.

"Here, Norton; take this to the party. I want to reconnoiter."

"All right, m'lud! Say, Jones, how much do you think I'd earn at this job?" comically.

"Get along with you, Mr. Norton. It may be the time to laugh, and then it may not."

"I'm going back into the house and hide behind a secret panel. I've got my revolver. You go to the stables and take a try at my car; see if she works smoothly. We may have to do some hiking. Where is the countess in this?"

"Leave that to me, Mr. Norton," said the butler with his grim smile. "Be off; they are moving back toward the house."

So Norton carried the basket around to the lawn, where it was taken from his hands by the regular servant. He sighed as he saw Florence, laughing and chatting with a man who was a stranger and whom he heard addressed as count. Some friend of the countess, no doubt. Where was all this tangle going to end? He wished he knew. And what a yarn he was going to write some day! It would be read like one of Gaboriau's tales. He turned away to wander idly about the grounds, when beyond a clump of cedars he saw three or four men conversing lowly. He got as near as possible, for when three or four men put their heads together and whisper animatedly, it usually means a poker game or something worse. He caught a phrase or two as it came down the wind, and then he knew that the vague suspicions that had brought him out here had been set in motion by fate. He heard "Florence" and "the old drawing room"; and that was enough.

He scurried about for Jones. It was pure luck that he had had old Meg show him through the house, otherwise he would have forgotten all about the secret panel in the wall and the painting. Jones shrugged resignedly. Were these men of the countess' party? Norton couldn't say.

Norton made his hiding place in safety; and by and by he could hear the guests moving about in the room. Then all sounds ceased for a while. Norton strained his ear against the panel. A door closed sharply.

"No; here you must stay, young lady," said a man's voice.

"What do you mean, sir?" demanded the beloved voice.

"It means that no one will return to this room and that you will not be missed until it is too late."

The sound of voices stopped abruptly, and something like scuffling ensued. Later Norton heard the back of a chair strike the panel and some one sat heavily upon it. He waited perhaps five minutes; then he gently slid back the panel. Florence sat bound and gagged under his very eyes! It was but the work of a moment to liberate her.

"It is I—Jim. Do not speak or make the least noise. Follow me."

Greatly astonished, Florence obeyed; and the panel slipped back into place. The room behind the secret panel had barred windows. To Florence it appeared to be a real prison.

"How did you get here?" she asked breathlessly.

"Something told me to follow you. And something is always going to tell me to follow you, Florence."

She pressed his hand. It was to her as if one of those book heroes had stepped out of a book; only book heroes always had tremendous fortunes and did not have to work for a living. Oddly enough, she was not afraid.

"Who was the man?" he asked.

"The Count Norfeldt. Some one has imposed upon the countess."

"Do you think so?" with a strange look in his eyes.

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing just now. The idea is to get out of here just as quickly as we can. See this painting?" He touched a spot on the wall and the painting slowly swung out like a door. "Come; we make our escape to the side lawn from here."

At the stable they were confronted with the knowledge that Norton's car was out of commission; Jones could do nothing with it. Then Norton suggested that he make an effort to commandeer the limousine of the countess; but there were men about, so the limousine was out of the question.

"Horses!" whispered Jones. "There are several saddle horses, already saddled. How about these people, the owners?"

"O, they are beyond reproach. They have doubtless been imposed upon. But let us get aboard first. There will be time to talk later. I'll have to do some explaining, taking these nags off like this. We won't have to ride out in front where the picnickers are. There's a lane back of the stable, and a slight detour brings us back into the main road."

The three mounted and clattered away. To Florence it had the air of a prank. She was beginning to have such confidence in these two inventive men that she felt as if she was never going to be afraid any more.

When the Countess Olga saw the three horses it was an effort not to fly into a rage. But secretly she warned her people, who presently gave chase in the limousine, while she prattled and jested and laughed with her company, who were quite unaware that a drama was being enacted right under their very noses. The countess, while she acted superbly, tore her handkerchief into shreds. There was something sinister in the way all their plans fell through at the very moment of consummation; and that night she determined to ask Braine to withdraw from this warfare, which gradually decimated their numbers without getting them anywhere toward the goal.

Jones shouted that the limousine was tearing down the road. Something must be done to stop it. He suggested that he drop behind, leave his horse, and take a chance at potting a tire from the shrubbery at the roadside.

"Keep going. Don't stop, Norton, till you are back in town. I'll manage to take good care of myself."

Frank Farrington chuckled. "A pair of Kilkenny cats if ever there were any!"

"Well," I said, "how in the world, then——"

"We were martyrs to our art," Mr. Cruze told me then. "People who saw us playing love scenes in pictures kept writing in continually begging us to marry. Finally one day, when Peggy hadn't been as horrid as usual, I said to her: 'What's the use? Our public demands that we sacrifice ourselves to the cause. So, are you game?"

"To which," Mrs. Cruze said, succinctly, "I replied, 'Hang the public—but I suppose I'll have to be!' And so we got married and have been making the best of it ever since."

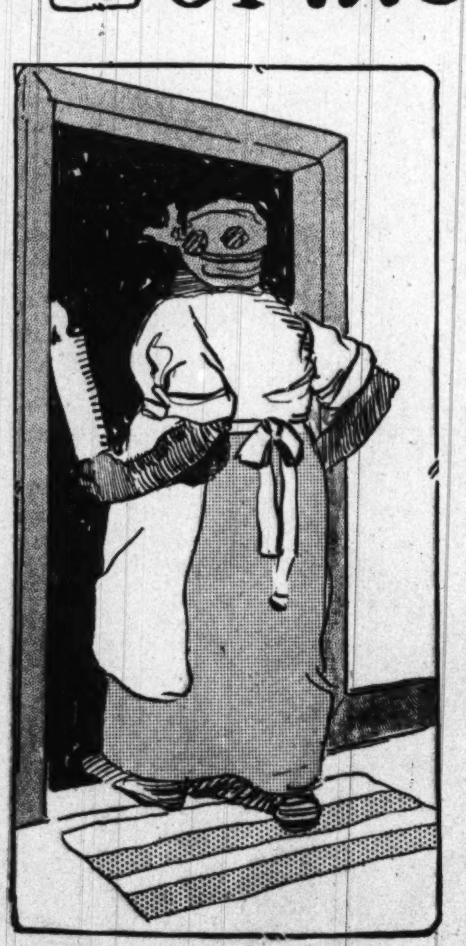
A Row in the Kitchen.

They looked at each other adoringly and Jimmie, raising his glass, was about to drink to her, when there was a sound of something crashing in the kitchen, accompanied by much loud and expressive language in vivid southern dialect. Peggy clutched at the arms of her chair.

"My heavens! Arena's decided—and it's murder!"

We jumped from our chairs and rushed to the kitchen. The outside door was open, and standing in the doorway, peering down the stairs, was the colored cook, sending a volume of language after something or somebody who was making a swift and noisy getaway.

"Arena!" Mrs. Cruze screamed the word. "What have you done?"



Standing in the doorway was the colored cook, sending a volley of language after something or somebody.

At her words the voluminous figure turned, and the face that surmounted it wore a smile of deep content.

"Ah tol' him, Mis' Cruze, that if he evah come back I shuh would bruck suthin' on his haid—an' I done it. Theah ain' no niggah kin give me a ring he says is gol' an' I take it to fin' how much it cos' an' th' joolah says it's brass. No, ma'am. No, ma'am! Now, Mis' Cruze, yo' go back an' jus' finish youah dinnah. That's done settled!"

Humming tunelessly, she strolled over to the stove and started dishing up something. Speechless, we trooped back to the table, where, silently, Jimmie prepared some more milk and vichys, which as silently we drank. Then Peggy said, in sepulchral tones:

"Whaddye 'spose she bruck?"

"His haid, most likely," Lila Chester giggled, whereupon we all promptly had hysterics, from which we were brought to by the disgusted voice of Arena saying from the doorway:

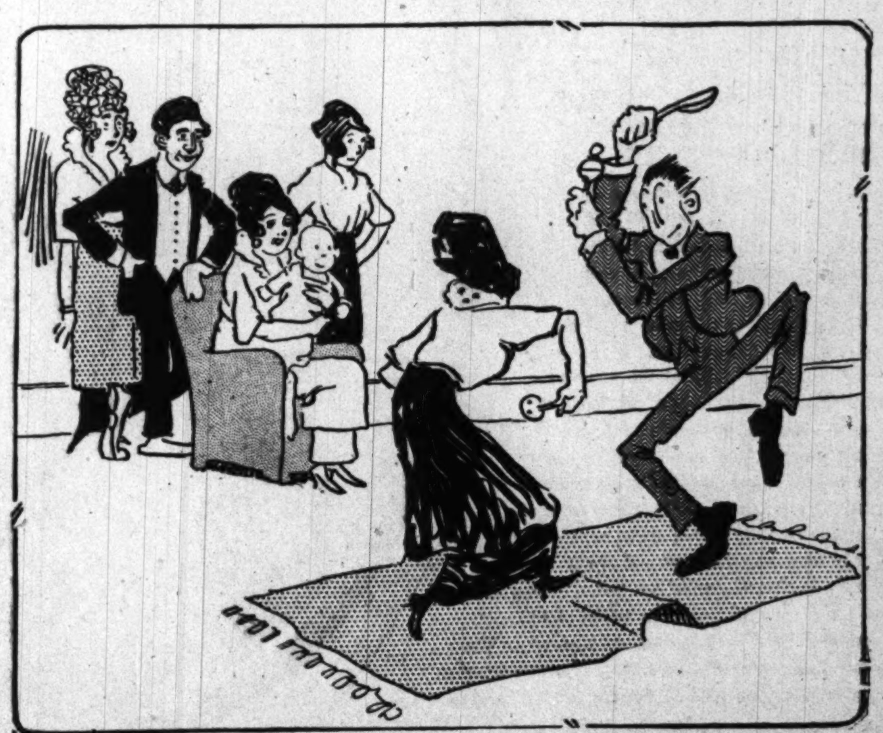
"When youse ready foh th' nex' co'se it's ready an' spoilin'."

"All right, Arena," Mrs. Cruze said, meekly and weakly, and Arena stalked in and changed the table.

The dinner was delicious and proceeded without any further interruptions.

After dinner, as I told you, we went in and entertained the baby. As we came back into the living room Mr. Lonergan said: "That cymbal thing you just pulled off makes me think of the time at Lowe's theater when, just as the orchestra was ready to play, somebody showed a lemon and nobody but the pianist and the violinist was able to perform. I wish I had a lemon just now!"

"Knocker!" Sidney Bracey hissed, and Mrs. Cruze said: "Speaking of music——" and she started the victrola. Which was the signal, of course, to take up the rugs and pull back chairs and tables preparatory to the inevitable dance which is always a feature of the Thanhouser parties. And, believe me, this turned out to be some party. (It's nobody's business what time we went home.)



Sidney Bracey and Mignon Anderson made the hit of the evening with a dance they originated, using rattles and spoons in lieu of cymbals and tambourine.

General Stoessel, the famous defender of Port Arthur, is dying in Hmnelik, Podolia. Broken in health, his heart crushed by the disgrace and humiliation which has been his since the Russo-Japanese war in 1904, he is spending his last days on the estate of a former adjutant under his command, who has extended his charity to the wretched old man. General Stoessel was accused and convicted of cowardice and dereliction of duty, and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. After twenty-five months, however, he was released and for a time he and his heroic wife endeavored to eke out a living by selling tea and breeding chickens. The Czar was petitioned for a pardon, which he refused to grant. This final blow was the death warrant of General Stoessel, for upon hearing the news he had a stroke of apoplexy, and has since that time been failing rapidly.

Beyond pardon! So declares his government. The friends who loved him say sadly, but taking evident comfort from the thought, "He will soon be beyond need of pardon."

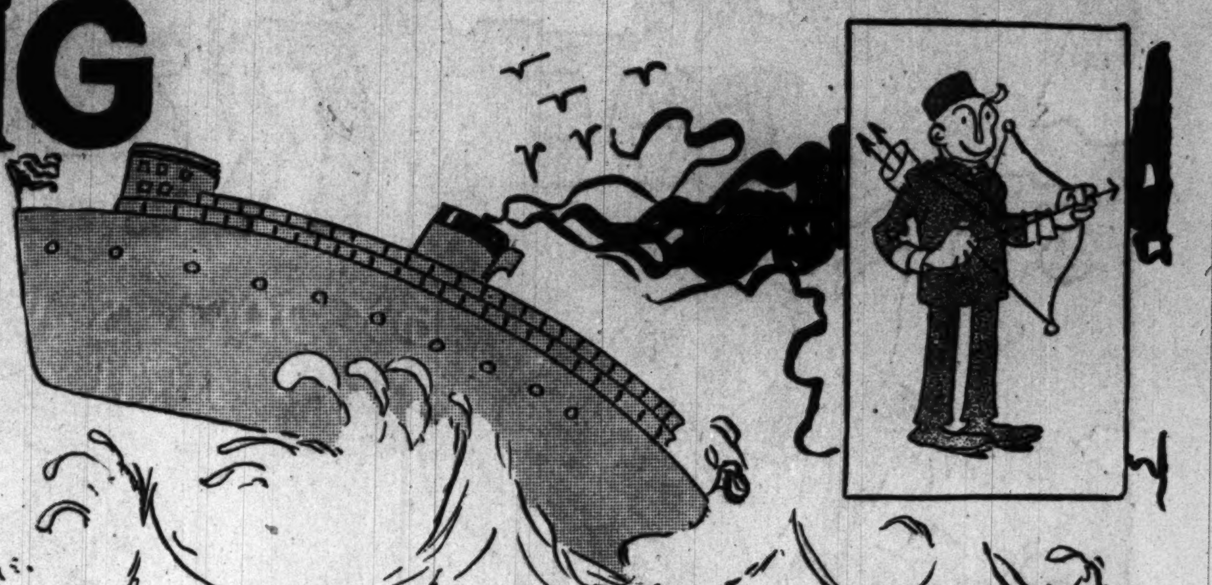
BELL HOPPING for CUPID



by Oney Fred Sweet

Being the Account of an Experience as an Employe on a Lake Steamer for a Day—with a Romantic Feature in Which a Justice of the Peace Officiated.

IT was just a few minutes before the boat started that this particular couple came aboard. They arrived at an exciting moment. The bell on the Clark street bridge was jingling a warning that the structure was about to go straight up in the middle; a tug on the other side of the river was tooting; the wagons over in South Market street were rattling; an impatient street car was clanging, and above all there was the deep whistle of our own good ship. At such a moment it was not strange that this couple should get separated after safely making the gang plank. I think it was one of the Lutheran Ministers' association members who stepped in front of her, and a heavily badged officer of a west side Eagles' lodge who got in front of him.

Anyhow, when the boat started to float down through the canyon of warehouses, with those on deck giving "we're going and you ain't" waves to the workers in the windows, this couple was completely separated, and I could tell when I opened up a chair for her—just as politely as any bell hop possibly could—that she didn't appreciate my act. She was sure that the fellow who had brought her was slighting her on purpose, and there was a soreness in her heart that the orchestra in the dance hall, the calliope on the hurricane deck, the piano in the stern, and the graphophones in the ceilings, all going at once on different tunes, couldn't soothe.

It didn't help matters any when, just about the time we were far enough out for everybody to be picking out the buildings between the Blackstone and the Masonic temple, she caught sight of him strolling back toward her beside another woman. It didn't make any difference, either, that this other woman was a 45 year old 200 pound member of a singing society.

"I've been hunting everywhere," he began eagerly.

She hitched her chair closer to the railing and turned her eyes attentively to the green waves that were topped with spray as the boat plowed through them.

"Let me introduce you to my old Sunday school teacher," he pursued, this time a gulp taking the place of eagerness in his voice. "Her society is taking a trip across the lake today, too."

But the girl was deaf to everything save the splash of the water. From somewhere in the ceiling above came the canned music strains of "When I Lost You." In a few minutes he had to give up the argument and beat it.

The Steward Explains the Winds.

"Guess you all must be new on the crew," said a voice at my ear. "Just 'cause you've fixed one lady up with a chair's no sign your wo'k's through fo' the trip. Wind's blowin' from out of the no'th no'theast this mo'nin'. I reckon we'll all be right smart busy."

I turned and saluted. I was bound to be thoroughly nautical, even if it was my first experience before the mast. As I preceded the steward along the cabin gangway I tried to affect a rolling walk instead of bunny hugging to the rail all the time, but it was no use. I didn't attach any meaning then to the steward's remark about the northeast wind. I was fascinated by his drawl. He spends his winters on his father's plantation near Monroe, La. When he talks you think of cotton blossoms and magnolias and malaria.

By this time there was nothing left of Chicago at all. All the waves began to be white on top. The boat began to tip to one side and then to the other. One minute you could see the waves and the next minute you could see the sky.

"We get a wind blowin' just this way about fo' times a yeah," explained the steward. "It could blow a hurricane from the south and we all wouldn't feel it, but when it gets a sta't from clear the othah end of the lake this way—of cou'se, I nevah notice it myself, but——"

We had reached the forward stairway, where passengers were descending with pained looks on their faces. And it had been such a gay crowd when we started from the Clark street bridge. Suddenly a lurch came to the boat, that sent the whole orchestra sliding, instruments and all, from their platform. As for the tango dancers, they all took a hurried new step to the side of the boat that happened to be on the down tilt.

"What's the matter with that girl who just rushed to the side of the boat?" I inquired of the dame at the candy counter. "It's a cinch she didn't make her face that white with her chamois rag."

"O, they ain't used to it," she answered, adjusting her hair that was done on top of her head straight up from her ears. (She had plenty of time to primp—no one was buying candy.) "They'll be asking you to hurry and bring them everything pretty quick. They'll call for everything from lemons to taxis, but there's nothing that'll do 'em any good."

"Land lubbers," I poohed with a laugh. I remembered the term from some sea yarn I had pored over as a kid. I used it again, pleased over its sound, and I tipped my cap a bit more to the side of my head.

I had been looking forward to eating mess with the crew down in the galley. Jack London had led me to anticipate a lot of "shiver my timbers" stuff. For the sake of adventure I hoped that possibly the cook would chase me back up the stairway with a butcher knife. I was somewhat disappointed, however, to find that the cabin watch and his assistant were Oberlin college students in winter, that the assistant steward was a junior at Monmouth, and the purser a high school teacher in Michigan City.

Those wearing blue uniforms who didn't have some sort of "rah rah" connections were mostly members of the theatrical profession, whom press agents would have us believe spend their summers at their country homes. The dock foreman, I learned, was a comedian in winter, with the "Isle of Ginger" company, and the ship patrol an advance agent for a "one night stand" attraction, when the lake was filled with ice.

Of course, the cooks were year around cooks, and some of the dish washers did put up the appearance of thrilling "movie" characters. It was melodramatic, too, to have the red tablecloth with white spots in it, roll with the boat, and to look up and see the green sea splashing across the "dead lights."

"Try de hamburger and some of de sliced cucumbers," suggested the waiter, who looked quite natty in his white duck suit open at the throat, even if he did need a shave.

Ordinarily I like hamburger and sliced cucumbers, but all of a sudden I couldn't understand how the rest of the crew could be pitching into the grub on that table. It didn't appeal to me at all.

"I don't believe I care for any more," I apologized, feeling in a dizzy sort of way that the red table cloth with white spots in it was doing a sort of dip the dips stunt about an inch from my eyes.

"You don't need to find fault with the cook," flared the steward at my right. "He's an old timah. He——"

But I was half way up the galley stairway without stopping for any further apologies. It was when I finally felt safe in leaving the railing that I saw, a little farther down the deck, the girl for whom I had fixed the chair just as the boat had started. She had been having a bad time of it, too, and she was all alone.

Homeward Bound on Calmed Waters.

I wasn't feeling overly pert myself, but there was a look of sorrow in that girl's face that wasn't caused altogether by the way the big green waves were rolling. It was that look that started me out on a hunt over the boat for the guy who had come aboard with her. I had to put up with hearing a vender shout "Hot weiner sandwiches" in my ears, and listening to all sorts of phonograph records (canned at a time when the surroundings were stable and intended to be gay), but I finally found him—as far at the other end of the boat as he could possibly get.

"She wants to see you," I rattled. "Says she knows now it was all accidental—your getting separated from each other, and that the woman really was your Sunday school teacher. Yep, she's right where you left her."

"Well, it didn't take any detailed explanation to get him started to working his way back through Lutheran ministers, singing society members, tango dancers, kids, and such few Eagles as had strayed from the lower deck.

Of course, I didn't actually see the couple together again until some time after the sand dunes of Indiana had come into view, and we had harbored. It was while I was sauntering with other members of the crew down Michigan City's main thoroughfare that I saw them coming down the street looking for something. At first I thought they were trying to find a restaurant or a movie show, but pretty soon they paused, and then passed hesitatingly down the steps beneath a sign over a basement doorway:

"James F. Gleason, Justice of the Peace."

No, the guy didn't give me a tip when we got back on the boat for the return trip. But when the sun began to set above the calmed waters, by going up on the upper deck I could see them sitting close together looking at the rainbow in the spray, between them a ribbon tied scroll that was decorated with cupids and pink violets, and—well, I'll never feel that my day as a steamship bellhop was wholly in vain.

An', wite by the pump in our pasture lot,
He showed me the hole 'at the Wunks is got,
'At lives 'way deep in the ground, an' can Turn into me, er 'Lizabuth Ann!
Ain't he a funny old Raggedy Man?
Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy Man!

The Raggedy Man—one time when he
Was makin' a little bow-'n-orry fer me,
Says, "When you're big like your pa is,
Air you go' to keep a fine store like his—
An' be a rich merchunt—an' wear fine clothes?
Er what air you go' to be, goodness knows?"
An' nen he laughed at 'Lizabuth Ann,
An' I says, "'M go' to be a Raggedy Man—
I'm ist go' to be a nice Raggedy Man!"
Raggedy! Raggedy! Raggedy Man!

As we read these verses of the "Raggedy Man" we feel that we really could see him in his ragged clothes as he went about the farm and did the "chores," and we can almost hear him tell his stories about "giunts an' griffuns an' elves" to the group of eagerly listening children. And so it is with all the poems written by James Whitcomb Riley. He puts his heart into his verses and we feel with him and enjoy with him his experiences from the "Ole Swimmin' Hole" to being out with him in nature, "Knee Deep in June."

Riley has this power because all his life he has lived close to nature and has loved it. He knows that "the world is full of roses, and the roses full of dew, and the dew is full of heavenly love that drips for me and you." And with this love filling his heart he sings to us his songs.

Riley was born in Indiana, in the little town of Greenfield, about twenty miles from Indianapolis, and the people he tells about in his poems are real people, and sometimes he tells of them in the simple dialect of the country, and he makes us feel that these people in his tales are our friends as well as his, and to many of his Indiana friends he is still "Jim." So we go with him and the boys to visit at "Old Aunt Mary's," and we rejoice with the children when "Granny's come to our house, and ho!

my lawzy-daisy!
All the children 'round the place
Is 'ist a-runnin' crazy."

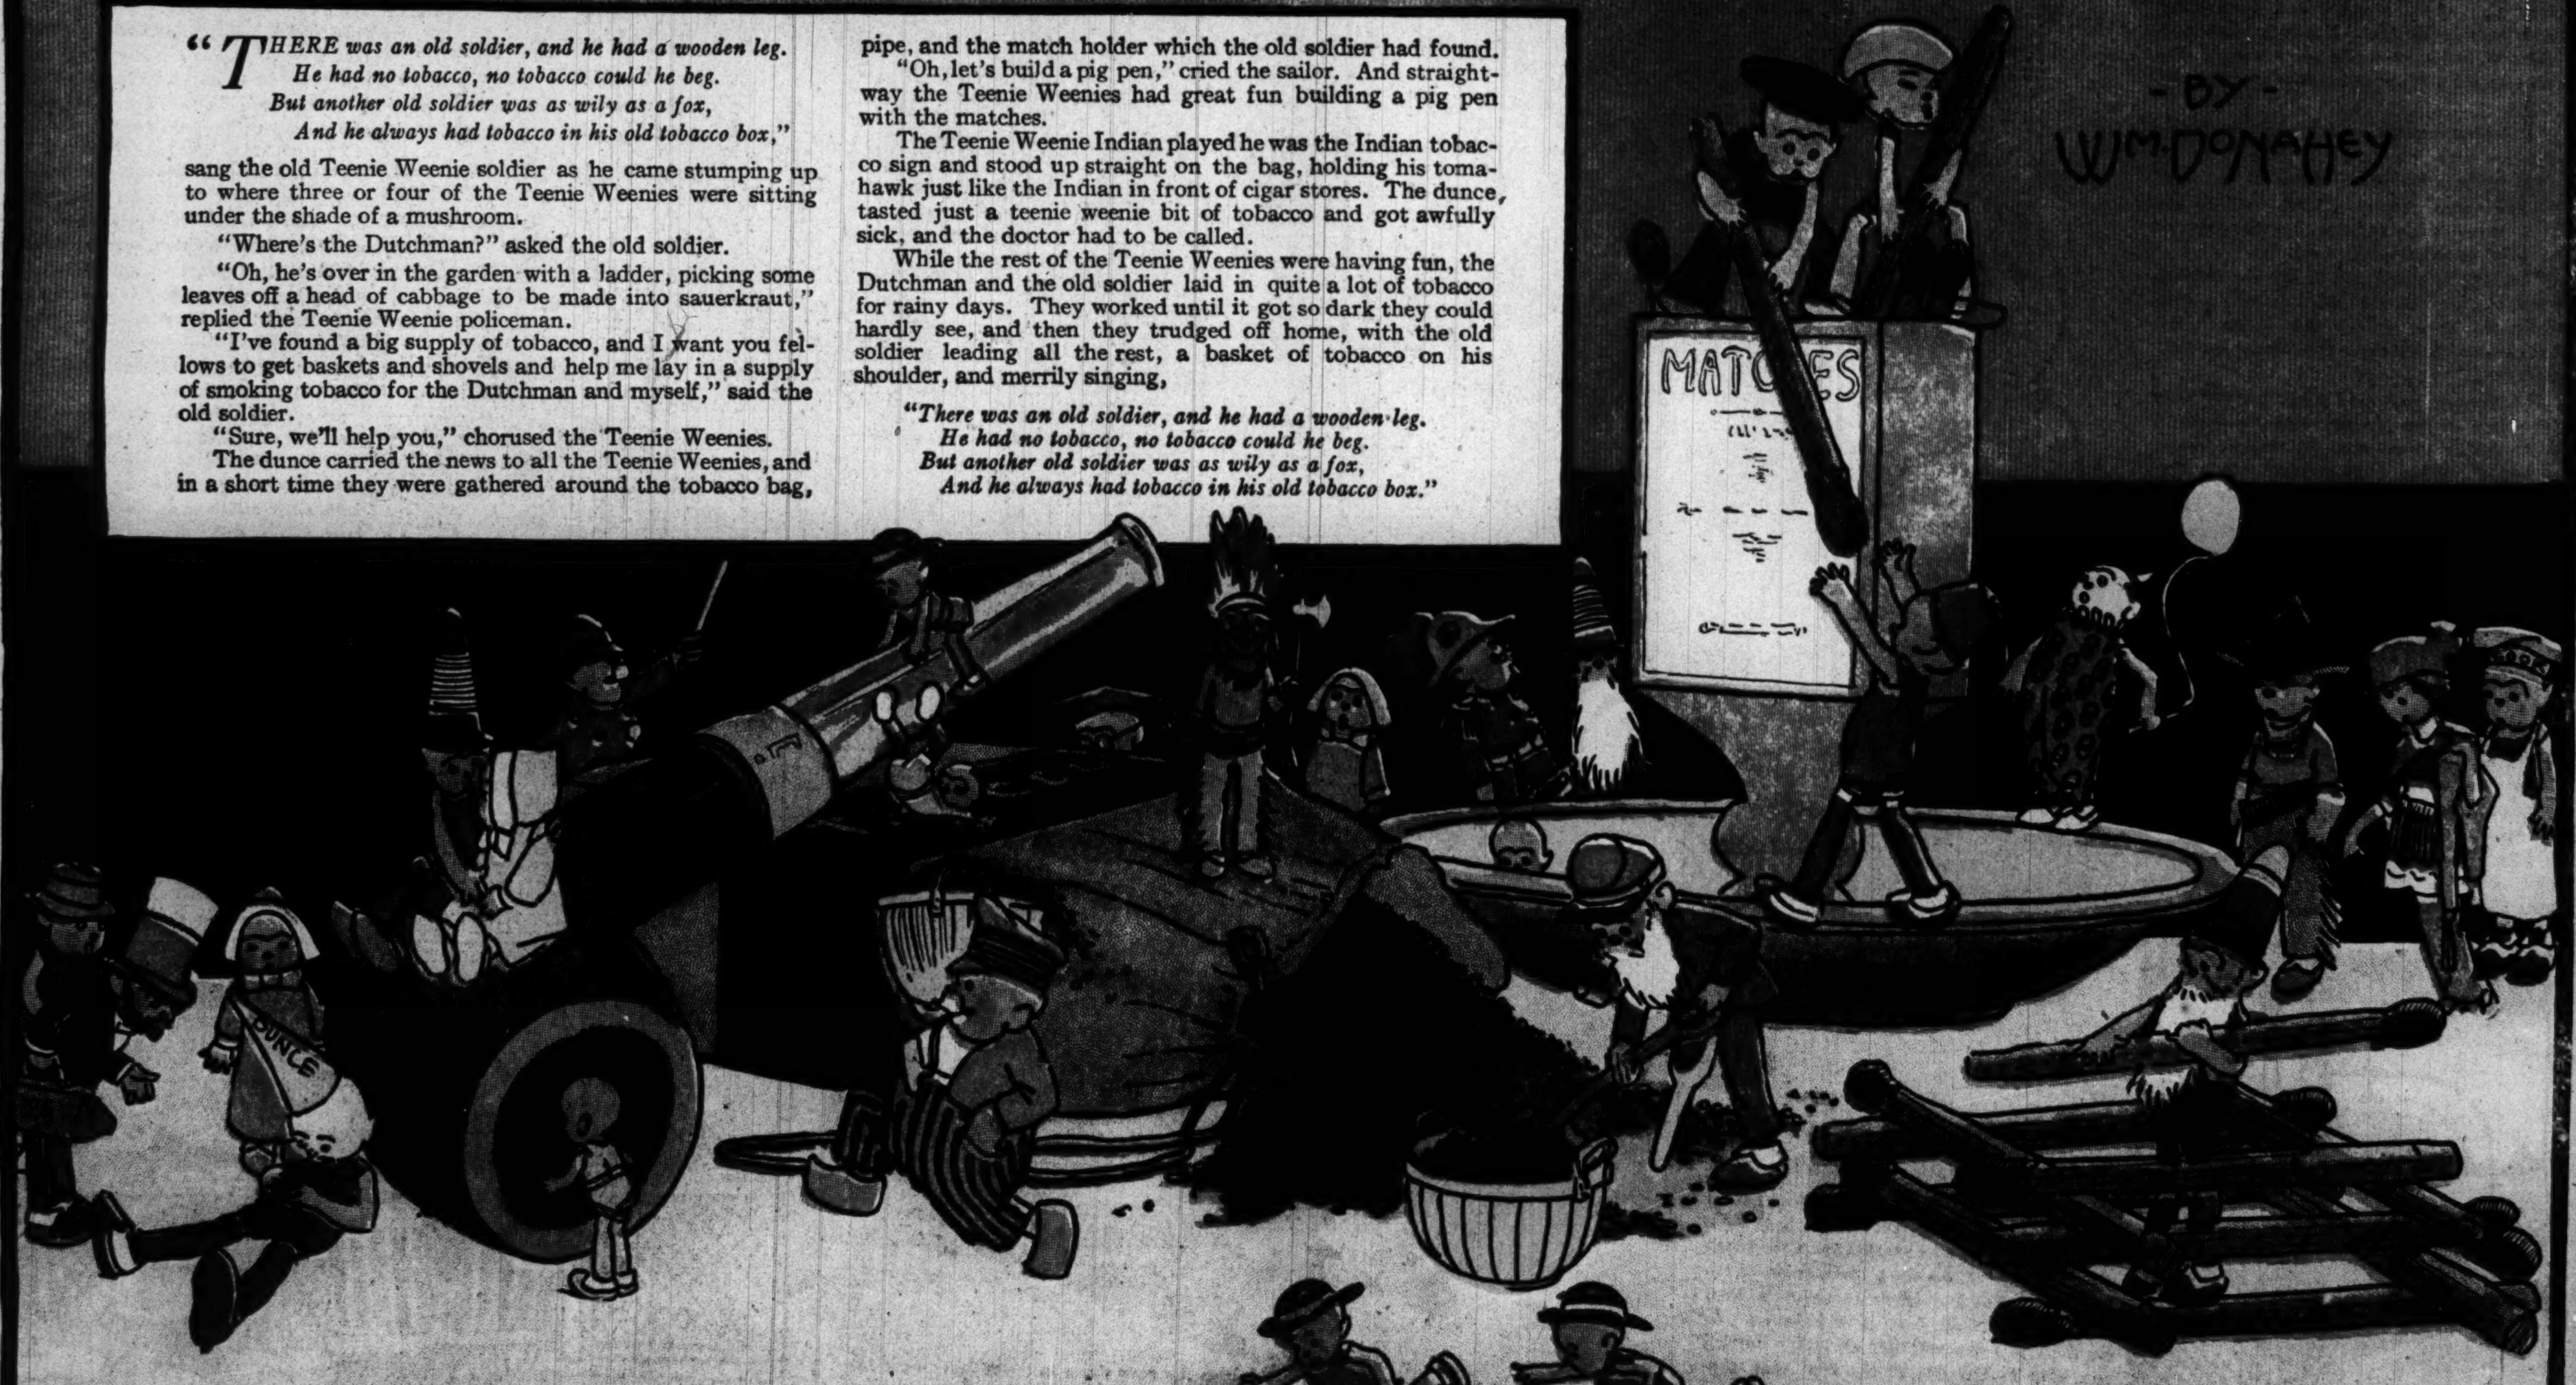
He never will grow old, for his heart is ever youthful, and his love for little children has helped him to understand their needs and to keep young with them.

When he has "Little Orphant Annie" tell her tales of "goblins that will get you ef you don't watch out" he really believes in them all, and the children share this feeling and enjoy with him these tales of wonder.

He told a friend one time that his ambition in life, the pinnacle of happiness for him, was to give joy to the little children. If he could only do that, he declared, he believed he would not have lived in vain.

THE TEENIE WEENIES.

-BY- WM. DONAHEY



"THERE was an old soldier, and he had a wooden leg.
He had no tobacco, no tobacco could he beg.
But another old soldier was as wily as a fox,
And he always had tobacco in his old tobacco box,"

sang the old Teenie Weenie soldier as he came stumping up to where three or four of the Teenie Weenies were sitting under the shade of a mushroom.

"Where's the Dutchman?" asked the old soldier.

"Oh, he's over in the garden with a ladder, picking some leaves off a head of cabbage to be made into sauerkraut," replied the Teenie Weenie policeman.

"I've found a big supply of tobacco, and I want you fellows to get baskets and shovels and help me lay in a supply of smoking tobacco for the Dutchman and myself," said the old soldier.

"Sure, we'll help you," chorused the Teenie Weenies.

The dunce carried the news to all the Teenie Weenies, and in a short time they were gathered around the tobacco bag, pipe, and the match holder which the old soldier had found.

"Oh, let's build a pig pen," cried the sailor. And straightway the Teenie Weenies had great fun building a pig pen with the matches.

The Teenie Weenie Indian played he was the Indian tobacco sign and stood up straight on the bag, holding his tomahawk just like the Indian in front of cigar stores. The dunce, tasted just a teenie weenie bit of tobacco and got awfully sick, and the doctor had to be called.

While the rest of the Teenie Weenies were having fun, the Dutchman and the old soldier laid in quite a lot of tobacco for rainy days. They worked until it got so dark they could hardly see, and then they trudged off home, with the old soldier leading all the rest, a basket of tobacco on his shoulder, and merrily singing,

"There was an old soldier, and he had a wooden leg.
He had no tobacco, no tobacco could he beg.
But another old soldier was as wily as a fox,
And he always had tobacco in his old tobacco box."

Irene (Pax), goddess of peace, was the daughter of Jupiter (Zeus) and of Themis, a Titan woman. A magnificent temple was built to her in Rome by the Emperor Vespasian. On coins she is represented as holding in her left arm a cornucopia, and in her right hand an olive branch.

PROTECT YOUR SKIN

Says LILLIAN RUSSELL

LILLIAN RUSSELL GETTING WELL.

Latest word from Atlantic City, N. J., says that Lillian Russell, who has been ill and confined to her bed for the last ten days, is now considered out of danger.

Miss Russell has been suffering from a serious cold which settled on her chest and it was feared for a time that pneumonia would result. Happily that danger seems past.

Lillian Russell's articles appear every day in The Daily Nribune.

[Copyright: 1914: By Lillian Russell.]

If you wish to keep your skin fresh and nice you must take extra precautions in summer time. Summer brings with it a number of trials for the complexion, and if you don't take "the ounce of prevention" during the season of freckles, tan, burn, and dust, and your skin is at all sensitive, the results will be most deplorable.

Some people, it is true, admire the becoming brown which is characteristic of the seashore girl, but, unfortunately, we do not all brown becomingly. And in any case tanning and browning to such an extent is bound to harm the skin in due course.

Too much exposure to sun and air is fatal to all culture of complexion beauty. When you want to wear your evening dress you will find the tan, burn, and freckles most unpleasant things to have to deal with. The effect is most incongruous, and certainly not pretty if the color of the skin on your arms and neck is two toned, as is generally the result where no precautions against burn and tan have been taken.

If you make a practice of wearing low necked blouses out of doors don't forget your sunshade. Protect yourself against the sun's rays while you sit on the beach after your swim. The ugliest sunburns result from the sun beating down upon wet, unprotected skin. Face, neck, and throat once allowed to become red and scorched through sunburn remain unsightly for a long time. Before going out lightly dab a little nongreasy cream over the skin, and then dust lightly over with some good face powder. This effectively protects the complexion, neck, throat, and arms from the evil effects of exposure to a hot sun, which, in spite of its health giving properties, serves to dry and burn the skin, causing it to wrinkle in many cases.

The formula for a good greaseless cream follows: Three drams gum tragacanth, five drams cologne spirits, fifty drams glycerin, thirty drams stronger rose water, and twelve drams stronger orange flower water. Rub the gum tragacanth and cologne spirits into a smooth paste, then add the glycerin. Mix this thoroughly. Then add the rosewater and orange flower water, and beat to a smooth cream. A little of this cream is all that is necessary, as it is easily absorbed.

Cold water should never be used on a sunburned complexion. Wash the face in warm water instead. Then sponge with a simple mixture of rain water (or any soft water), lavender, and benzoin. The proportions are three of water, one of simple tincture of benzoin, and two of lavender water. Cucumber milk is cooling for the sunburned face. Take an ounce of fresh cucumber juice and three ounces of fresh milk. Scald, skim, and use. This preparation will only keep a few days, so it is not wise to make a large quantity of it. Massage this well into the face after washing. Then wipe the face with a soft towel.

In the summer you should massage your skin more frequently with good skin food than in winter time. There is nothing so effective for cleansing the pores. In the hot, dry weather dust is blowing about everywhere, and soon settles into the pores of the skin. If allowed to remain there, blackheads and other disagreeable blemishes result. Massage your face every night, rubbing and tapping the cream into the skin of the face and neck. Then bathe your face and neck in warm water to which about eight or ten drops of tincture of benzoin have been added. This prevents the skin getting flabby.

There are some folk perverse enough to maintain that freckles are pretty, and although this is no doubt their honest opinion, it would be rare to find a girl afflicted with even a few freckles willing to acknowledge that they were anything but a blemish to her complexion.

Too much exposure to sun and air is fatal to complexion beauty. When you want to wear your evening dress you will find the tan, burn, and freckles most unpleasant things to deal with.

The woman who freckles easily should protect her skin during the warm weather by rubbing a little nongreasy cream into it once or twice a day and giving it a light dusting of powder after the cream has been well rubbed into the pores. This, with the additional precaution of wearing a veil on sunshiny days, should prevent them from appearing, no matter how fine and delicate the skin may be.

Buttermilk is invaluable for washing the freckled face, and its regular use will entirely remove freckles and prevent them from reappearing. It is always a mistake to put off the removal of any freckles which have formed until the end of the summer, as the longer they are allowed to remain the more trouble they give when the task of removing them is undertaken. It is best to start removing them as soon as they are noticed, and then to take the precautions to prevent them from forming again.

The following lotion is excellent for removing light freckles: Four ounces lemon juice, two ounces glycerin, one ounce rosewater. Apply to the face several times daily and allow it to dry on the skin. If the freckles are deep, a stronger lotion will be necessary to remove them.

Lillian Russell's Hints to Beauty Seekers will be found on page two.

Don't go out without a hat in the blazing sun!

Don't sit on the beach in the heat of the sun without a sunshade!

Don't forget that cold cream and a good powder are a splendid protection for the skin against the heat of the sun's rays.

Don't wash your face immediately before going out on a hot day or upon coming in from a walk in the sun. Rub a little face cream into the skin instead.

Don't forget that there is nothing more devastating to the skin than dust during the summer months.

Don't forget that you should keep the pores of your skin clean by regular massage with some good skin food.

Don't forget that cold water should never be applied to a sunburned skin.

Don't forget that freckles are much easier to prevent than to remove.

Don't sit in the sun without a shade.

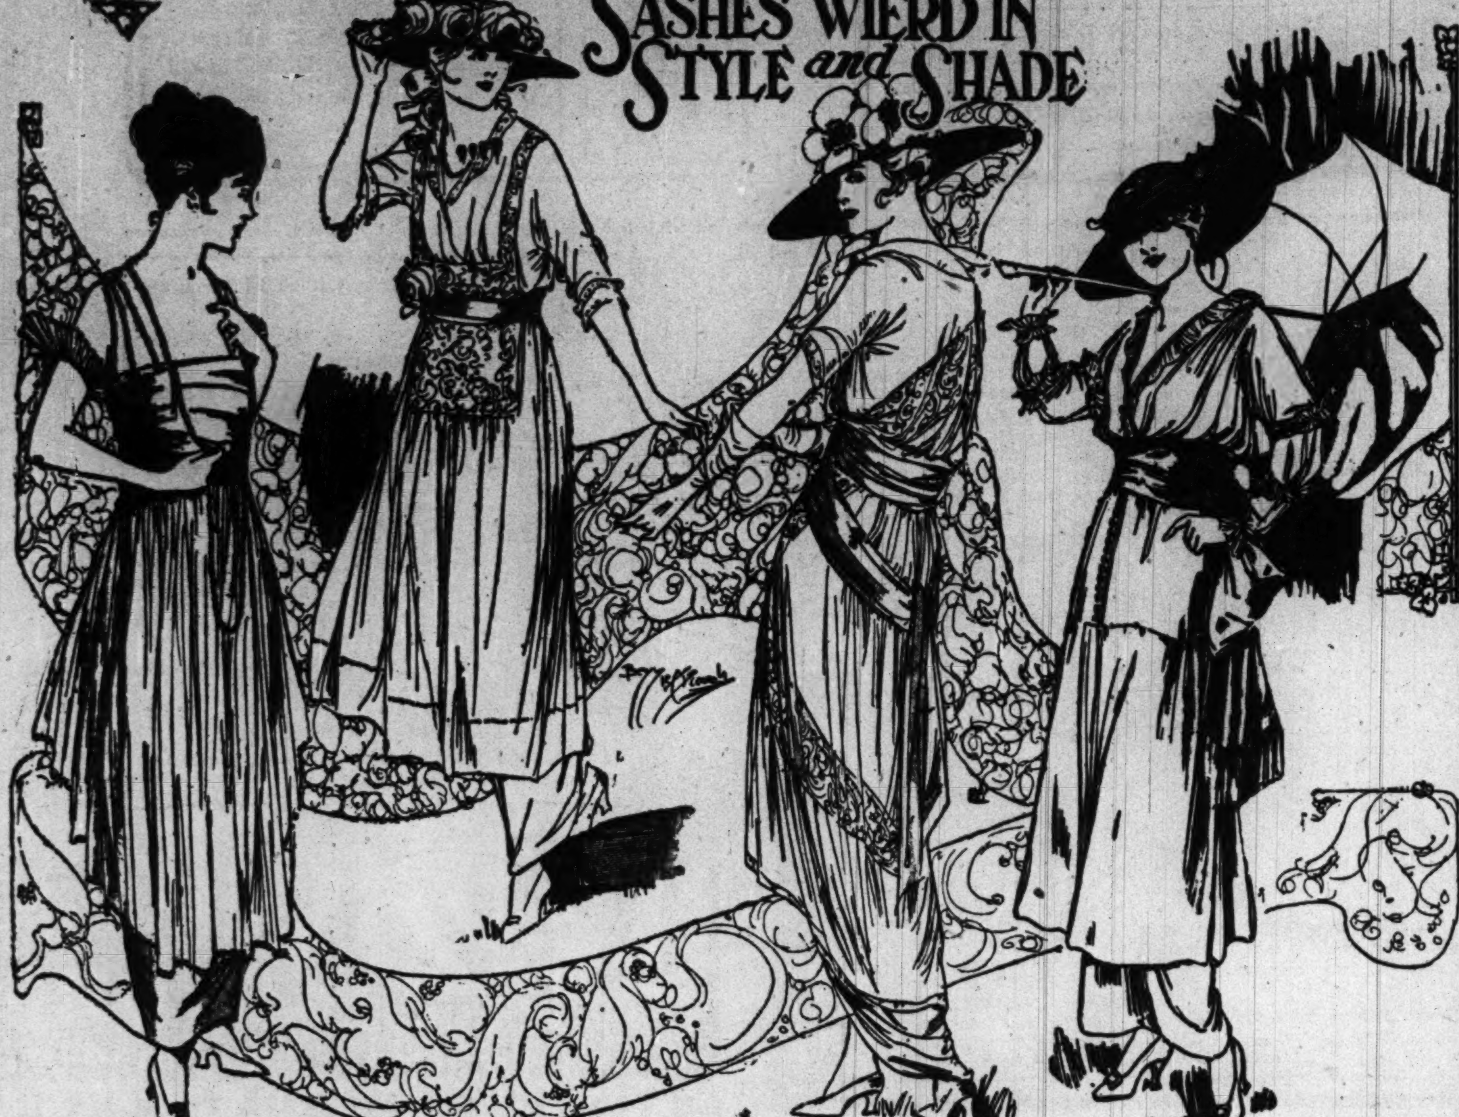
SASHES WIERD IN STYLE and SHADE



Pale emerald taffetas and lemon color tulle edged with rhinestones. Rhinestones also form the shoulder straps.

White lawn frock with white collar. Soutache embroidery down the front. Belt is of willow blue taffetas.

White charmeuse gown trimmed with tulle and lace. Sash is of lemon green liberty satin.

A handsome mixture of white tulle and taffetas and charmeuse is shown in chain this summer frock. The sash and the tiny buttons are of charmeuse.

Bessie Ascough's famous fashion pictures appear every day in "The Daily Tribune."

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—In the early spring at Monte Carlo a famous portrait painter who takes a keen interest in feminine fashions said to me: "I am very much afraid that my beloved oriental satin will have to make way for taffetas this season."

I shook my head, for I had too often seen a year open with the taffetas fever and then suddenly develop a horror of that silk. I was sure even then that taffetas was on the wane. Now, six months after that, I am even less sure than ever of its decline in public favor. For while satin is to be much worn this coming winter, so is taffetas, too, from all present indications, and to serve in the way of trimmings more than ever before.

For instance, as far as sashes are concerned, I have seen a good many lately made up of vividly shaded taffetas, in broad effects, and draped in positively weird ways about the figure. All of the new colors had been brought out here in taffetas. Taffetas sashes on satin dresses are a fashion note that is being struck very frequently now. A peculiarity of the taffetas-satin combination is that the taffetas sashes seem to drop lower than the other silk and ribbon ones. And by a taffetas sash I do not mean a taffetas ribbon. I mean the broad, bias crushed bands of the silk, in its brightest, vividest lines.

Speaking of taffetas, I might say that white taffetas and white washing tulle are being made up in fall frocks. There is an effort on the part of couturiers here to launch a season of white. Which means, of course, an excellent season for the cleaners and fancy launderers. One charming little white taffetas model I saw did not differ in material from the gowns I have seen all summer. It was of oyster white taffetas and tulle and the long sleeves of the blouse were transparent and caught in at intervals by narrow ruchings of tulle. The corsage, though, was a basque which came to the hips, and the sash was of taffetas, too. The skirt had one of the new tight fitting yokes and below that fell in full accordion plaits.

The hat was the most striking part of the costume.

The large picture shape was made of black chiffon velvet and absolutely untrimmed except for the narrow circling of velvet about the crown. Indeed, so many hats are being shown with no trimming of any kind except the narrow braiding or ribbon about the crown that one almost wonders whether or not an era of untrimmed hats is about to be established. If that were the case, it would be a wonderful boon to mankind as a whole from the financial point of view, but such an era would suggest the approach of the millennium, and not really I fear to be hoped for.

But it does seem a fact that hats are not to be so laden down with trimming this season as they have been in the past. The melon shaped hat, for instance, which has achieved considerabl vogue, is responsible for much of the untrimmed craze. It is such a small, tilting affair that if much trimming were to be poised on it there is no telling what would befall it.

One pretty idea that has found favor here is to have the narrow ribbon or braiding on the hat of the same shade as the sash worn and to have these colors the only color note on the whole outfit. Black and white still holds stylish. There is no evidence even of fickle femininity growing weary of it. All black and all white and suits all of that single combination continue everlastingly, it seems, in favor.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

Cut these out and paste them in your scrap book. Cut by single column, as at times cook book will be printed in two columns and at other times in more.

Jane Eddington's articles are printed every day in "The Daily Tribune."

[Copyright: 1914 By Jane Eddington.]

THE tomato is now almost as permanent a household supply as the potato. For four months, beginning with July, every city ice box is provided with this every ready salad material, while fortunate ones, more and more each year, enjoy not only the possession but the sight of this red fruit as it hangs on their own vines.

The tomato's first place is perhaps in the salad, and whether plain, sliced, or elaborately stuffed, with a plain or rich dressing, it is almost universally acceptable.

The tomato is of inestimable value as a soup ingredient. The addition of half a dozen peeled tomatoes to a plain soup stock neutralizes and dilutes this essentially winter nutriment, making it particularly fit for the summer menu. Without any meat at all one can make delicious soups other than the always popular cream of tomato or mock bisque.

Plain baked, the tomato is a splendid garnish for numerous meats. The oven must not be too hot when it is baked, and almost the whole secret of frying tomatoes is in the extreme gentleness of the process. It is not ncessary to scorch them.

Stuffed tomatoes have been done to death. When it is so good plain baked and more of the tomato, which most people like better than any stuffing, and since it is such a nice task to do the work well, why do it at all? It is more reasonable to stuff them for salads because they are so handsome.

Tomato sauces are easily prepared and delicious. They are very good dietetically with meats, but not with spaghetti or with beans. These latter combinations impose a greater wear and tear on the digestive organs than is consistent if one would grow old comfortably.

Plain stewed the tomato is the most easily prepared of any vegetable we cook. And let us say a word for the tomato straight from the vines, which some people eat without even salt or sauce. A correspondent has just written a challenge, saying: "But closely as I have read and studied and experimented I have yet to find a recipe for as good a dish as I have just eaten. * * * I stand with my salt shaker in my hand, Oh Jane Eddington, I stoop, break off a tomato, bite into it, shake a bit of salt into the bitten place, and bite again and again and again! Can you beat it?"

The long prelude to this recipe tells of a city woman, who took her sick mother to the country, of the criticism of the country folk over some of their ways with seeds and plants, of the new interest in life from watching the beginnings of life, the excitement of the morning when the tomatoes showed through the crock of earth in the south window, of the transplanting, of the shielding on hot days and the uncovering for the showers, of the anxious evenings, of the first worm and the watching for other worms, of the blossoms and then the "set" of the fruit, and, just before the end, the changing of green to red.

And not even this process is given as the final ingredient of the tomato recipe, but the whole enthusiastic account shows how glorious a thing it is to grow things, especially the tomato.

To Prepare Tomatoes for Salads.

Put the tomatoes in the frying basket or some sort of strainer, dip them in boiling water for one minute so that they are completely covered, lift out, peel, and chill.

Sliced Tomato Salad.

Slice the tomatoes in slices of the same thickness, place on lettuce leaves, and then vary as you please by adding chopped raw vegetables. A salad recommended for serving with fish is a sort of tomato sandwich. Cover one slice with well chilled chopped cucumber, another with chopped green pepper, another with chopped onion, and then place a slice of tomato over each. Thick slices of cucumber and then a little round of tomato on top of that, cut out with a cutter, is another mode. Finely shaved celery and chopped cress are sometimes added to alternate slices. Chopped mixtures of various sorts, if well blended, are used on slices of tomato. Chopped cabbage with green pepper and chopped tomatoes is one of the less usual combinations. A French dressing and good cooked dressings are best for these salads.

German Tomato Salad.

Slice well chilled tomatoes and serve with little German pearl onions. Instead of these very small cooked boiling onions may be used. Very decorative salads may be made with the little yellow and red plum tomatoes. Scald quickly, peel and chill and arrange on lettuce leaves with the yellow ones in the middle and the red ones around. Character is given to this salad by adding a few drops of onion juice to the dressing or rubbing the dressing bowl with a clove of garlic.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.

Cut off a cap from the stem end of peeled and chilled tomatoes, scoop out the centers, and sprinkle the inside very lightly with salt. Chop the tomato taken out and mix with the finely mixed pulp of cucumber thoroughly chilled and seasoned to taste with salt and pepper and a little onion juice. Fill the tomatoes, put on the caps, and surround them with a wreath of water cress. Serve with a cooked dressing. Other chopped vegetables raw or even cooked may be used to fill the tomatoes. Serve with a cooked dressing made as follows: One egg, four tablespoons of vinegar, one-half cup of milk, a small square of butter, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon of mustard, a pinch of pepper. Mix the dry ingredients well together, add the egg and beat very thoroughly, then the vinegar, and beat a minute. Add the milk and then cook in double boiler, add the butter just before taking from fire. This is especially good for cooked vegetables.

Baked Tomatoes.

Wash and gash once or twice across the blossom end, and bake in a small pan. They will be done almost as soon as they are well heated through. If stuffing them before they are baked, do not use cracker crumbs unless your tomatoes are as ripe as ripe can be. Baked tomatoes with shirred eggs: Peel small and solid tomatoes, scoop out the center, and season slightly with a sprinkling of salt and pepper, then break an egg into each. Stand the tomatoes in a baking dish and cook for ten or fifteen minutes in an oven that is not too hot.

Patahoi.

This is an East Indian breakfast dish for one person, but doubled it makes an excellent luncheon dish for two. Cut one or two large peeled tomatoes in slices and fry them in a little butter. When they are tender add an egg well beaten, cook, while stirring both together, until of a very smooth consistency. A little minced onion or half a red pepper minced may be added, and if so, these should be cooked a little first before frying the tomato. Add salt to taste, the less the better. As any one can see, this is but scrambled egg with a tomato puree. Some stewed tomato can be mixed with the egg and the two cooked like scrambled eggs, but the whole would not be quite as delicious as this can be made.

Sliced Tomatoes.

If slices of fried tomatoes are to be used for a garnish, every precaution must be taken to keep them from breaking to pieces in the cooking; leave on the skin, cut in thick slices, dip in flour, and fry very gently. But the mixture of fried tomatoes with onion is an excellent thing, when the result is something of a stew. Almost without other seasoning this makes a homely but very palatable dressing for plain lettuce. Some of the summer squashes and other members of the gourd family, not so well known among us but common with the Italians, are very savory when sliced and fried with tomato and a bit of onion.

DON QUIXOTE—SANCHO SHOW SOME TRICKS IN PUZZLELAND

Don Quixote and his faithful follower, Sancho Panza, furnish this week's Adventure in Puzzleland. You see, old King Puzzlepate expects all his visitors to bring puzzle offerings, so the don brought a model of his famous windmill packed in a square box. In the picture we see how he constructed the windmill from nine geometrical pieces, and the king and his beautiful daughter, Princess Enigma, are studying out the puzzle of how to rearrange the windmill into its square form. Perhaps you can show them how to cut the windmill into its nine pieces and form a square from those pieces. In the meantime the court attendants are making merry with poor Sancho, who happened to mention that he was celebrating his birthday. They are tossing him into the air just as many times as he has lived years. When they asked him his age he replied: "Multiply one-half of my age by one-quarter of my age and the product will equal the don's age, which is just twice my age." Now, how many times did they toss poor Sancho into the air?

If you can't figure this out the answer will be found on page 6.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets

By Lillian Russell

MARTHA: A little attention twice a week will keep the hands in perfect condition. First rub the nails over with a slice of lemon (this is an excellent nail bleach and will remove all stains from them), then smear with any polishing powder or paste and rub the nails lightly over a chamois buffer. Do not polish the nails highly; a slight polish is all that is necessary. After washing the hands and drying them thoroughly rub the nails briskly over the palm of the hand for a short time. This preserves the polish and takes no time and gives no trouble. I cannot send you a formula for nail polish. There are many good ones on the market which are inexpensive. If yo ucare for instructions for manicuring send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I shall gladly send them to you.

L. E. D.: An excellent exercise for the development of the chest, bust, and neck is taken in this way. Extend the arms at the side, shoulder level, then rotate the arms in small circles. The chest is kept forward, the stomach back. In this exercise the shoulder blades should be brought as closely together as possible. Persistent work along this line is sure to yield results. Deep breathing also will help you. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall send you instructions for deep breathing and formula for developing the bust.

J. K.: Be careful in regard to the kind of soap you use in summer. Pure castile soap is the best to use, as it does not dry the skin and leaves it soft and smooth. After washing the face always rinse it with cold water. This is a splendid complexion tonic. Try softening the water with a little oatmeal. The oatmeal should be placed in small cheesecloth bags and allowed to soak in the water for a few moments. This is wonderfully refreshing to the skin and is also cleansing. I have a formula for bath bags, which may be used in place of soap, and I shall be glad to send it to you if you will send me the required stamped, addressed envelope.

GRACE: I am sure you must be mistaken in regard to the formula. I have never given a formula for a paste or lotion that will bleach the arms "snowy white" with only one application. However, I shall be glad to send you the formula for a bleach for the arms if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

V. W.: Summer brings with it a number of trials for the complexion, and you must be prepared to guard against these if you wish to keep your skin fresh and clear. In the hot weather dust is blowing about everywhere and it soon settles into the pores, causing blackheads if you allow it to remain. There is nothing so effective as massage with a good skin food for thoroughly cleansing the pores. Bathe the face in warm water until all the pores are opened and the skin is soft, then pat in a good skin food, allowing it to remain on the face for at least ten minutes. Take off surplus cream with a soft cloth, then bathe the face with hot water to remove all cream from the pores, rinse in clear warm water, using cold water last. The cold water closes the pores and makes the flesh firm. If you will send me a stamped addressed envelope I shall send you a formula for skin food.

LOUISE: I cannot send you a sample of the freckle bleach. I do not send samples of my preparations, but I shall be glad to send you the formula for making the freckle lotion if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Doris Blake Says:

"A girl never realizes how little she is understood by her friends until she looks over her birthday gifts."

Articles by Doris Blake and her replies to letters appear every day in "The Daily Tribune."

> Have you a perplexing love affair? Do you need the advice of a sympathetic, capable woman? Write to Doris Blake, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

LAST month I printed the horoscope of the July girl. "Won't you print a horoscope every month" so many of my correspondents have asked. I am always happy to do as my correspondents wish. Today I shall talk to the August girl.

If your birthday is in August you come under the signs of Leo and Virgo. You are partly in the domain of fire and partly in the domain of earth. The sun is in the constellation of Leo from the first to the twenty-third of the month and in the constellation of Virgo from the twenty-third to the end of the month.

The August girl is of a naturally courageous temperament. She has a happy, sympathetic, free, and friendly disposition. She is perfectly natural in her actions and she isn't afraid of any one. She is an animated and convincing talker and excels in repartee. She is naturally kind and loving. Since she is emotional and liable to extremes she is capable of great rage and is inclined to be sulky when offended.

There is nothing mean nor stingy about the August girl. She likes to entertain her friends royally.

She is not naturally studious, but she is observant. She can readily learn anything which she puts her mind to. She enters very sincerely into the feelings and interests of others. She makes many friends, to whom she is devoted and by whom she is frequently imposed upon. Her actions are guided by her impulses and her emotions. She is frequently misunderstood.

The August girl is usually well and strong, has a rich tone of voice, a friendly expression of the eye, and walks with a buoyant step. The August girl should marry a man born in April or December. The sardonyx is the birthstone for the girl born before the 23d and the sapphire for the girl born after the 23d. Emma Eames, the noted singer, was born Aug. 13; Ethel Barrymore, the actress, Aug. 16; Julia Marlowe, the actress, Aug. 17; Blanche Bates, the actress, Aug. 25.

If you have any particular talent, little August girl, make up your mind that you are going to make the most of it—and you'll be successful some day.

Note to a Graduate.

"Dear Miss Blake: A young lady friend of mine is going to graduate from high school very soon, and I would like to present her with a small gift. Now, what would be the most appropriate thing to say on the card when presenting this gift? RUTH."

"With sincere congratulations" would be sufficient if you do not know the young woman particularly well. If she is a dear friend of yours, why don't you write a sincere little note to her and tell her how happy and proud you are that she is graduating? A sincere personal note adds more to the gift than anything else can.

Proposed to Three.

"Dear Miss Blake: Here are three young ladies very much troubled in matters of love. During the last week we were proposed to and later discovered that the same man proposed to the three of us. We deeply love the man, and are at a loss to know what to do. We are great friends and do not wish to quarrel. "THREE BS."

I cannot understand how you can continue in your love for a man who has proved to be so dishonorable. If I were you I should see to it that the young man was given his dismissal as quickly as possible. When you stop to think of it, don't you feel that any man who would act in that dishonorable manner is not worthy of your love?

They Want to Marry.

"Dear Miss Blake: As others have come to you for advice and you gave it to them, so I have come. Miss Blake this is what I want to know: I am a young girl of 18 and am engaged to a young man one year my senior. Now he is wanting to marry now and I will take your now or wait until we are a little older? But I could never live without him. And Miss Blake, which one's place is it to set the time to marry when a boy asks a girl to marry him. BLUE EYES.

You are both too young to marry. If you love one another you won't mind waiting a few years, and then you will be much better prepared to make each other happy. It is the girl's place to set the date for the wedding.

advice. Would you advise us to marry

They're College Girls.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are two girls attending a college. There are very few men attending here and most of the girls do not have the company of a young man while here in school. The dean has often impressed us with the fact that we must be very careful in choosing our associates from among men of a near by city. She has even called them "Those vile creatures from ——." Three weeks ago last Sunday, while on the interurban two attractive young men talked with us for some time and finally asked to take us home. They have been very nice to us since then, showing few familiarities. They have asked to correspond during the summer. The dean has suggested that all girls ask her advice before keeping company with strange young men from the city. But since these young men seem so nice and are giving us such good times do you think it necessary to consult her and risk her disapproval? We are from the country and, having little experience in such things we ask your counsel. TWO GIRLS."

If the young men are as truly gentlemanly as you thinnk they are why do you feel that they would meet with the dean's disapproval? By all means tell her about them and introduce them to her. She will undoubtedly be able to judge them more justly than you can. If they are gentlemen she will be glad to have you receive their attentions, although, of course, she will not approve of your most informal manner of meeting.

She's Discouraged.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a young man several months. He promised to take me to a party. When the time came he did not come. And it made me very discouraged. What shall I do? D. M."

Do not have anything more to do with a man who has proved himself so ungentlemanly. If he could not take you to the party he should have provided a substitute or at least explained the matter to you if it were impossible for him to find some one to take his place. There are plenty of other young men in the world, and I am sure you'll meet one ere long who will think too much of you to neglect you in this way.

Auto Riding After Dark.

"Dear Miss Blake: A young man—my neighbor—and his friend have asked my friend and me several times to go auto riding. He is wealthy, but I am quite the opposite. The rides are always after 9 in the evening. Would it be all right to accept a ride, as I am sure he has no evil intentions? RAE M. A."

It will be all right for you to accept the invitation of the young men provided they include your mother or some other married woman in the party as chaperon. If they do not invite your mother to go with you don't accept their invitation. There is no more dangerous thing for young girls to do than to go riding late at night with young men without chaperons.

Erma Neitz, Fairbury, Ill., submitted the letter which was awarded the prize for the best letter from a man to a woman:

"My Phyllis: Three messengers came straight from you today. The first called early in the morning—a woodpecker with a scarlet tuft on his head. He pecked on the window until I crawled sleepily out of my covers.

"'Get up, Lazy Bones,' he sang. 'When I flew past Phyllis' window a half hour ago she was combing her long hair. She tucked in my bill for you one of the kisses that lurk in the corners of her red mouth.' Tell me, dear—did the little bird speak true? The second messenger came just at noon. Napping after lunch in my porch chair, I did not notice the honeybee.

"'Buzz, buzz!' he repeated close to my ear. 'Don't you see I am come from Phyllis? She was in her garden gathering summer lilies. She found me seeking out the perfume in a big white one pinned on her breast. She wrapped her heart in my honey bag for you.' Say, dearest, did the little brown bee tell me right? Just now as I sat dreaming of you in the dark a firefly flew in the open window of my library.

"'Phyllis kneels at her evening prayer,' he said. 'She sends her soul by me to you—a white light to leave in your keeping.' O, my beloved, as the firefly winged away through the night my love knelt to you. It kneels now. May it always be worthy to hold the three treasures you have intrusted to its care. "JOHN."

Threnody.

The love letter from a woman to a man which was awarded the prize came from far away Japan. It was submitted by Mrs. F. R. Eldridge Jr., 23 A Bluff, Yokohama, Japan. It was literally two yards of love letter written on native stationery:

"O, my dearest husband: The throbbing of those powerful engines of your vessel are carrying you each moment farther away from me.

"I have crept over the toilsome road and am standing here on the brink of this cold new dawn of my life, clasping close to my heart the memory of our dead baby son. O, my husband, our miracle—for whose advent we so joyously planned—has slipped beyond our earthly call.

"How strange and unreal it seems that in these moments I should be denied the dear comfort of your loving presence. They have brought me here to a lonely fisherman's hut, on this rocky, storm beaten coast, for calm, rest, change, and peace.

"Lying here on the 'futons' on the floor I can view the vague and distant horizon of the Pacific, whose vast waters roll unceasingly between us, for you are now nearer America than our Japan. How I hate these paper shoji and these padded, shining mats and empty rooms that I once so dearly loved.

"Even the perfume of the mountain lily nauseates me, for it but recalls those happy hours last spring when hand in hand we wandered on the hills.

Ah, my beloved husband, I have come to understand the cry within the soul of the young Buddhist priest who, after lying prostrate on the ground for many hours, rose and said, 'I know and understand the suffering of the whole world.'

O, when you read these words, torn from my soul, time will have made of them only a faint whisper of the loud calling of my heart to yours. How the waves roar as they dash high upon these rocks! No still waters may ever hope to vie with their majestic beauty. Can it be that such is all life? That we, too, must be dashed against the rocks to attain the understanding of the majestic beauty of life.

"Would that I were near you to comfort and console you in this loss. Alas! life has thrown us far apart. Yet time, we know, will at last bring us to each other's loving arms.

"Beloved, the light is fading, though the sun has left a trail of vanishing pink. Fuji appears like a mystical ghost from the sea. Even she, Beautiful, Matchless One, reminds me of my loneliness. The temple bell's long, quivering tones are pealing forth to all the dying of the day. Farewell, my beloved; my dear one, sayonara! Your loving wife, who, though afar, still holds herself as one with you, "O HANA SAN."

> Have you ever been "driven to distraction" by jealousy? Did you act like a character in a comic supplement when you meant to be a hero of tragedy?
> Did you intend to fill his stony heart with repentance by your actions and succeed in getting only a curt "Cut the tragedy queen stuff, Kid?"
> If you have had any humorous experiences with jealousy or if your friends have had any, tell us about them. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published. Address Editor Jealousy Contest, Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Would You Marry Your Mate Again?

He Passed Up Advice and—

Dear Miss Blake: Would I remarry my wife? You'll have to read my little story or look at the end for the answer. I shan't anticipate, because that would knock its interest galley west.

Ten years ago Dot consisted of a fluffy mass of golden hair, big blue eyes, a complexion that jealous people called rouge, but if it was that it was a decidedly rainproof variety; a perfect figure; lower extremities that filled No. 3 shoes, though did not crowd, and hands the two of which were covered by one of mine.

She could cook splendidly. Her sunshine cake reflected her personality. What's more, she could keep a home looking like its name instead of like a pigty as is the wont of so many modern bridge fiends. This brings us to cards, most women's idea of exquisite joy. Dot could play anybody to a standstill on the glazed paper game. But she never was enthusiastic over cards. She preferrerd a good book. If any other question arises in the mind of the reader about Dot I'll answer it in her favor without knowing its nature. Dot was perfect. That was all before we were married.

My good friends tried to tell me what a fool I was to marry her. They insisted that girls that look like the pictures on the cover of "15 cents at all new stands" and do things—before marriage—like the idyllic description that was to be found in this same publication on the inside pages, would prove a "ringer" in real life. I was treated daily to such remarks as "Come out of it old man," "She's pulling the wool over your eyes," and the like. My best pal told me that she would run off with another inside of a month after the knot was tied. But I was young and didn't pay any attention, not even to a pleading mother and a raging father.

I deliberately decided to see if "congugal felicity" and Dot and I weren't synonyms. And I found out—that we were! I have never regretted the day that the minister held our hands. He was the last to have that pleasure (speaking of Dot's) with the exception of myself. Now change the description in my first line of Dot to the present tense and "my story is done." Would I marry again? Say, if the only minister on earth was occupied with missionary work in the wilds of Africa and if I couldn't afford to travel to that continent in first class style I'd carry Dot and beat my way there! And my partner assures me that I'd have a willing burden. A. K. M.

Marion Harland's Helping Hand

By Marion Harland

Marion Harland's Helping Hand Corner appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"DO you know of anybody who would be willing to send me views of different cities and states? I am making a collection of city views. Could you or any of the Cornerites help me? I would like to help some shut-ins or invalids by writing them cheery letters, etc., in exchange. Here is a recipe for cleaning carpets, draperies, clothing, etc.: Two and a half bars of white soap, three ounces of soap bark, quarter of a pint of aqua ammonia, half a pound of borax. Shave the soap fine, put over the fire in one and a half quarts of water, and boil until dissolved. Steep the soap bark in one quart of water, for half an hour; add ammonia and one quart of cold water. Mix all together and add water enough to make six gallons of fluid. You will be surprised to see how an application of this will brighten up your rugs and draperies. "M. E. P."

I wish you had said what size you wish the pictures to be, whether or not you desire them uniform in size, photographs, cuttings from papers or magazines, domestic or foreign. Should you desire miscellaneous pictures they can be cut from periodicals of various kinds, or if you would like post cards, every city now has colored and plain views on such cards and these could be supplied to you easily. Please give more details. In the meanwhile I have put your address on file and will give it to all those who apply for it with a view to sending you the pictures you ask for or to the shut-ins who would like to send pictures in exchange for the cheery letters you offer. Thank you for the recipe for the cleaning preparation. I take it for granted that it is used to sponge the carpets or draperies.

Invalid Babies Need a Buggy.

"I come to the Corner for help to find an old book, 'The Planter's Northern Bride,' by Mrs. Caroline Lee Hertz. If any one who reads this can assist me in getting the book I shall be most grateful and willing to repay the favor in any way in my power. I saw in a recent paper the offer of a baby buggy or cart. I have a dear little neighbor who has two invalid babies—she had three until a little while ago—and the only way they have of getting an airing is in a soap box that is nailed to four wheels. I am sure she would be glad to have a cart or buggy. The continued illness in the family, the doctor's bills and drugs, and the necessity for the poor father to be at home from his work so much precludes the possibility of their buying a baby carriage that I am asking for this one without the mother's knowledge. "MRS. R. S. M."

I am sure some one will either be able to send you the book you wish, or tell you where to secure it. I can recollect seeing copies of it myself in southern homes years ago, but it undoubtedly is out of print now. As to the baby carriage, I would be only too glad to give you the address of the kind friend who had offered it had you furnished me with her signature as it appeared appended to her letter. You give no hint, however, by which we can trace her, and all I can do is to print your letter in the hope that some one else may have a baby cart of some sort to give to the little mother of the two invalid babies.

Could Use Small Scraps.

"If any one would send me scraps of embroidery, lace, seaming, or novelty braids, in lengths of two inches or over, also scraps of nice white goods or linen lawn, I would greatly appreciate it. I am fifteen miles from market and in delicate health. I am handy and original with my needle and can make beautiful designs of pieces that others would throw away, so don't think any piece too small to send. I have two little girls for whose dresses I can make yokes of the pieces, combined with hand work, and help to pass the lonely hot days from now until September, when I hope my health will be better. I would like to suggest to those who have fine light woolen goods, laces, or felt hats they wish to dry clean to try magnesia, which can be bought for cleaning purposes, instead of chalk, meal, or starch. I like magnesia much better. MRS. D. D. B."

Thank you for the suggestion. Will not many of our Cornerites send the scraps of which this correspondent can make such charming and unusual service?

Indelible Marks on White Lawn.

"Kindly publish in your Corner a recipe for removing indelible pencil marks from a white lawn dress. "MRS. L. H. S."

Strictly speaking, it should be impossible to remove "indelible" marks from anything. As the word is but a trick of the trade, I advise you to treat the marks with javelle water; leave them alone for five minutes, rinse and dry in the hot sun. In ten minutes repeat the process. A solution of oxalic acid will do the work as well, but there is more risk of weakening the threads, unless you rinse the fabric within ten minutes after wetting it with the acid. Salts of lemon will also extract the stain.

Asks Aid for Needy Clergyman.

"I have been much interested in the offer of a barrel of articles to a minister made in your Corner a while ago, and would like to suggest a minister, J. J. T., who preaches gratuitously. He is very poor, as are his parishioners. Some of them live six and eight in one room and have no nourishment much of the time except black coffee and bread made of flour and water. I will gladly pay freight charges for sending the same. "N. A. P."

I regret that the barrel referred to has already been devoted to other uses, but I print this letter in the hope that there may be some friend inclined to make a thank offering for gospel privileges and home comforts by giving some of the surplus from their own plenty to aid those composing the parish of J. J. T. In that case I will be happy to supply his address.

Wants Magazines.

"I am studying kindergarten work and collect magazines for the pictures they contain. I would appreciate it very much if you would send some of the magazines offered by Mrs. W. F. to my address. MISS M. G."

Unfortunately, the magazines offered by Mrs. W. F. have been given away already, and I print your letter here on the chance that others may see it who can help you along the line you are studying. I note that your home is in a place where you must have many opportunities for work in the fine libraries of the city, and by looking over the files of magazines you may obtain an intelligent idea of which special publications would be of most value to you. I will give your address to any one who can be of service to you in the way of supplying you with periodicals.

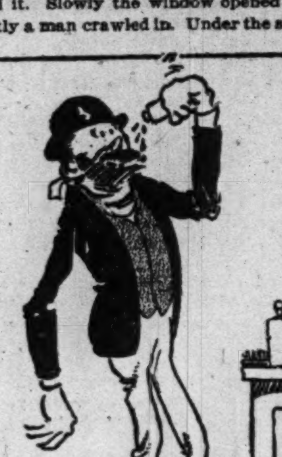
Have You Ever Seen a Burglar?

You probably have had a thrilling or a humorous encounter with a real or imagined burglar. Probably you can remember that time when you awoke to feel the "cold steel of the revolver" pressing against your neck or the time you almost ended the career of Sister Susan, the somnambulist, by a blow of an Indian club which luckily hit the chandelier instead. For every letter either exciting or funny that is published the Tribune will pay $1. Address Editor of the Burglar Contest, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

He Threw a Kiss.

Recently while hiding from my brother my hiding place was on a shelf in his bedroom behind some clothes. At frequent intervals I looked from behind these when I thought I heard something.

Hearing a noise from the direction of the frosted window, I turned my eyes toward it. Slowly the window opened and quietly a man crawled in. Under the shelf a nail gave way and a coat fell down, which he put on, looking at himself in the mirror as he did so.



He went to the clothes closet, saw my brother's old suit, which he evidently thought better than his, and, taking off the coat and his overalls, he put on the suit. He found a pair of shoes and everything he found to wear he took. He also took talcum powder and sprinkled it in his mustache and short whiskers.

He looked right at the clothes I was behind and I shuddered, as I thought he looked right at me, and going out of the window again, he threw a kiss and ran away. F. I. L.

Were Having a Feast.

My grandparents lived in a big, old fashioned house with many rooms. In my grandmother's room there was a row of bells, one bell ringing in each room of the house.

One night she woke up late, startled by the noise of revelry downstairs in the dining room. Terrified, she did not wish to wake grandfather, for fear he would go down and be shot by the intruders, so she placed her hand over the entire row of bells.

Immediately, these most unusual burglars, who had robbed the pantry and wineroom, took flight, startled by the noise. Unfortunately, however, the loud ringing roused my grandfather, and he leaped to his feet and rushed downstairs, firing shots all the way. But the burglars got away.

The next day a feast was found spread on the dining table, and in the alley, behind the house, a felt hat, riddled with bullets. C. B.

Robbed by "Car Barn" Gang.

My first experience with burglars was when I was the owner of a saloon some years ago.

One night, as I was about to close up, four men entered and ordered drinks. As I turned my back two of the men drew revolvers and ordered me to throw up my hands. I had always kept a gun under the counter and made a lunge for it when I heard their command.

However, one of the men saw me, and after he jumped over the counter we started to struggle for possession of the weapon. I grabbed him by the wrist and could see his face turn white as I sank my fingers into his flesh.

A moment later one of the other men hit me on the head with the butt of his revolver. That was all I knew until the next morning, when my wife found me bound and gagged in the rear of the saloon. The cash register was emptied and everything of value was taken.

I heard nothing of the men until some weeks later, when the pictures of the "car barn gang" were printed in the newspapers. I then recognized two of the men; I was a victim of the "car barn gang." W. S. S.

She Chased Him.

A few years ago I was spending the winter with my sister who was living in a southern city, and one night I went back to the kitchen to get a lunch before retiring. In the south the kitchens are built in the rear of the house.

I took a candle and went out, though it was near midnight. While I was enjoying my lunch I heard a noise at the door and looked up to see a big negro looking at me. He must have been a giant, for it looked to me as if he completely filled the door.

Without thinking what I was doing, I grabbed up a large carving knife and my candle and ran straight at him. And the burglar—well he must have thought the whole "Yank" army was after him for he ran, too. I chased him as far as the fence, but he ran too fast for me.

I think it must have been the unexpected which scared him, for I was a small woman and certainly not dangerous, even with my carving knife.

The newspapers announced next day that several homes had been entered. L. R.

A Fight in the Dark.

I slept on a couch in the sitting room. The burglar entered and stole softly up to the library table. While he was on his knees I slipped quietly out of bed and, grabbing father's blackthorn stick, struck him on the head. Then I jumped on his back and beat him furiously.

The burglar screamed and, jumping up, pitched me on to the bed. He then turned on the light, and there stood my brother with a bruised head.

He had come to find a book he wanted to finish before going to bed. He went to bed without the book and declares he is lucky he escaped with his life. M. F.

Sempre Giovine Beautifies

SPRING FLOWERS beautify the world. Sempre Giovine beautifies the skin, and what is more to be desired than a beautiful complexion?

The delicate, sweet-scented oils combined in a dainty cake of Sem-pray harmonize with the cuticle and afford necessary protection from variable weather which comes with the advent of spring.

You Should Use Derma Viva

IF your hands or arms have become brown and dark from wearing short sleeves, if your neck is streaked from wearing a collar, we ask that you purchase one bottle of Derma Viva and note the marvelous results. Apply with a damp sponge and wipe dry. Your skin at once becomes beautifully white, the oily look is gone and the skin is as clear as an infant's. There is positively no powdery look—nothing to show but a clear, white complexion.

Swallowed the Fireworks.

At a celebration in a small Tennessee town on the evening of July 4th, fireworks provided the principal diversion. Skyrockets, firecrackers, and Roman candles were being exploded most promiscuously. A friend of mine stood in an animated group, one member of which was relating a joke. At the proper point my friend gave a loud, appreciative guffaw. At this juncture a Roman candle ball struck him squarely in the mouth, and in his surprise he swallowed it. In addition to being embarrassing, the experience was also very painful and he was in the hospital for several days. H. G. G.

Are You Afraid of Thirteen?

Many people who won't admit that they are superstitious in any other way have a decidedly uneasy feeling when there are thirteen present at the table. Have you this feeling? Would you sit down to a table where thirteen persons were to be present? Have you ever done so, and, if so, what happened?

My aunt recently planned a little luncheon to be given at one of the park pavilions. There were to be just one dozen old friends, but at the last moment an unexpected guest arrived at my aunt's home, and hasty instructions were given the park caterer to arrange another plate at the table.

No one seemed to notice the hoodoo number, at least nothing was said until the guests arose from the table; then some one suggested a toast to "Unlucky 13."

The Little Girl Died.

A gay party of us went to my aunt's country home to celebrate her birthday. When we grownups went to the dining room the children were left in the parlor to await a second table. Upon being seated, some one remarked that there were just twelve of us at the table, whereupon a discussion followed about the old superstition connected with thirteen at the table. My aunt stoutly declared that she was not in the least superstitious, and finally said that in order to prove that she was not, she would bring one of the children to the table. She brought one of the little girl cousins, about 2½ years old—a child in perfect health—but, in less than a month afterwards, the little one was dead. MRS. J. W.

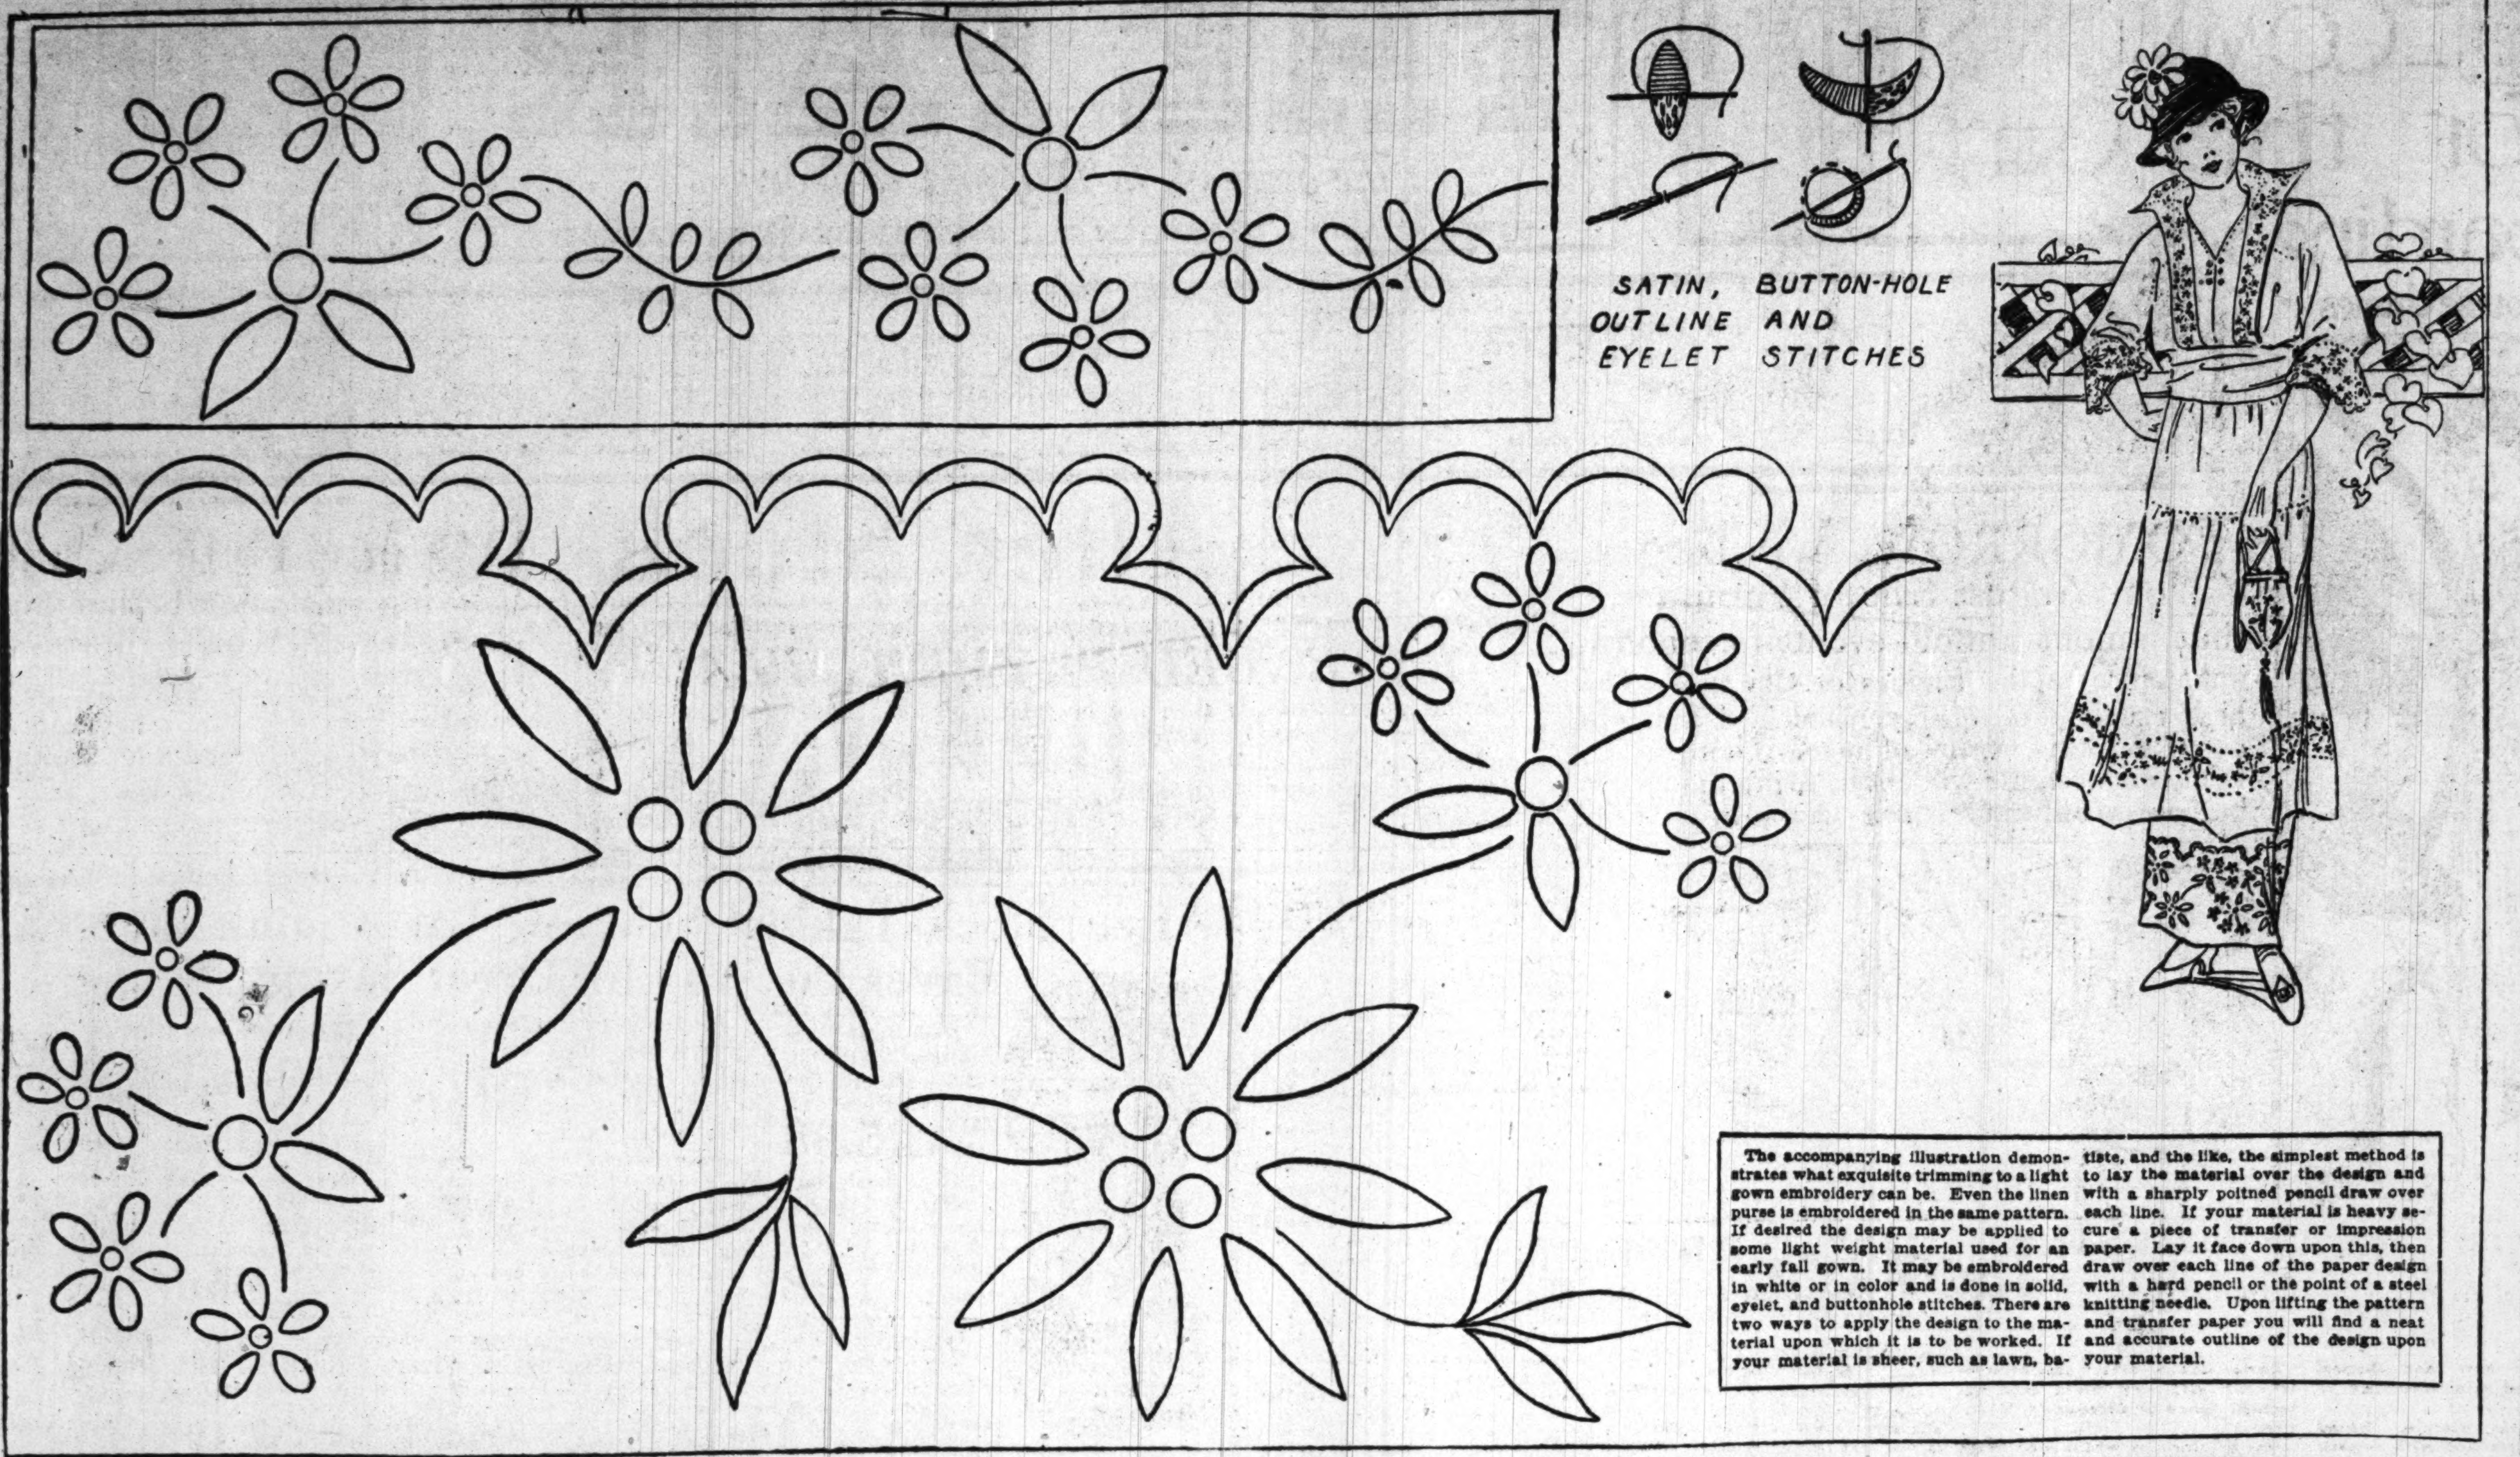
Embroidery Design for Summer Gown.



The accompanying illustration demonstrates what exquisite trimming to a light gown embroidery can be. Even the linen purse is embroidered in the same pattern. If desired the design may be applied to some light weight material used for an early fall gown. It may be embroidered in white or in color and is done in solid, eyelet, and buttonhole stitches. There are two ways to apply the design to the material upon which it is to be worked. If your material is sheer, such as lawn, batiste, and the like, the simplest method is to lay the material over the design and with a sharply poitned pencil draw over each line. If your material is heavy secure a piece of transfer or impression paper. Lay it face down upon this, then draw over each line of the paper design with a hard pencil or the point of a steel knitting needle. Upon lifting the pattern and transfer paper you will find a neat and accurate outline of the design upon your material.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

"DEAR MISS KING: I have noticed that in your business girls' articles you use some slang expressions. One of the girls who works with me commented on the fact that you use the word "boss" for employer and "job" for position. She said she did not approve of them, and when I reminded her that she used the same words herself she answered that she only did so in fun. The office I am in is closely connected with the manufacturing end of our business, and the men from the shop have to come in to our office many times a day to consult the manager, and I hear so many shop expressions that I find myself using them all the time, even when talking to the men. I have often wondered whether they think it is unladylike.

"What is your opinion of the use of slang in general N. M."

I do use the words "job" and "boss," and while they are really slang expressions they are so commonly used in offices and shops that they seem to have become a part of a business person's vocabulary and could almost be called work expressions. The fact that a word is slang does not necessarily condemn it, as there are many words that are called slangy that through usage are a part of our language, and these same words can be found in the dictionary.

DEAN CORNWELL

The cleverest woman I know holds a big, executive position. She always used beautiful English, with just enough pithy expressions to make her conversation almost brilliant. While waiting outside her office one day I heard her talking to one of the men of the firm and I feared for a moment that my ears were playing a trick on me when I heard her say: "I'll have to sit on that man hard or he will try to bully me. He is always trying to put something over on me."

Necessary to Be on Guard.

Imagine my feelings at hearing my friend with the wonderful vocabulary using expressions like these. When I finally had a chance to speak to her I told her the shock she had given me and repeated her remarks. She told me that she never noticed that she used slang to that extent, but admitted that she was not greatly surprised at herself as she heard nothing else from the men in the office.

"I really don't try to avoid using these expressions, which I call 'short cuts,' when talking business to the men," she said, "but I did not realize that I used so many of them, until you repeated what I had just said. I have so much to do in a day that my one idea is to save time, and that is why I adopt the 'short cuts' the men use, and I have been guilty of using the men's names without a prefix when speaking to them. I am rather ashamed of myself for doing this, and try to convince myself that it is businesslike."

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. She will answer letters, either through this department or by personal reply. No want will be too small—no difficulty too great for her to consider. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

It is undoubtedly true that business girls are more apt to use slang than other girls. There are so many shop expressions used by men in offices and shops, and the business girl gets so accustomed to them and understands their meaning so well that she never thinks of them as being slangy, and unconsciously she uses them when she is talking to business people in the office.

It is probably only because of its brevity that office slang is tolerated as it is, and this really is a point in its favor. When a busy employer tells his stenographer to "kill" a letter he has just dictated he doesn't have to go into a long explanation, and she doesn't have to ask a question. She doesn't even smile over his funny remark, but just simply does as she is told and "kills" the letter.

Of course, there is always danger of these work expressions creeping into a person's conversation outside of the office, and one has to try hard to avoid using them.

While it may be permissible to use office slang to a certain extent, business girls have to guard against unconsciously picking up the more common slang expressions that men in offices are apt to use. Men are naturally more given to slang than women, and they are usually more careless in their speech at the office than at home.

I am not arguing in favor of slang, but I do believe it is not such a reprehensible thing to use work expressions in moderation.

My little cousin, Mary, aged 5, had a visitor from across the street, a little playmate. They decided to play something. Mary wanted to play tag and the visitor, Lucy, wanted to play house.

Mary was silent for a moment, and then said, "Lucy, let's go over to your house." M. G.

John is Arthur's older brother, but not at all the more studious of the boys. An unusually poor report card from John caused his mother to say: "Why, John, if you don't do better Arthur will get ahead of you. Arthur, if you do beat your big brother I'll give you a hundred dollars." Quick as a flash Arthur turned to John with the remark: "Flunk, John, and I'll split with you." D. C. F.

Our little boy developed such an appetite over chicken the other day that I finally had to stop him. A guest at the table said: "That's all right, sonny, that'll make you grow." "Yes," he said, "and maybe I'll grow so fast that I'll be 6 before my birthday comes. W. W. E.

Little Laura, aged 4 years, has brilliant red hair and is teased quite often by being called "pink headed." She was asked one day what her mother put on her hair to make it so pink, to which she promptly replied, "She don't put anything on mine, but she does on hers."

My small son was being given a lesson in table manners. After dwelling at some length upon the importance of saying "please," "thank you," and "excuse me," when ocasion required, I quit drilling and began to question him.

"Now, Fred," I asked, "can you tell me when to say 'excuse me' at table?"

"Yes," said Fred promptly, "when we have company."

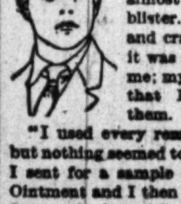
SKIN TROUBLE ON HANDS AND FEET

Similar to Ringworm. Tiny Clear Blisters. Skin Rough and Cracked Open. Could Scarcely Use Hands. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Completely Rid of Trouble.

Cassville, Mo.—"My hands and feet were affected with a trouble similar to ringworm for a number of years. It first appeared as tiny clear blisters and in places the blisters were so close together that they almost formed one large blister. The skin was rough and cracked open. At times it was so bad that it disabled me; my hands became so sore that I could scarcely use them.



"I used every remedy that I could find but nothing seemed to do any good. Finally I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I then got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment which completely rid me of the trouble." (Signed) Ray Bryant, Mar. 14, 1914.

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting skin and hair health. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

SMARTEST STYLES AT COMMON SENSE PRICES

For the Girl at Boarding School and College

Edited by Louise James

by Louise James

One of the new hat shapes, broad brimmed and becoming to young girl.

Upper figure — Simple, broad brimmed hat trimmed with wreath of flowers.

Lower figure—Street suit of stylish cut with new plaid cape attached. Cape is detachable if desired.

Hat of black or white satin with feathery trimmings coiled about the crown.

Party frock for young girl. Skirt has the new modish yoke and the lower part plaited and full. Bodice may be striped or plain, according to individual taste.

One of the popular, Russian blouse dresses for school wear.

AUGUST is none too early for the thoughtful parent or guardian to make out a list of the necessary articles for the girl who is leaving home in the fall for boarding school or college. For the girl must have clothes that she has never had before, a sufficient number of them, too, to last her at any rate until Christmas, when she can return home to have her wardrobe added to and improved upon.

Perhaps one of the most important items to be considered in this matter of the school outfit is that it shall be conventionally correct. I do not mean by this that every garment should be the last word in fashions or that any undue stress should be laid upon sartorial novelties that are expensive in price and fleeting in popularity, but I do mean that the young girl's clothes should be sufficiently up to date that they will not count against her when she first plunges into the new world of which she knows so little and has so much to learn.

For there is nothing more pathetic than the case of the young girl, dressed bizarrely, to put it mildly, by a mother who has plenty of money to spend, but who insists on improving on current styles by individual styles of her own. Not that current styles can't be improved on, true enough, but the young girl is not the one on whom the reformation should be attempted. Everything about the young girl's wardrobe should be the apex of simplicity and of conventionality. For there is no crowd of feminine beings in the world more critical or more intolerant of oddities of manners or of dressing than the school girl.

The clothes list is apt to be a long one, for, if at all adequate, it should contain not only all the needed undergarments for our swift and frequent changes of weather but dresses for school hours, for dress functions, and for all out of doors occasions.

The first and most important factor in the wardrobe is the suit. What material it is to be depends, of course, on the particular climate of the college or boarding school to be attended. In these days of almost universal overheating indoors it is wise that the coat should be extremely warm and that the house dresses should be comparatively light.

Now that the cape suit is modish there is nothing more desirable for the school girl, for it can be made to fill a number of needs. For instance, the cape can be made a removable affair and worn with or without the suit. With a warm underjacket it can be drawn into evening use for the reception, the dance, the dinner, or the sociable. While many of these capes are of striking plaided materials, if one desires the cape for any but the most casual wear it is wisest to have it of a dark and plain goods with the brilliant coloring brought into play in the lining rather than on the outside.

The blouses to go with the suit should preferably be of washable materials. One or two colored blouses are indispensable for the time when the laundress has failed or the demands on the light waists have been too great. Cheap silk does not pay if any amount of wear is to be expected from it. Neither does trimming of any but the simplest kind prove sensible. The wear that a young girl gives her clothes when she is removed from the careful surveillance of an older woman who is ready to see that the laundry is not too hard on them and to catch up quickly the first rips and attend to the first signs of depletion is beyond belief almost. For that reason absolute simplicity in blouses especially is most desirable.

The styles in these same blouses have changed a bit radically the last few weeks. The excessively drooping, voluminous affair with the floppy sleeves and full fronts and backs has gone from our midst. Not nearly so much material is used and the basque effect is everywhere seen. Though the basque style is perhaps extreme for the school girl, her blouses should be much snugger fitting than heretofore if the mother does not wish her to come home in a few months and insist that her clothes are "just hopelessly out of style." The sleeves of the blouse may be either long or short.

Then the one piece frock is always a substantial and needed background for every wardrobe. It may be of any light material from serge to corduroy, this last being about as heavy as any goods can possibly be and still retain its desirability. As for the crash and eponge goods they are even more suitable in a way for the winter school days than they have been for the hot mid-summer. They are materials that contain a good deal of warmth and as such they have been found by many to be actually uncomfortable in the warm weather.

White skirts are something which the school girl will find to be an inestimable comfort during the winter months as well as during the fall and spring seasons. If she has a number left over from the summer's wear she should not fail to take them with her. She will find dozens of different occasions in which she can bring them into play—all the little functions given in the hall or boarding house where she lives when she does not want to put on one of her pretty evening dresses and yet she wants something besides the dark costume that she has worn during her work hours. With a white skirt and a pretty sheer white waist she is dressed for any occasion which is not along a formal or semi-formal line. And as there are more of these impromptu occasions than of the other variety the school girl will probably find at the end of a season that she has worn her mid-dressy clothes almost as much as she has her every day ones and infinitely more than her dressy ones.

The party frocks may be quite as simple as the rest of the wardrobe, but if the goods is dainty and the color becoming the effect will be quite as pleasing as that which will perhaps be produced in later years when much more money has been spent on the gowns to be worn. Net is a pretty material. So are the soft silks and the poplins. Velvets, satins, and the brocaded goods should be avoided, however, being too dressy and too grown-up for school girls' wear.

As for the styles they are to be in many ways decidedly different from those that have gone before. In the first place the waists are, as I mentioned before, to be semi-fitted. In many cases they are to button far down the front below the waistline and cling closely about the hips. The double crossing surplice effect is popular now and on evening gowns it is particularly girlish and pleasing. On the evening gown this surplice should cross higher in the front than in the back.

As for the skirt there are several changes much in evidence. A short time ago draped hips were everywhere seen. Now the tight fitting yoke covering the hips smoothly has appeared. One pretty girlish idea is to have the dress made with the fitted hip yoke and then to have the suspended girdle effect crossing the shoulders in the same way that was fashionable about three years ago.

JANE BARTON The Home Dressmaker

THAT the basque dress is here with a vengeance there is no denying; how long it will remain there is, equally, no guessing. For the present vogue many will want to make this new style costume, so I shall try to tell you how it can be done most practically and economically.

First let me say a word on becomingness. This reversal to the style of 1880 should only be for the slender. If you want to see the caricature it makes of the woman with hips or stomach, spend half an hour in the dress department of one of the stores. It is also too lanky for the thin. If you have a good figure results will be good.

Again, do not make up too many garments along these lines. I believe in being forehanded in everything but in dresses. This past summer is, perhaps, as never before, a lesson in not stocking up in clothes. Since April there have been three distinct styles and by the Fourth the flounced frocks you made early in the spring looked passé.

For the first dresses needed for the early cool days or even in the hot months for the mountains the basque is a good choice. It looks well developed in satin, taffeta, the light serges, and some of the heavy crêpes, especially the Japanese crêpe, such as is used for children's clothes. As this material is not expensive, it would not be a bad plan to make up your first basque in it. Choose one of the dull blues, purples, or any suitable shade for street wear in the early fall. Taffeta seems to lend itself particularly well to the semi-fitted lines and any of the lighter weight silk and wool mixtures would be suitable or even the challis in dark street tones.

There are several ways of achieving the basque effect—Lily Langtry dresses they were called when last in—and there was also a hint of them in the moyen age modes. The backs may be of the French variety with two side seams and under arm pieces—sometimes with a middle seam down the back and the front can have one dart, or the basque may be cut in a back section—shaped slightly at the waist, a back under arm section and two front sections on each side.

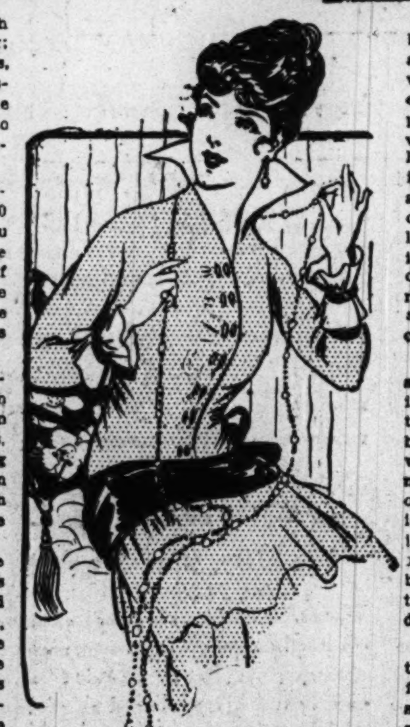
Much easier, therefore more practical in the making, is the straight fitted in back with wrinkled front or both sides of the under arm can be wrinkled. This model has but three pieces, the back and two front.

The kimono sleeve is naturally out of the question and the neat fitting set in sleeve almost invariably comes to the wrist, where it is sometimes plain and stitched, but more often ends in a turned back cuff. I shall tell of two treatments of the sleeve, as it may either be attached to the lining or to the over blouse.

So far, the neck is open in a shallow V with a flaring collar, though with a serge dress the fronts can be buttoned tight to the throat with a military collar. As we are all used to the slightly bare throat, I should not advise such a choice for a gown that is to be worn at once.

Buttons are a sine qua non of the new

The new basque differs from the old one in that there is no elaborate boning. None is used, though the lining often has a boned or stiffened girdle. It is essential to keep the lines straight.



One of the newest basques, cut along the most modish lines and yet so simple withal that no home dressmaker need be afraid to attempt it.

The frock was in two pieces, the basque and tunic section being detachable. For the foundation use a thin white china silk for the blouse. This ends at the normal waistline, is cut plain with little if any fullness at the waistline. Take care, however, that this lining does not span over the bust. It is much simpler to have a few gathers at the belt than to be cramped over the chest. The satin skirt is joined to the lining by means of a two and a half inch boned belt. Turn in the top edge of the skirt, which may have slight fullness or can be laid in tiny plaits occasionally, and stitch tight to the lining, close to the edge.

The blouse lining has the long black satin sleeves set in them. The arm hole is cut just big enough not to span and the sleeve which ends at the wrist may be a one or two piece pattern set in without fullness. If you wish cuffs make narrow ones of the white satin about one and three-fourths inches deep finished. Notch the seams to prevent drawing—also notch the under arm seams of both bodice and lining—and bind with bias folds of the china silk. Hook down the front, which is faced back to the depth of an inch on each side.

The neck is cut high to the base of the throat in the back and in a shallow V in front, and to it is joined any becoming shape of the new flaring collars in white satin. These are cut of double thicknesses and the boning is put in between the layers. Try on carefully and see just where the curve should come, and catstitch the boning to the inner side so the stitches do not show.

From the shoulder seams of the lining attach two loose strips of white satin an inch and a half or two inches wide and long enough to cross on the bust line and hook. This makes a charming surplice vest to fill in the plain V opening of the overdress.

This basque and tunic are joined together on the hip line or an inch below, as is becoming. It is easy to tell before cutting off the basque just where the tunic should be attached. The basque is simplicity itself to make, as it is cut in but three pieces, a back and two fronts, and is cut long enough to wrinkle slightly at the under arm seams and down the front, closing between the buttons. The model I'm describing has just a suspicion of fullness. If your pattern has too much when joined, rip, spread the gathers, and cut off the surplus at the bottom when the basque is fitted.

The armholes are cut just large enough to slip easily over the lining and fit close to the sleeve. If there is danger of slipping back, a few tiny clamp fasteners will remedy it. Face back these armholes with bias strips of the satin an inch and a quarter wide. For the satin, hem this facing with invisible stitches; for serges it may be stitched on the machine.

The neck fits close to the throat at the back and is cut in a shallow V ending at the bust line. It is faced back with a bias strip of satin to match the sleeves. The fronts are also faced in the same way and may be hooked or have buttonholes worked in the right hand side. It will take fourteen buttons from the neck to the joining of the tunic, and a good effect is had by sewing eight or ten more buttons down the center of the foundation skirt in a line with those on the blouse. They are smart in bullet buttons of the black satin.

The tunic should flare at the bottom and is open in the front its entire length. The edges may be faced or hemmed back to the depth of an inch and a half; the bottom should have a two or two and a half inch hem. The top is gathered or laid in small plaits; the edges are turned toward the blouse, which is set on top of it.

Cover the joining with a sash of the satin six inches wide and long enough to go round the waist and tie in a bow with short ends, or it can be crossed at the back, brought to the front, and simply turned over in stole ends. Finish the long edges in a narrow hem and the ends, which may be squared or bias, should have a two inch hem.

Jane Barton's Answers to Sewing Queries.

MRS. D. M. J.: I am sorry that none of the combinations you suggest for your French blue frock sound good to me. It is a color that must be carefully treated. The lighter blue with it is weak; so is the tone of violet gray, while the pink and red combinations are actually bad as they make the blue crude. You should get harmonious effects from white, black, several of the new yellow shades, certain tones of violet, and some of the warm brown tints. Green is exceedingly difficult to combine with French blue, though some of the gray greens can be used.

ESTELLE P.: As you start on your trip so early in September and you may have much hot weather en route, I should not advise getting your new winter suit so early. Surely your tailored spring suit of serge is fit to wear. Crossing the plains is hard on clothes. Send your suit to a cleaner and you will be surprised how well it looks. If you postpone buying your winter suit you can afford a three quarter coat of light wool which is indispensable, especially as you expect to come home by the Canadian Rockies. One of the tweed Balmaccan coats will give good service and can be made at home for $5 or $6. You will need besides a one piece frock of soft crêpe or voile that takes up little room in a suitcase and does not crush easily. This should be dressy enough for dinner at hotels. A blouse the color of your suit and three white ones and a sweater will be about all you need as you are to travel so hard. If you have a silk suit or a dark foulard you might take it with you for wearing sightseeing on hot days. It will save your suit if you have a one piece gown of dark blue cotton voile to wear in the cars. Have a sweater, tight—for driving or the rear platform of the cars—a pair of heavy high shoes and a long automobile scarf. All these things if made of noncrushable materials should pack easily in a suitcase.

ECONOMICAL: You can cover your silk umbrella, but I should not advise it, as it is fussy work and takes up too much time for a woman who works as hard as you do. There is a very light waterproof silk that folds very close, does not cut, and gives fine service. I much prefer it to the heavier silks. As your handle is good but some of the ribs are broken get one of the folding frames that can be fastened to your silver handle. These cost, I think, about a dollar. Make sure, however, of the dimensions of your suitcase. Sometimes the ferrule may have to be cut off. As you travel so much this umbrella will save you the price of the frame in checking.

RUTH P.: I can sympathize with you in your skirt hanging difficulties. What you need is a dress form. Every woman who does her own sewing should make every sacrifice to own one. There are a number of good ones on the market, the prices ranging from $10 to $25. Examine a variety of makes before deciding what best suits your needs. The adjustable forms are better, as they not only can be used for you, but for the different members of the family. The rubber dress forms that can be blown up to suit any lining are excellent, but you must be careful never to stick a pin in them. There are also a number of good adjustable forms in nonrustable wire.

K. R. X. G.: The flowered material should make a pretty house gown for your school girl. You should be able to get it out of the five yards, as the one line of flowers runs up and the other down. With the flowers all running in the same way, one position will have to be chosen and this takes more goods. Generally, the stems of the flowers run downwards.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER.
AUGUST 2, 1914. VII.

Pity, God, O give us Peace!

By CHARLES J. M'GUIRK.

The world's a-tremble with the tread
  Of millions of her fighting men,
The bodies of the shriveled dead
  Pass into common clay again.

And at their doors the women stand
  With starving babes at shrunken breast,
And wail their mourning of the band
  That perished in the war god's quest.

O God, Thy people cry to Thee,
  Who know'st all the fruits of war.
Wilt Thou not hear? Wilt thou not see?
  Or is there punishment in store?

Lord God, Thy splendor shines again
  Magnificent with earth's surcease;
Grant mercy on Thy children then,
  And pity, God, O give us Peace!

Is This the End of the World, as Prophesied by St. John?

IS a universal conflagration in Europe—a conflict between the triple alliance and the triple entente—to be the fulfillment of the prophecy of St. John the Divine?

Is this threatened cataclysm the vision of the end of things that came to St. John in his lonely retreat on the wild isle of Patmos, and which he put down so vividly in the Apocalypse?

Does the cryptic "seven," in its conjunction with other symbols, like "kings" and "vials" and "seven heads," in Revelation, refer to the belligerent nations, Austria, Germany, Italy, Russia, Servia, France, and Great Britain?

Will this be the end of the world, as foretold by St. John?

OR—

Is this merely one of the great international conflicts, one of the historical events of tremendous economic and social importance, which Mme. Thebes, the famous seeress of Paris, declared would come to pass in 1914?

The end of the world with just such a horrible preface as is now being written in Europe has been prophesied over and over again by saints, soothsayers, sages, sibyls, and even modern foretellers of events.

The most notable of all the prophecies is that of St. John the Divine, and which is recorded in those abtruse and epic sentences of Revelation.

A part of his augurs are:

And there are seven kings: five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he must continue a short space.

And the beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seventh, and goeth into perdition.

And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast.

Those have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast.

These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.

. . . .

And after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having greater power; and the earth was lightened with his glory.

And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit ,and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.

And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God;

That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great.

And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army.

And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshiped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone.

And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand.

And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years,

And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season.

And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshiped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection.

Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years.

And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison,

And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.

And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city; and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.

And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.

And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to his works.

And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death.

And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them.

And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him:

And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads.

And there shall be no night there; and they shall need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever.

And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not.

And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven,

And sware to him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer.

Mme. Thebes warned the United States not to send wheat and corn to Europe during 1914, because there would be strife in Europe and all the products there would be needed for home consumption. It was taken that she meant that the United States could not rely upon Russia and other European wheat producing countries to furnish wheat.

"France will be drawn into war," she said in characteristic laconicisms. "An era of love, peace, great hopes, and great labors will date from the end of 1914. But first the waves must be tinted with blood, and water and fire must combat in subterranean forces. Signs will appear in the sky. French troops will rush to the frontier. The German emperor will come to Paris, but not as a king!"

Mme. Thebes predicted the great bazaar fire in Paris, the San Francisco earthquake, the Balkan wars, the death of King George of Greece, and the assassination of several monarchs and of President Faure of France.

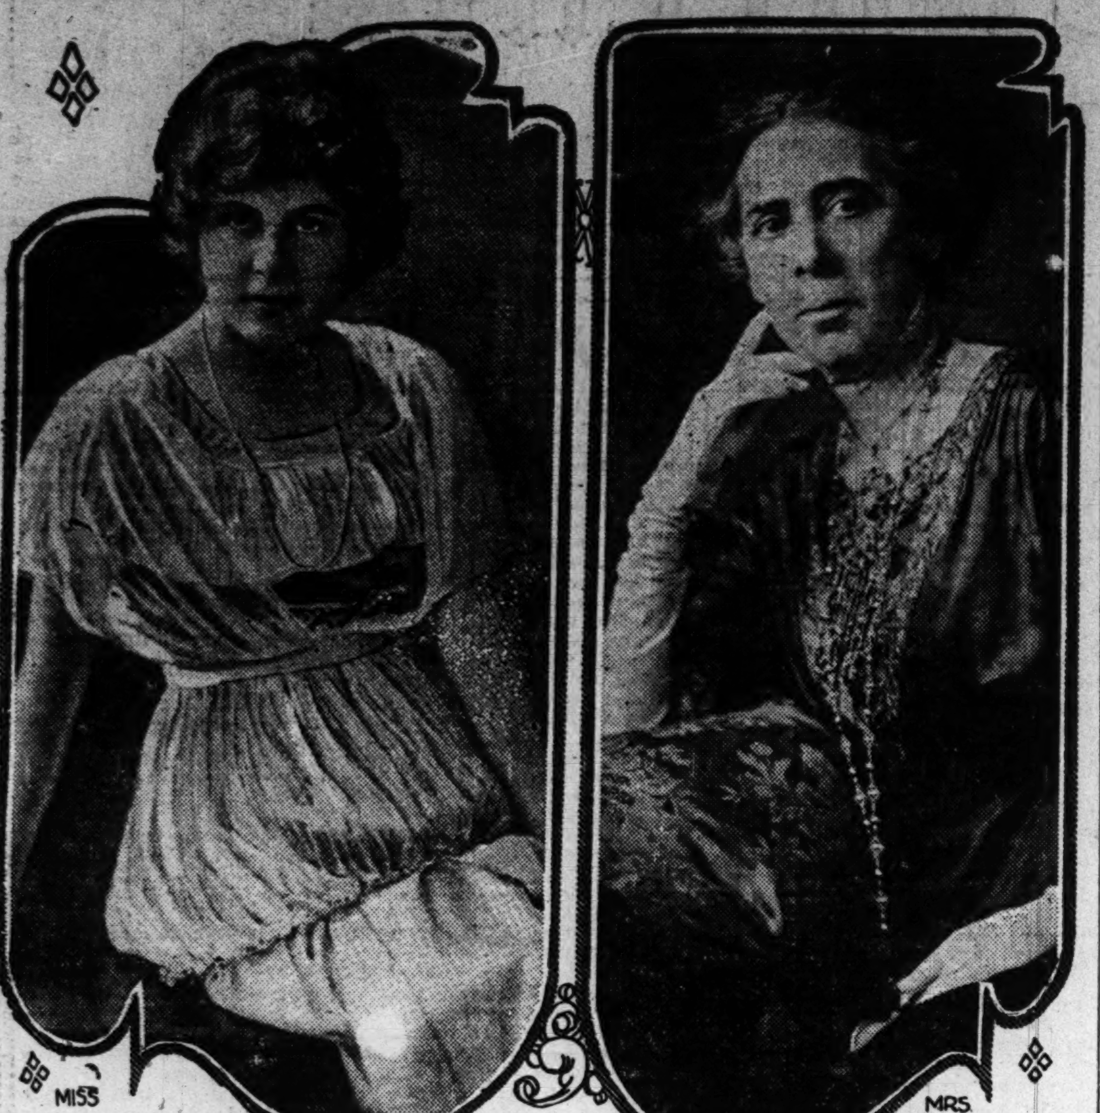
WASHINGTON SOCIETY By Mme. Z.



MISS GENEVIEVE CLARK

MRS. CHAMP CLARK

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.] — About the most notable events, socially, of these breathless midsummer days, are the speaker's luncheons, given one or twice a week in his private dining room at the capitol. They are not stag parties—not by a long shot—and, since society has awakened to the fact that he is giving them invitations are greatly in demand.

Either Mrs. Clark or Miss Genevieve is always there to play hostess; sometimes both if they are both in town, and perhaps twenty guests. They are, however, distinctly the speaker's parties. He makes up his own guest list—and if it's sometimes a trifle mixed—well, people who don't like mixed company had better not go to the Clarks', either in their home or at the capitol. They have a catholic taste in friends, know all sorts of people, and do not hesitate to entertain all sorts. They have rather a scorn for society, of the capitalized sort, though they are willing to admit there are some good people in it. Consequently it has rather amused the onlookers to realize that some who regard themselves as shining lights in that same capitalized society have gone out of their way to get asked to the speaker's luncheons.

Mrs. Clark, whenever she is in town, observes her "Wednesdays" just the same as in winter, and there are usually ten or a dozen callers, many of them either making "party"—luncheon party—calls, or diplomatically fishing for a bid to one of these affairs.

The Clark family—Mr. and Mrs. and Genevieve—were rather the star guests at a picnic of the Missouri society a few days ago, and if there were any there who enjoyed the supper eaten on the rocks of Great Falls more than the speaker's family appearances are deceptive.

On Friday of last week Mrs. Clark went up to Wildwood, N. J., to spend the week end—"and then some"—with Representative and Mrs. K. Thompson Baker of that state and incidentally to begin preparations for a sort of fairy pageant, "The Isle of Wishes," which she has written and which is to be produced there in September, for the benefit of a local charity. While it is announced officially as a fairy pageant, those of her friends who are "in the know" smile a bit at that designation, and there is more than a suspicion that it is really something in the nature of a political satire, and that those who have eyes to see will recognize some old friends in the characters. Requests for permission to produce it have come from Milwaukee and from Hayward, Cal. And Washington is wondering whether it is not to have a chance to compare Mrs. Clark's effort with Mrs. Burleson's in the same line.

Genevieve meanwhile is at Deal Beach having the time of her life, as she always does. She's a wonder! She knows everybody—and, without being in the least a fool, she seems to find something to like in everybody. And she is apparently having just as good a time with the older generation as with girls and boys of her own age, and is as much in demand with the one as with the other. This was her first real season. A year ago she graduated from school, and while her mother always had said she would have no formal début, as there was no earthly sense in bringing a girl out who had never been in (which was true of Genevieve, for she had gone anywhere she felt like going for several years) she did have a delightfully informal début on New Year's day; to which there were no cards, but it was given out that everybody whom the Clarks knew were invited. And everybody came—just like that!

One of the girls who as a house guest at the time assisted at that function was Dorothy Harvey, daughter of Col. George Harvey, former editor of Harper's Weekly, whom Genevieve is visiting at Deal Beach. Dorothy is to be married on the 12th, and Genevieve is to be her maid of honor. Details are lacking beyond that it is to be a pink wedding. "Pink's my color," said the prospective maid of honor, "and it's Dorothy's, too. A pink bride would be a bit unconventional, but there is no reason why her attendants shouldn't give her a nice, rosy background. And I suppose I shall add to my collection of thimbles."

It has gotten to be a standing joke among her friends that Genevieve Clark, who has been more in demand as bridesmaid or maid of honor than any girl in Washington, always draws the thimble or the wishbone, equally certain prophets of prospective spinsterhood. Add to that the old adage, "thrice a bridesmaid, never a bride," and it would seem that the speaker's lovely daughter—and she is lovely, a blooming rose of a girl—was doomed. But Genevieve flouts the Fates. When any one tries to tease her she answers gayly, "Seven times a bridesmaid breaks the hoodoo, so I should worry!" And if that is true she certainly is likely to shatter the hoodoo to smithereens.

The president now frankly admits he would like to seek the seclusion of his summer home. Washington has been breathlessly hot this last two weeks and the president's office is as hot as any place in town. The nice refrigerating plant, installed in Taft's time, doesn't work to advantage, because it requires that the windows be closed and the hot outside air kept out. And President Wilson is a crank about having his windows open. And the nice little tent which was put up on the lawn on the theory that it would be so cool for him to work in, has been abandoned. It proved a veritable fiery furnace. So his thoughts are turning yearningly to the New Hampshire mountains, and the big house at Cornish that is waiting for the family that doesn't come. But he can't refuse to take his own medicine. Since he's keeping congress here he stays too. And Mrs. Wilson has stayed on long after she meant to go, largely because she dreads the long tiresome trip, in her present health.

Meantime Miss Wilson is visiting at Pocono Hills, Pa., winning honors as a tennis champion and singing in the village church. She is taking part this evening in a concert given by the summer visitors for the benefit of Trinity church at Pocono Hills.

Miss Wilson, by the way, has a double in Washington. One day last week, when the White House said she was visiting at Pocono—and she certainly had been there the night before singing in the village church, and equally certainly was there a day or two later, taking part in tennis matches—there was a shopper in one of the department stores who was the living image of Miss Margaret Wilson and wore the sort of clothes Miss Wilson usually affects. One of the local society writers, who certainly has seen Miss Wilson frequently enough to know her, was perfectly sure it was the president's daughter who rode down in the elevator with her, and several people in the car evidently shared the delusion. But it wasn't. And now the question is, Who was it?

Prize Fight No Place for a Lady, Says Mme. Y.

LONDON, England.—[Special Correspondence.]—Two fights were scheduled for last evening in London—one between Mrs. Pankhurst and the police and the other between a Frenchman and an American. I chose the latter and lost. That is, any one with an atom of sporting blood in her would say I lost. At least, the only fight was at the suffrage meeting. Some few passes were made at my show, but an American got hissed off the boards. Everybody I saw seemed to blame me for it, and the whole thing was over in about ten minutes after the start. The audience was a symposium of the nations, and all the nationalities said to me, "See there, what you Americans do," until I felt that I too quite regularly hit people when they were down, and almost admitted it to be a national practice.

A rumor got abroad that our very best people in Europe go to prize fights, and for that reason I thought I had better go and look the audience over. There were a few elegant looking ladies there, but the man who took me home, and who, by the way, is the only real patrician I have seen in London, said that no one he knew was there.

This throws me on on the secondary resource of writing about women and fights in general. I myself think the encounter at which I was not present was much classier. Sport for sport's sake is difficult for one of practical mind to appreciate, with all the real impressive fighting there is to be done in the world. Of course, you know about how Mrs. Pankhurst was released from prison and was carried on a stretcher toward an assembly hall, only to be arrested before she reached the great throng gathered there to hear her. At this, people broke windows in the meeting place, pelted suffragists, and were in turn pelted by them, until something resembling war resulted over the matter of whether women should have the vote.

At the other place of encounter automobiles blocked the streets for four blocks. Parties in evening dress drove up as if for the opera except for the excitement which took the place of the intensely bored look of men being led to an evening of music. Here and there a woman, elegantly costumed in rich velvet wrappings, made one of the party, and many frowsy looking girls came on buses with carelessly clad young men. It took my taxicab thirty minutes to get out of the vicinity of the prize fight and an hour and ten minutes to get to the door. A man had suggested calling for me, but as was writing about the event I said for him not to bother about me, and I repented making any such unselfish, self-denying statement. For once I was good and embarrassed.

Women are still in that state of subjection where it is though immensely funny if not improper for them to attend a prize fight. I was pointed out on all sides as a rare specimen, until a dash of rain fell on my hand and I hastily ordered the top raised. When I got in it seemed that about 1,000 men asked me, in a perfectly decorous, searching-after-the-truth spirit, what I thought of the sport. I told them that I didn't think much of it, and that seemed to be the proper reply.

Women may fight for education, as they did a century ago, and not lose the ultimate esteem of men. They may fight for their civic, industrial, and political rights without being more than temporarily under the ban of man's disapproval. But they cannot view the processes of a fist to fist encounter without permanently suffering in the opinion of men—at least they cannot do so for a century or two. Not even Lady Diana Manners could make it all right in the eyes of English masculinity. That is the deduction I brought from the fray, and in lieu of a description of costumes I offer it.

After Gunboat Smith inadvertently had struck a foul, which suddenly ended the match, and the enormous crowd was pushing toward the exit, a rosy cheeked young girl sang out to her man companion, "I can't tell you how furious I am to be done out of the rest of that fine fight." She did not make a hit. Men turned their eyes to one another and indicated their absence of sympathy. The only women who had any right to be there looked deeply pained over the proceedings. These were the wives, daughters, sisters, sweethearts, etc., of the contestants. They hurried in, each with the man who belonged to her, let their evening coats slide from their arms, and took an inconspicuous place near the arena. When the preliminary boxing ended with a knockout blow to a big man, a woman leaped out of the crowd and anxiously watched beside him until he slowly opened his eyes. When he could stagger to his feet and slide under the platform railing, she went beside him. Without cheers or encouragement or notice they faded into the crowd together. He seemed glad to have her and it was on her shoulder he leaned more heavily than on his seconds. He had played for pretty high stakes and a critical audience's approval; but, having lost, he was glad to lean on his woman's arm and sap up her silent sympathy.

No one can hazard an asseveration as to when the boundaries of woman's sphere will finally fall, but as yet they lie outside the arena, where she may wait for the victors and the vanquished and administer appropriate words of congratulation and defeat. Until recently that is where women have stood with relation to life. Having progressed into its storm centers amid the protests of men, there is only one circumstance that makes me think they will not make similar progress into prize fights, and that is that they will not wish to do so.

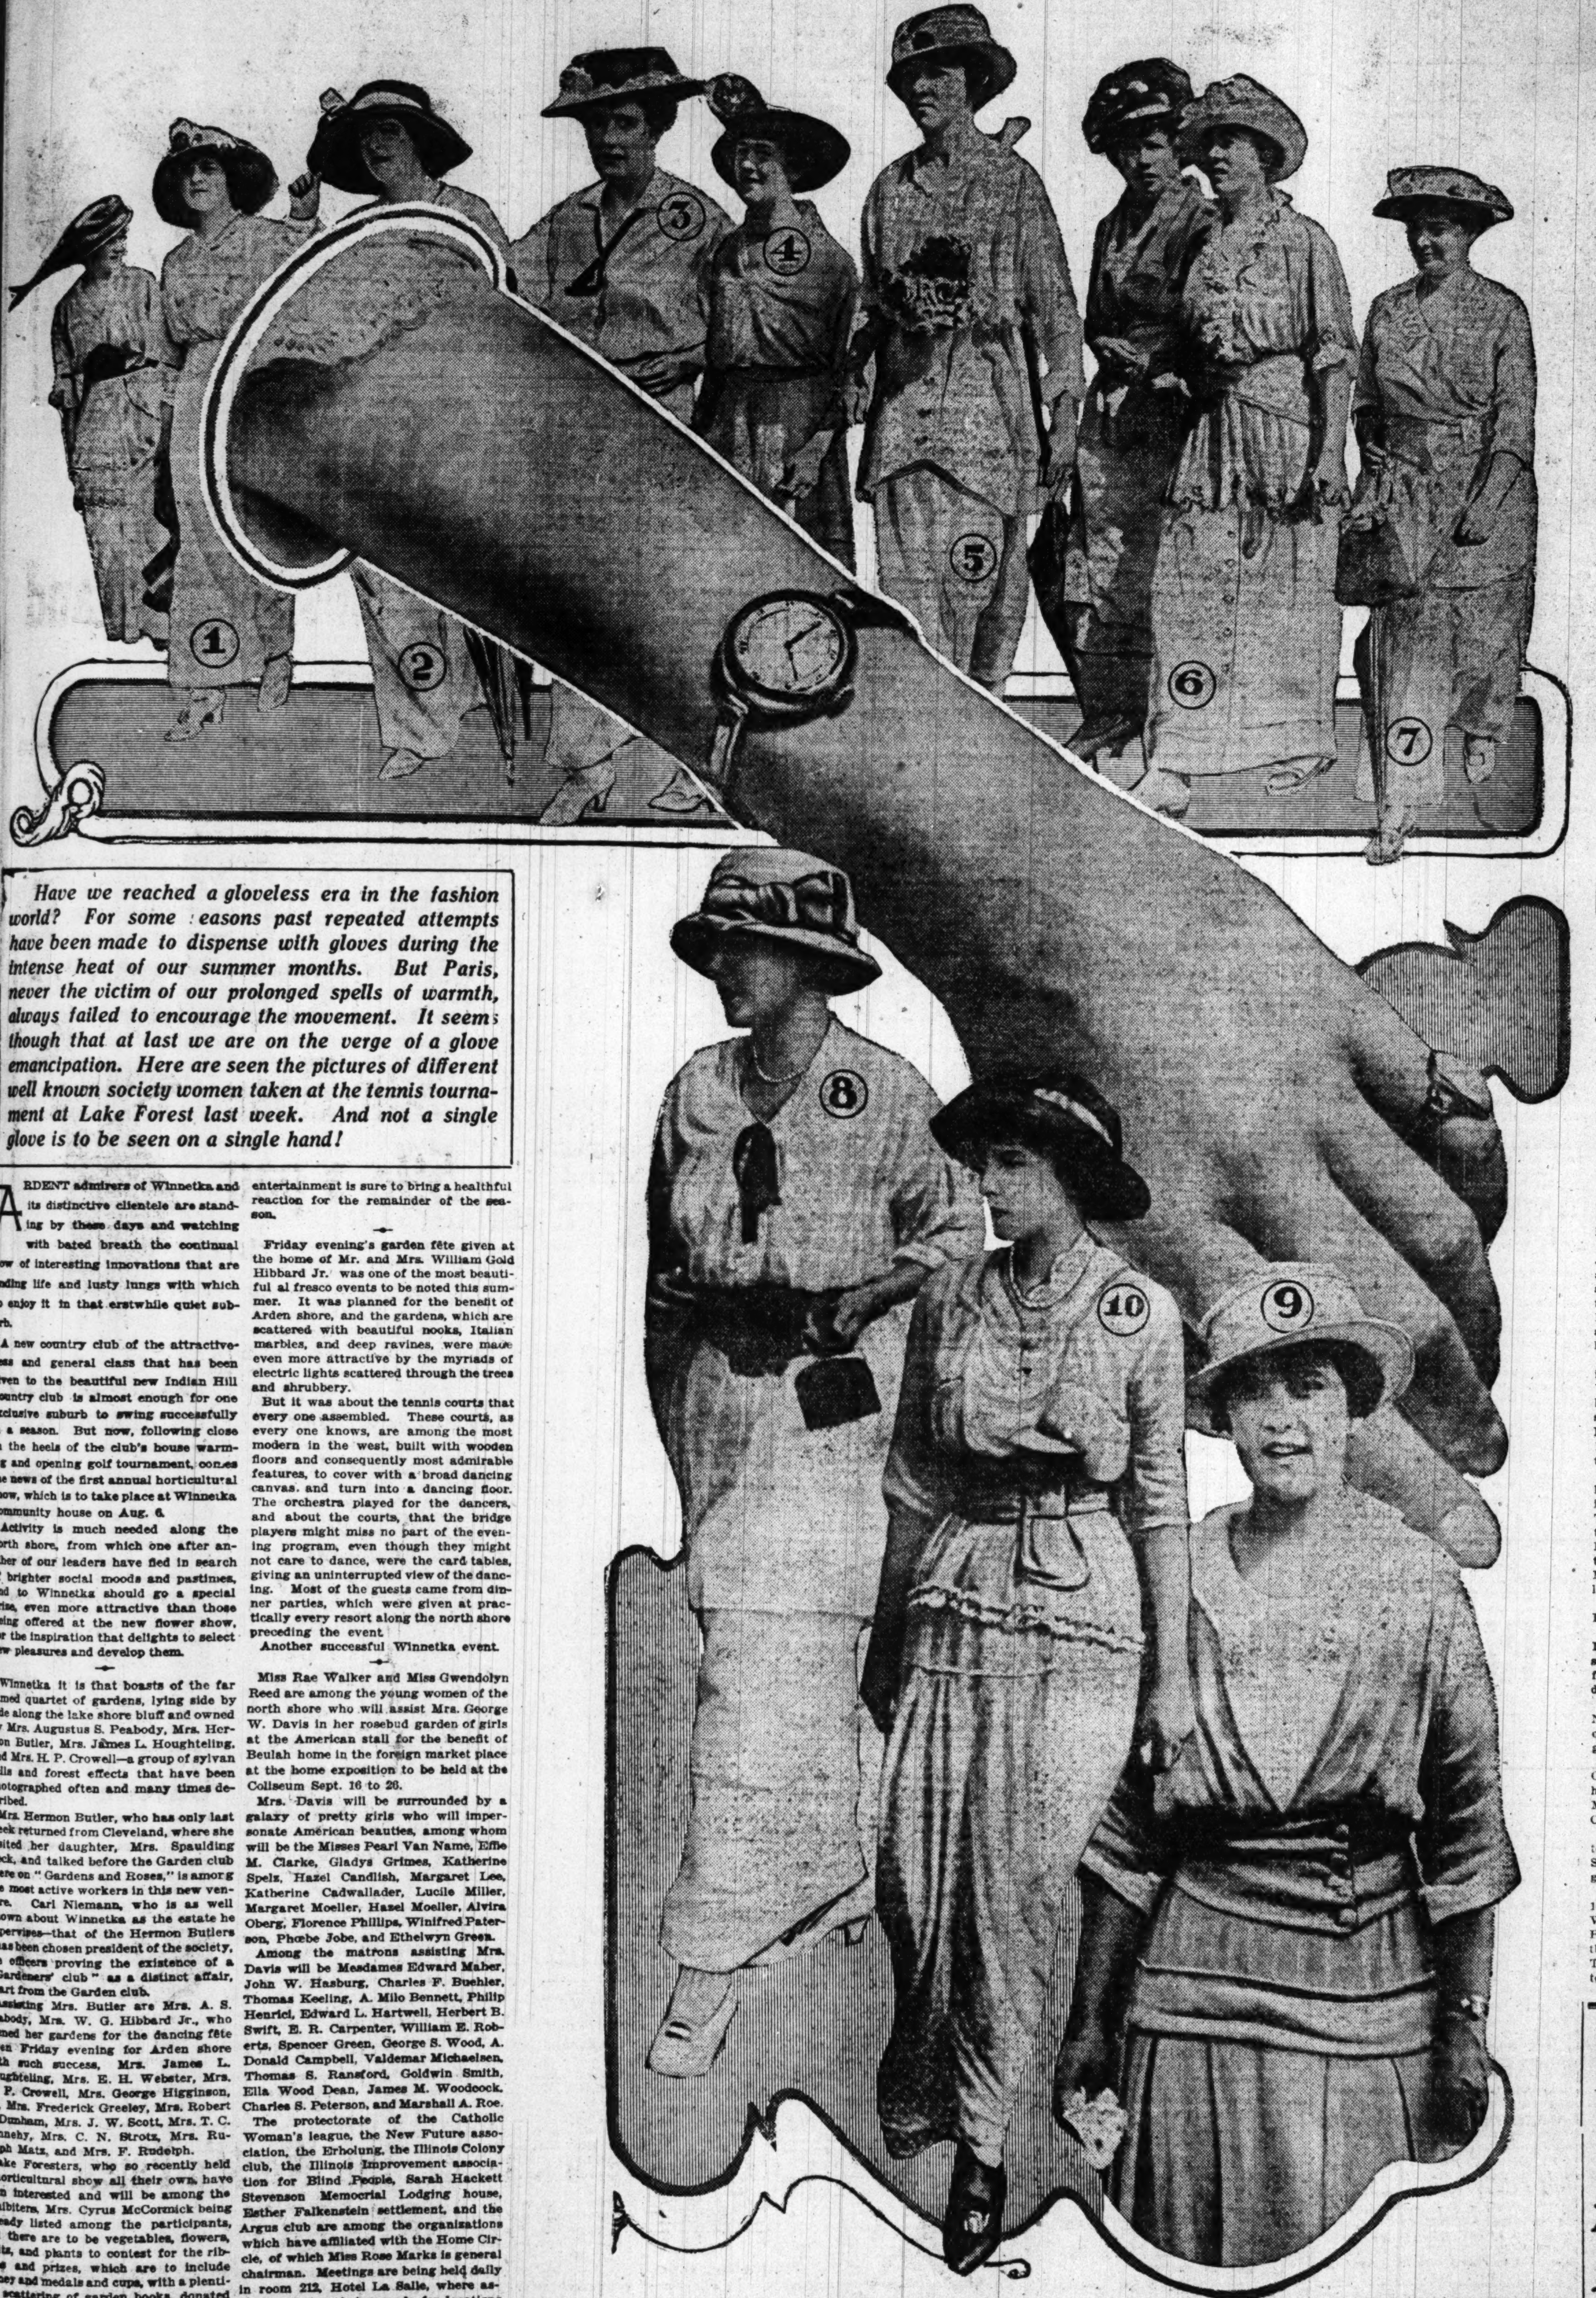
Weddings, Engagements, Personals, at the Country Clubs.



Have we reached a gloveless era in the fashion world? For some reasons past repeated attempts have been made to dispense with gloves during the intense heat of our summer months. But Paris, never the victim of our prolonged spells of warmth, always failed to encourage the movement. It seems though that at last we are on the verge of a glove emancipation. Here are seen the pictures of different well known society women taken at the tennis tournament at Lake Forest last week. And not a single glove is to be seen on a single hand!

ARDENT admirers of Winnetka and its distinctive clientele are standing by these days and watching with bated breath the continual flow of interesting innovations that are finding life and lusty lungs with which to enjoy it in that erstwhile quiet suburb.

A new country club of the attractiveness and general class that has been given to the beautiful new Indian Hill Country club is almost enough for one exclusive suburb to swing successfully in a season. But now, following close on the heels of the club's house warming and opening golf tournament, comes the news of the first annual horticultural show, which is to take place at Winnetka Community house on Aug. 6.

Activity is much needed along the north shore, from which one after another of our leaders have fled in search of brighter social moods and pastimes, and to Winnetka should go a special prize, even more attractive than those being offered at the new flower show, for the inspiration that delights to select new pleasures and develop them.

Winnetka it is that boasts of the far famed quartet of gardens, lying side by side along the lake shore bluff and owned by Mrs. Augustus S. Peabody, Mrs. Hermon Butler, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, and Mrs. H. P. Crowell—a group of sylvan dells and forest effects that have been photographed often and many times described.

Mrs. Hermon Butler, who has only last week returned from Cleveland, where she visited her daughter, Mrs. Spaulding Peck, and talked before the Garden club there on "Gardens and Roses," is among the most active workers in this new venture. Carl Niemann, who is as well known about Winnetka as the estate he supervises—that of the Hermon Butlers—has been chosen president of the society, the officers proving the existence of a "Gardeners' club" as a distinct affair, apart from the Garden club.

Assisting Mrs. Butler are Mrs. A. S. Peabody, Mrs. W. G. Hibbard Jr., who opened her gardens for the dancing fête given Friday evening for Arden shore with such success, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. E. H. Webster, Mrs. H. P. Crowell, Mrs. George Higginson, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Greeley, Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, Mrs. J. W. Scott, Mrs. T. C. Dennehy, Mrs. C. N. Strotz, Mrs. Rudolph Matz, and Mrs. F. Rudolph.

Lake Foresters, who so recently held a horticultural show all their own, have been interested and will be among the exhibiters, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick being already listed among the participants, and there are to be vegetables, flowers, fruits, and plants to contest for the ribbons and prizes, which are to include money and medals and cups, with a plentiful scattering of garden books, donated by the Illinois Garden society.

Several special prizes will be offered. Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy offers a silver cup for the best collection of asters, of which she is extremely fond. And Mrs. H. P. Crowell offers a prize of a $10 gold piece for the person winning the most awards the day of the show.

There is a long and carefully prepared list of rules for the new organization, and chief among them is the one that requires all exhibits shown to have been grown by the exhibiter for at least sixty days preceding the exhibition.

Rivalry is stimulating at best and to find an active body willing to cope with Lake Forest in rights of innovation and entertainment is sure to bring a healthful reaction for the remainder of the season.

Friday evening's garden fête given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Gold Hibbard Jr. was one of the most beautiful al fresco events to be noted this summer. It was planned for the benefit of Arden shore, and the gardens, which are scattered with beautiful nooks, Italian marbles, and deep ravines, were made even more attractive by the myriads of electric lights scattered through the trees and shrubbery.

But it was about the tennis courts that every one assembled. These courts, as every one knows, are among the most modern in the west, built with wooden floors and consequently most admirable features, to cover with a broad dancing canvas and turn into a dancing floor. The orchestra played for the dancers, and about the courts, that the bridge players might miss no part of the evening program, even though they might not care to dance, were the card tables, giving an uninterrupted view of the dancing. Most of the guests came from dinner parties, which were given at practically every resort along the north shore preceding the event.

Another successful Winnetka event.

Miss Rae Walker and Miss Gwendolyn Reed are among the young women of the north shore who will assist Mrs. George W. Davis in her rosebud garden of girls at the American stall for the benefit of Beulah home in the foreign market place at the home exposition to be held at the Coliseum Sept. 16 to 26.

Clarke, Gladys Grimes, Katherine Spelz, Hazel Candlish, Margaret Lee, Katherine Cadwallader, Lucile Miller, Margaret Moeller, Hazel Moeller, Alvira Oberg, Florence Phillips, Winifred Paterson, Phœbe Jobe, and Ethelwyn Green.

Carpenter, William E. Roberts, Spencer Green, George S. Wood, A. Donald Campbell, Valdemar Michaelsen, Thomas S. Ransford, Goldwin Smith, Ella Wood Dean, James M. Woodcock, Charles S. Peterson, and Marshall A. Roe.

The protectorate of the Catholic Woman's league, the New Future association, the Erholung, the Illinois Colony club, the Illinois Improvement association for Blind People, Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging house, Esther Falkenstein settlement, and the Argus club are among the organizations which have affiliated with the Home Circle, of which Miss Rose Marks is general chairman. Meetings are being held daily in room 212, Hotel La Salle, where assignments are being made for locations in the foreign market place, the French salon, and the English tea room, which are to be special features of the exposition.

MISS RAE WALKER

Miss Rae Walker is to be one of the assistants of Mrs. George W. Davis, who is in charge of the American [illegible] in the foreign market, that is one of the features planned for the Home circle exposition, to be held in the Coliseum Sept. 16 to Sept. 26, inclusive.

ENTERTAINMENTS AL FRESCO

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Jensen will entertain on Aug. 2 at their summer home in Ravinia, with its well known gardens and ravines. The following program will be given: Dedication of the players green; prologue by Jacob Bongren; "Pariah," by August Stringberg, to be presented by Stellan Windrow and Harold Theel. Mr. Windrow is attending the University of Chicago.

Daily rehearsals are in progress for the moonlight carnival to be given by the Palos Improvement club at Palos Park Saturday evening. Fifty children and more than a hundred adult residents of the suburb, in picturesque costumes, will have active parts in the fête, which will be given in the forest near the clubhouse. Special trains will run from Chicago.

Mrs. Bertram W. Rosenstone, Mrs. L. G. Spencer, and Mrs. Ballard Dunn are on the committee of arrangements.

Some of the special features of the fête will be the Old Vienna garden, in charge of Mrs. M. T. Hayes, where from 6 to 9 supper will be furnished; a gypsy camp in charge of Mrs. George B. Ward and a number of forest dances by the children under the direction of Miss Katherine McClaughry and Miss Nellie McMahon. Miss Olivia Taft and Miss Charlotte Arnold will dance folk dances. The wooden tennis courts, which are a feature of the Hibbard estate, were used for dancing, and about the courts were placed the bridge tables for those who did not care to dance.

The season at Lake Geneva is unusually quiet this year. The annual horticultural show that has been given for so many seasons past for the benefit of Alice home is not to be given this season, though the annual sum gained from the proceeds is to be made up either privately or by subscription. Mrs. Junkin has been the president of the board for several years past.

Each Friday there is the weekly bridge club for women that meets at the various homes of the club members and of which Miss Dorothy Cran is an active member. There is a weekly dance at the Lake Geneva Country club and on Aug. 12 will begin the annual invitation golf tournament on the links of the club, which will bring an interesting list of guests to the lake.

The entertainment for the children's afternoon at Ravinia park Thursday consisted of a series of costumed Indian dances and tableaux given by Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop. Fifteen children of the north shore danced and posed in the pictures, which were presented in the pavilion. Mrs. Annette R. Jones was in charge. Next Thursday's program will be given over to a lecture-recital of Wagner's "Siegfried" by Mrs. William S. Crosby.

Music They Call for in Cabarets.

"NATURALLY," said the orchestra leader in a leading cabareteria, "the requests for popular tunes far exceed the requests for so-called 'classic' music, but we do get some. But you must remember that we get far fewer requests for any kind of music than you would think. It costs our patrons nothing to make such a request. Of course, some of them seem to think that it is part of the game to send us cigars with the request—we don't object to that idea. But we will gladly play almost any piece of music when no cigars are sent. Still few people take advantge of this privilege.

"Even when requesting 'classic' music the patrons of the loop restaurants show little discrimination. Most of them ask for the intermezzo from 'Cavalleria Rusticana' or the sextet from 'Lucia' or Wagner's 'Wedding March.' These latter are the unmarried ones."

"Sometimes they ask for Wagner's 'Evening Star'—no, that's not a newspaper—or the 'Spring Song' by Mendelssohn. I don't remember to have had a request for any music of Brahms in a year in spite of B. L. T. When they ask for 'William Tell' or 'Poet and Peasant' then I know they come from a small town.

"The worst requests we get are for 'After the Ball,' 'Sweet Marie,' or 'On the Banks of the Wabash.' Our regular patrons would hoot if we tried to put one of them across. The other night we had a request for the 'Floradora' sextet, accompanied by a neat little green piece of paper for each one of us. Yes, we played it—you wouldn't suppose we would offend a good fellow like that by returning his gifts. And, would you believe it, the wisest guys in the house applauded the most. Why, I don't know, unless it was to show that they were old enough to remember that famous hit."

Catholic Women's Protectorate Aids Young Girls.

By Inez Travers.

THE Catholic Woman's league protectorate now employs sixteen paid workers in its various departments.

Since the incorporation of the protectorate in 1910, when it was the only organization of its kind in the country, seventeen others have sprung into existence in the United States. It is an international organization, coöperating and affiliated with all foreign associations doing preventive work. Its main object is to guard young girls against the many dangers that beset them when they come to a strange, and, to them, bewildering city to earn a livelihood; but its work does not stop there. It is for all females from infancy to old age. It has done all sorts of work from finding homes for deserted infants to burying the destitute aged. It is nonsectarian and the first clause in the by-laws reads: "For the preservation of young girls, regardless of creed, color, or nationality." The influence of the protectorate was a material aid in securing the services of women in the courts. It pays for a worker in each of the Juvenile court, the Morals court, the Boys' court, and the Court of Domestic Relations. It is affiliated with the Travelers' Aid society and pays six women to guard the railroad stations from 6 to 12 o'clock p. m. and to conduct young girls arriving on late trains to their destinations in safety.

The protectorate is supported by contributions and dues, and, though it has need of large sums of money to carry on its work, it manages somehow to secure the aid necessary to its charges in an emergency. It is in need of voluntary workers among women who could give a few hours of their time daily or at least weekly. It is the aim of the protectorate—as of all other up to date associations—to do preventive rather than rescue work. It is not satisfied with securing a position for a girl—it follows her career until she is firmly established and past all danger. When girls come to the protectorate with stories of discontent in their country homes and a quarrel with their families which resulted in their coming to the city to find work, the protectorate by calm logic tries to induce them to go back home and furnishes them with the money to do so. It notifies their parents or guardians of their whereabouts, and in cases where the girls are obdurate finds some kind of employment for them. It also endeavors to place the girls in homes where the people are of the same nationality as the girl and where their religion is the same. This arrangement is found more satisfactory to the employer as well as the employed. Perhaps one of the greatest benefits of the protectorate is its loan department. Many girls who have at first received such small wages that it was impossible to live have had them temporarily supplemented by the protectorate.

Often girls have borrowed money to pay bills and have paid it back in very small sums and over long stretches of time after their convalescence. One girl who was under the jurisdiction of the protectorate needed surgical aid and had no way of paying for it, as her wages were barely enough to live on. The protectorate loaned her money for hospital expenses and gave her services of an eminent surgeon free. She has since recovered and paid her debt. Not long ago an infant was brought to the protectorate and left by its mother, who never returned. The baby has been found a home.

But the saddest and most complicated situation ever brought before the organization was one of a girl 13 years old, who has a hereditary disease, and is deaf. The deaf and dumb school would not take her because she was blind; the blind school would not take her because she was deaf and dumb; and the free hospitals would not take her because of her disease. She is now being supported by the protectorate in one of the private hospitals and her improvement is marked since she has been receiving proper care and amusement.

their convalescence. One girl who wa under the jurisdiction of the protectorat needed surgical aid and had no way o paying for it, as her wages were barel enough to live on. The protectorat loaned her money for hospital expense and gave her services of an eminent sur geon free. She has since recovered an paid her debt. Not long ago an infan was brought to the protectorate and lef by its mother, who never returned. Th baby has been found a home.

But the saddest and most complicat situation ever brought before the organ zation was one of a girl 13 years old, who has a hereditary disease, and is deaf and dumb school would not take her be cause she was blind; the blind school would not take her because she was deaf and dumb; and the free hospitals woul not take her because of her disease. She is now being supported by the protecto rate in one of the private hospitals and her improvement is marked since she has been receiving proper care and amus ment.

The LOVE AFFAIRS of PEGGY

[Copyright: 1914: By The Tribune Company.]

Peggy has a "hunch," and she huncheth! In so doing she meets a "blonde god" and she thinks her hunch was good. Whether it was or not, the story tells you. As you read it—think! Who, among all the "movie" girls, can you see as Peggy in this episode?

I AM no female detective, dear journal, but I have discovered this about Fate—she is a cat with a perverted sense of humor! Absolutely unreliable and undependable, and all the rest of the words that mean the same thing. And to think that three weeks ago I believed in her, implicitly! O la! Shrugging I raise my eyebrows and bite my under lip. A cynic—and so young! The pity o' it!

The experience I am about to put under your hat, book of mine, started one Wednesday morning three weeks ago. I was to meet Ann for luncheon and afterward we were going to the matinée, but as I had some shopping to do I made an early getaway from home, and all in my new white voile and floppy white hat with the big black butterfly perched on it and my $10 "kicks" I stood on the "L" platform at 10 a. m.

Now I am not what you would call superstitious, and the family doctor has never thought it necessary to give me anything for my nerves, but I do have a firm belief in "hunches," and when I'm alone with nobody around to make fun of me I live up to my belief. Consequently when, just as I was about to enter the train that came up and something drew my eyes to the motorman and whispered "Nay!" I backed up and prepared to wait for the next express, for, journal of mine, this man was fat, and the something which was the hunch had said to me:

"It's a hot day. Supposing he were struck with apoplexy! Who would run the train? Wait for a thin one!"

So I waited while three trains, each in turn manipulated by a driver overly supplied with avoirdupois, went on their way to a possible, awful fate. At last, though, a thin, dark, sour looking individual occupied the seat of responsibility, and I got on.

The train was crowded. I sighed, for the three I had missed had had oceans of nice, comfortable seats, and reached up my silken gloved hand to grasp a strap when:

"Allow me!" some one said, and, looking up, I saw the blondest of blonde gods raising his impeccable Panama to me, while he smiled gravely into my eyes. With a murmured word of thanks I appropriated the seat that had been his, and from under my floppy hat studied him when he was not looking.

He was certainly a peacherino hula dewdrop! No two ways about that. An X between a J. Warren Kerrigan and a Francis Bushman in height and coloring. Coloring via Bushman. You, dear journal, are to be pitied, for you wot not the thrills that even the pictured images of one of these stars is capable of giving one, let alone a combination of the two of them—while to see a combination of the two in one glorious living embodiment of faultlessly dressed manhood——! And again——!

Suddenly his eyes met mine. Of course I looked away immediately, but not before there flashed across my mind the thought:

"This is Fate! Else why was not the first motorman thin instead of fat? Why were not the others thin? No—Fate decreed that I was to take this train!"

He got off at the station before mine. What a divine swing he had to his shoulders! How beautifully his trousers creased, and the subdued glow of his tan boots was all that the most exacting woman could ask. It was plain to me that he "belonged." Fate had been kind so far. Surely she would see that we were offered the chance to meet properly.

All during luncheon I had what Ann calls acidly my "hazy" air. Poor Ann, I thought, if you only knew! And two or three times I was on the point of confiding in her; but discretion made me hold my tongue, for Ann is of the genus practical and does not believe in signs.

That night, after I had my hair braided and my nightie on, I slipped into Mother's room. Father was out of town, and on such occasions I keep her company often until the wee, sma' hours, for she is one of these people who refuse to sleep until she has read everything in the house there is to read, and had crackers and milk and cake and things after she is through to bring the blood from her head to her stomach. She was sitting in bed, with a magazine in her hand, when I entered. But she put it down and smiled.

"Hey-o, Pettykins! Tum sit by its muvver! My eyes are a-weary, and I fain would converse for a change."

I frowned. Why does my mother persist in using such language to me? I slid into the big chair by the side of the bed, whereat that woman reached out her hand and pulled my nose.

"Pud nose!" she cooed. "Dey dot itte pud nose, hasn't dey? Tum an' yet its muvver pull its itte pud nose!"

Remonstrance is useless, so I merely pulled my chair back. She grinned. I forestalled any further remarks about my nose—which is not pug, but retrousse, by the way—by saying abruptly:

"Mother, do you believe in Fate?"

"Fate?" asked my mother, frivolously. "Bare fate, or big fate, or club fate? Which do you mean, my love?" Again I ignored her folly.

"I mean the fate that brings from the ends of the earth two mortals together and proves them to be two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one. Taking the case of you and dad, for instance. Was it Fate united you?"

"Well, no," my mother said, thoughtfully. "If I remember correctly, it was a Presbyterian minister. However——" I interrupted:

"No, but, mother—I mean, how did it happen that you and dad met? You hadn't intended to meet, had you? But you just saw each other, and then——"

"Toddlekins," said my mother soberly, "from the time I saw your father at the age of 14 rescue a harassed cat from a mess of bad little boys that were bent on driving it to destruction by the can route I made up my mind to have him. And I got him. That's the truth, s'ep me."

"Fate!" I crowed. "It was fate!"

"Well, maybe," she answered doubtfully. "But I was under the impression it was cat. But why this sudden interest, my love, in Fate?" And that funny look of hers came into her eyes. I yawned.

"O, nothing," I answered—I fear me ungrammatically. "I was just reading something." And I let the subject drop.

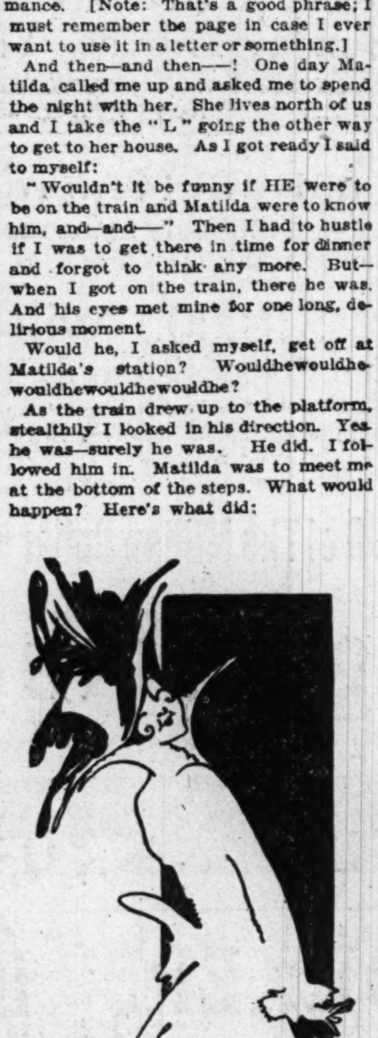
It was queer, though, how many times I found it necessary to go downtown in the morning after that. Was it Fate that made me suddenly run out of gloves and handkerchiefs and things, all at once and at the same time? Was it Fate that seemed always to plump me on a certain train wherein usually sat the blonde god? I thought so, and I began taking all my friends down with me one by one in the hopes of finding some mutual friend who would straighten out the proprieties and thus line with rose leaves the road to romance. [Note: That's a good phrase; I must remember the page in case I ever want to use it in a letter or something.]

And then—and then——! One day Matilda called me up and asked me to spend the night with her. She lives north of us and I take the "L" going the other way to get to her house. As I got ready I said to myself:

"Wouldn't it be funny if HE were to be on the train and Matilda were to know him, and—and——" Then I had to hustle if I was to get there in time for dinner and forgot to think any more. But—when I got on the train, there he was. And his eyes met mine for one long, delirious moment.

Would he, I asked myself, get off at Matilda's station? Wouldhewouldhewouldhewouldhewouldhe?

As the train drew up to the platform, stealthily I looked in his direction. Yes he was—surely he was. He did. I followed him in. Matilda was to meet me at the bottom of the steps. What would happen? Here's what did:



"—and All in My New White Voile and Floppy Hat and My $10 Kicks I Stood on the 'L' Platform at 10 A.M."

I beheld him suddenly surrounded by a crowd of little tow headed children, who swarmed up his arms and legs while a plump, smiling woman looked on.

"Ach, Vater," the children were saying, "vas has du uns gebracht?" and from his pockets they pulled plebeian bags of candy and peanuts." He managed to free his right hand long enough to lift his hat to Matilda, who was standing there. I waited behind a post until they had gone on. Then I marched up to Matilda. She was looking after them, smilingly. After she had kissed me she said, nodding in their direction:

"That's a nice, happy little family. They are in the delicatessen business. She runs the one right in our block and he manages the one downtown. They have the best cheesecake. Let's stop in and get some and I'll introduce you to them." I stopped.

"Matilda," I said, "if you ever say cheesecake to me—well, I shall be ill. I—I ate too much of it one time, and——"

"O," Matilda said, sympathetically. "Poor dear."

Such is Fate. The cat.

Irving Cummings

O·RBAN

IRVING CUMMINGS of the Thanhouser company was once a bank clerk in New York. Not for long, however. He couldn't get the idea out of his head that the stage and he were a mutual loss to each other. Consequently, when the opportunity offered, he took a minor part in "The Eagle's Nest," in which Edwin Arden was playing. This engagement was followed by two seasons with William H. Crane in "David Harum." Then he played in "Texas," "Way Down East," "The Man of the Hour" and "In Search of a Sinner," in which last Lillian Russell was touring. It was after a hard year with the Sherman Brown Stock company of Milwaukee that Mr. Cummings decided to go into moving pictures. He joined the Powers Motion Picture company, playing leads. After that he went to the Pathe Freres company, where he was always featured, and then the Reliance claimed him for its own, showing him in "The Man from Outside," "The Master Cracksman," "Italian Love," "Ashes," "The Higher Justice," "The Fight for Right," "Success," and many other successful photo-plays. From there to the Thanhouser.

Mr. Cummings is a big, dark, good looking chap, with a manner that is full of charm. He is fond of motoring and drives his own machine at a scandalous pace. He has escaped arrest and fines on this score many times by reason of the fact that he goes too fast for the police to get his number. While with the Reliance company he captained the company's base ball team through a victorious season.

"You do everything well, don't you?" a little admirer said to him one day.

He replied laughingly: "As well as I know how, but from selfish motives, purely. I'd be so ashamed of myself, you see, if I were to make a fizzle of anything!"

GOSSIP of the MOVIE PLAYS and PLAYERS

By Mae Tinee

STOPPING a runaway horse almost resulted seriously for Elmer E. Redmond of the Blaché company during the staging of a thrilling scene by James Johnson recently. The animal, harnessed to a light buggy, was driven at a lively gait toward the spot where Mr. Redmond was waiting to grasp the bridle and bring him to a sudden stop, but the spirited thoroughbred took the bit in his teeth and made a wild plunge just as Mr. Redmond leaped toward him. The actor was thrown violently to the ground and dragged several yards before he was rescued. With the exception of severe bruises and a slightly wrenched knee the plucky leading man was not badly injured, although by some freak of the accident the collar of his coat was removed as cleanly as if cut off by a tailor. When projected upon the screen the scene was found to be as realistic a feat of heroism as has ever been performed for the benefit of a camera.

Listen to what happened to Charles Ray of the Kay Bee: He was looking in a Venice store window with Arthur Jarrett when Charlie saw a $20 gold piece at his feet. Being of a generous nature, he suggested that he and Jarrett divide and spend the twenty on shirts and things. They did, and when Charlie returned he put his hand in his vest pocket and found a hole. The $20 gold piece which was there when he started out was gone.

Nicholas Dunaew, a Russian actor of ability, who is now playing one of the minor characters in the Vitagraph theater's latest film success, "My Official Wife," is the one directly responsible for the Russian atmosphere which makes the picture such a marvel of realism. Mr. Dunaew, who has been in this country but six months, was engaged by the Vitagraph company to instruct the principals of the cast in Russian manners and customs, to describe and visualize scenes and incidents of Russian life, to teach Russian dances, and, in fact, to make the picture as near Russian as possible without actually making the long journey to the czar's domains. Mr. Dunaew has accomplished all he set out to do and more, as those who have seen the picture and know Russia are loud in their praise of its colorful and marvelous accuracy of detail. His extensive knowledge of Russia was gained through research in order that he might add realism to his plays, which are now being performed throughout Europe, and include: "The Spider," "The Vampire," "The Terrible God," and "Two Nationalities." Besides his plays, Mr. Dunaew is the author of a book of poems that is highly appreciated in his native land, Russia.

Sir Henry Arthur Jones has for the last year been besieged by the leading film producers of the world for the film rights of his famous successes. As under similar conditions in the cases of Charles Frohman and Henry W. Savage, the Famous Players finally succeeded, on the strength of the pretentious standard of its program, in securing these works. It is a notable fact that an American concern should have obtained these plays of England's eminent dramatist, in the face of competing offers from the greatest foreign film producers. Among the plays by Henry Arthur Jones that will be produced in motion pictures by the Famous Players Film company are "The Masqueraders," "Saints and Sinners," "The Dancing Girl," and the most celebrated of all his works, "The Silver King," which has recently been given a command performance before the king of England, and the film version of which is now being produced in that country under the direction of Edwin S. Porter and Hugh Ford.

Answers to Movie Fans. - - By Mae Tinee.

THELMA: I don't know.

MOVIE FANS: Unless Thomas Santschi's wife has obtained a divorce from him he is married, not yet, but still. Kathlyn Williams' husband's name is Allen.

A. R.: Tell you something about Grace Cunard? Well, let's see—she's pretty and bright, plays in Universal productions, and hopes to some day head her own company. She went on the stage at the age of 13, playing in "Dora Thorne." If you will write to her and Francis Ford in care of the Universal Film company, 1600 Broadway, New York, they will receive your letters.

HELEN R. G.: You mustn't ask the judges leading questions. Pearl White is about 25 years of age. I hope Crane Wilbur lives with his father or mother or somebody, too. It must be awful to live alone.

J. A. C.: Wallie Van is a "cutie," isn't he? He probably just acquired the gait for business purposes. If he's married I hadn't heard of it. Lots of movie favorites keep their matrimonial ventures under their publicity hats, however.

DOT: I don't wonder you're interested in Carlyle Blackwell. He's awfully good looking, isn't he? Perhaps he'll come to Danville some day. Who knows? The publicity managers of the various companies usually have pictures of the players, I believe. A quarter is the price asked for most of them.

MYRTLE: It takes more than one vote to elect the person whose picture is to appear in the Frame of Public Favor, you know. Your favorite stands just the same chance as does anybody else. We show absolutely no partiality.

Owing to the number of queries received and the somewhat limited space allowed for answers, it is not always possible to print information as rapidly as the writers desire it, as the letters must be answered in turn. All, however, receive careful attention.

When stamped and addressed envelopes are inclosed, Miss Tinee will be glad to answer personally any letters addressed to her. Address all queries to this department to Mae Tinee in care of this paper.

Questions that have been repeatedly answered will receive a reply only when a stamped and addressed envelope is sent.

Questions considered as ridiculous will not be answered.

Questions regarding relationship will be answered to the best of our ability, but we are not responsible if mistakes are made.

If you are interested in photo-play writing send a stamped and self-addressed envelope to this department for the information you desire.

MY MOVIE FAN: So Eunice, Mary, and you have "leave" to join the movie forces, and Eunice, Mary, and you are aged respectively 10, 12, and 13 years! Well, most of the companies use children occasionally in some of their plays. It would do no harm to inquire at any of the studios. Francis X. Bushman lives in Chicago. The Essanay Film company has a studio at 1333 Argyle street, Chicago. But what makes you think you want to be "movie" actors, I wonder? It's lots of work.

WINNIE: There are a number of leading people at the Vitagraph. Maurice Costello is still playing, but I imagine not so much at one time, as he is busy directing much of the time.

ADMIRER: Arthur H. Ashley is 28 years old. No, I don't think he's engaged to Norma Talmadge. I don't know about Harry Ashley. It would not be ethics for me to tell you about the votes. You don't mind?

SUBSCRIBER: You will find, I am sure, that story and pictures are practically the same.

F. G. S.: Poor, lonesome man, of course it will be proper for you to write to Florence La Badie and Grace Cunard if you want to, since you promise me you won't write them love letters. But if you're looking for somebody "like a sister" to tell your troubles to, why not look for them nearer home? You might address Florence La Badie in care of the Thanhouser company, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Miss Cunard in care of the Universal, 1600 Broadway, New York.

LOLA C.: If I were you I'd telephone to the publicity manager of the studio in which you are interested and ask him what days are set aside for receiving visitors. He will tell you about the permit.

GOLD SEAL: You'll probably hear from your scenarios within a month. I will have to refer you to Mr. Ford and Miss Cunard themselves for answers to your last questions.

T. B. M.: Miss Anita Stewart is not married. Art glad? She doesn't give out her residence address, so you'll have to write her in care of the Vitagraph company, New York.

A FRIEND: Which James Morrison do you mean? I know of two. One is with the Vitagraph company and the other with the American.

CLARA R.: Grace Cunard was born in Paris. I have no information regarding any of her relatives. Ethel Grandin is 20 years old.

INQUISITIVE FAN: I don't know how quiet Ed Coxen is, but he is certainly good looking. And I can't vouch that he is a bosom friend of George Field. I hope so, however, but the chances are they hate each other. Yale Boss of the Edison company is 14 years old. Irving Cummings of the Thanhouser company is in his late twenties.

CECILIA: O, Cecilia, I haven't an idea as to whether J. Warren Kerrigan's father is Irish and his mother French. If they are he could hardly be Jewish, could he? Or perhaps I am not up on my eugenics.

J. S.: Earle Williams is dark and handsome and was born in Sacramento, Cal. He is with the Vitagraph company.

IDA H. R.: I'm not a "sir," but I'll be glad to send you all the information you wish regarding photo plays if you will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

CATHERINE C. D.: No, I don't believe that in real life—not reel life—Francis Bushman really—not reelly—loves Beverly Bane. Yes, she's just as pretty as they say she is. Tall people are not the only ones who succeed in the "movies." There are many short ones who win fame.

LA VANCE BURNS: No, Florence Lawrence has no children. Yes, I think so. She's jes' plain American, I think. Flora Finch says her hobby is hubbies, so—judge for yourself.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton

AN institution as well as a sermon may have a text. The one from which the Ephpheta school for the deaf at 3100 North Crawford avenue, which is under the care of the Roman Catholic church, but has ministered for nearly thirty years to persons of many denominations and of many nationalities, is taken from the gospel according to St. Mark, chapter 7, verses 32 to 36, which reads:

"And they brought to him one deaf and dumb; and they besought him that he would lay his hand upon him.

"And taking him from the multitude apart, he put his fingers into his ears, and spitting he touched his tongue.

"And looking up to heaven he groaned, and said to him: Ephpheta, which is, Be thou opened.

"And immediately his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spoke right."

The gospel miracle is being repeated at the Ephpheta school more literally than many may know; for under the instruction of skilled and patient teachers the tongues of the deaf are being unloosed and they are made to speak. In fact, although the charter names it a school for the deaf and dumb, the latter word is dropped from the name in front of the school and in all of the literature now sent out. Bible prophecy has been fulfilled in that the "tongue of the dumb has been made to sing," as the Bible foretold would some day come to pass.

Only oral instruction is allowed in the classes. The pupils read from the teachers' lips and answer audibly questions put to them. In a visit to the school yesterday I was permitted to hear a bright little girl of about 10 years of age talk as distinctly and intelligently as the average girl of the same age who was free from any physical infirmity.

At playtime the sign language is permitted and a group of girls I saw on the lawn were gesticulating and nodding with animation and evident delight.

My attention was called to the school when I was inquiring of S. A. Baldus, editor of the Catholic Extension Magazine, for news concerning some of the most interesting features of the Catholic church in Chicago.

"Visit the Ephpheta School for the Deaf," he said, "and if you want to talk with an enthusiast on the subject of the school before you make your visit call on Mr. Richmond Dean, general manager of the Pullman company."

"Yes, Mr. Dean is in, but he is very busy," I was told when I went to call. I spoke of my credentials. "O, I see; you want to learn about the School for the Deaf. Well, I guess Mr. Dean will see you, then."

Mr. Dean did open the door of his room, and the door of his heart as well, and he had to hunt for words strong and vivid enough to express his admiration for the school, for the devoted superintendent, Miss Annie M. Larkin, who has been for thirty years a teacher of the deaf, and for the wonderful results accomplished in behalf of the afflicted.

"If the people of Chicago realized the good the school is doing and the need for help," Mr. Dean said, "we would have no trouble in securing its support. At present the financial problems are serious."

Mr. Dean explained he was trying to interest at least 100 men who would contribute $100 each annually for the current expenses of the school. "I have fifty of them now, but don't know where I can get the others," he said.

The Ephpheta School for the Deaf was founded Oct. 2, 1884. Until five years ago it occupied quarters at Twelfth and May streets. The building which it now occupies was dedicated in October, 1909.

One embarrassment under which the school labors grows out of the failure to secure the full legacy of $100,000 on which the school counted when the new project was launched. A contested will, with the litigation which followed, reduced the amount received from the legacy about one-half, with the result that on the building there is an indebtedness which demands the annual payment of a large amount of interest. It takes $12,000 a year to pay the current bills on the lowest estimates, without considering the large items for interest, debt payment, or improvements. There is no endowment, no society specifically pledged to its support, and the present need amounts to a real crisis. As Miss Larkin said: "We were never so hard pressed as we are just at this time. We owe current expenses of more than $500, and only $100 in the bank, with not a dollar of coal for next winter provided for."

To justify this appeal to the public this statement is made with authority: No deaf or dumb child has ever been turned away from the door of the Ephpheta school because its parents were unable to pay for its support or education.

Out of 118 children in the school last year sixty were cared for absolutely free and many others at reduced rates depending on the ability of parents to meet the expense.

Parents in humble circumstances who would not think of accepting charity in keeping their normal children in the public schools are often obliged to ask for help in the matter of educating a child whose condition demands specialized education and also board and room.

Boys are allowed to stay in the school until they are 14. In addition to a grammar school education they are taught self-support in some trade or manual employment. Girls may remain until they are 20, and they are taught the household arts.

Of the twenty-five teachers eighteen serve without salary, giving their skill and time while receiving simply a support. Only a few of the pupils remain in the school during the summer vacation. The next year begins Sept. 8, the date on which the Chicago public schools open.

The officers of the school are: Annie M. Larkin, superintendent; F. H. Rawson, Union Trust company, treasurer. The advisory board is made up of F. H. Rawson, Samuel C. Scotten, Joseph G. Snydecker, Edward Hines, D. F. Kelly, Richmond Dean.

The Church Peace union endowed by Andrew Carnegie begins its first conference in Constance, Germany, tomorrow. Religious services will be held in connection with the conference today, but discussions and addresses begin tomorrow, continuing until Saturday. Following the conference the next item of interest in connection with the Church Peace union will be the awarding of $5,000 in prizes for the best essays on the subject of peace.

Owing to the interest created by the declaration of war between Austria-Hungary and the Servians attention may be called to the work of the Baptists among the Hungarians which began eight years ago. They now report a church membership in the United States of 1,018, an increase of 338 over the year previous. A national Hungarian union has been formed with the Rev. N. Dulitz of New York as president and the Rev. L. L. Zboray as corresponding secretary.

The United Presbyterian church and the Presbyterian church in the United States of America are waging campaigns for the purpose of endowing chairs of Bible instruction in all of the denominational colleges. The United Presbyterians have five colleges, for which they hope to secure $40,000 each. The Presbyterians are asking for $30,000 each for a much larger number of colleges.

The interdenominational summer under the auspices of the missionary education movement will begin next Tuesday at Lake Geneva, Wis. The conference will continue until Aug. 13. Other conferences under the same auspices will be held in different parts of the United States and six such conferences will be held in Canada. Among those who will address the Lake Geneva conference are: The Rev. James M. Stifler, pastor First Baptist church, Evanston; the Rev. Edgar Blake, Evanston, corresponding secretary board of Sunday schools of Methodist Episcopal church; Miss Helen P. Patten, Evanston, missionary superintendent board of Sunday schools, Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. J. Y. Aitchison, Chicago, district secretary American Baptist missionary societies, and Miss Ina E. Burton, Chicago. Missionaries from India, Burma, Africa, and the Philippines will also speak. The general theme of the conference will be: "The Social Force of Christian Missions."

The Presbyterian Training school, East Fiftieth street and Indiana avenue, will admit men into its classes when it opens for the fall term, according to announcements of the president of the school, the Rev. Howard B. McAfee. Hitherto only women students have been admitted. Twenty applications from men have been received.

The Chicago Presbytery will meet tomorrow at 509 South Wabash avenue at 10 o'clock.

First Baptist church, Englewood, which has the second largest membership of any Baptist church in Chicago or suburbs, will have the following ministers supply its pulpit during the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Smith T. Ford: Today, the Rev. W. S. Abernathy, Kansas City, Mo.; next Sunday, the Rev. G. W. Cassidy, Wichita, Kas.; Aug. 16, the Rev. Clifton D. Gray, Chicago, editor the Standard; Aug. 23, the Rev. John C. Breaker, Worcester, Mass.; Aug. 30, the Rev. Francis C. Stifler, Saginaw, Mich.; Sept. 6, the Rev. Samuel H. Bowyer, Springfield, Ill.

MISS

Miss Edith Harrison, who is the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison of Sheridan road, has been spending the summer at the Huron Mountain club, where her parents have their summer home. Next week she is leaving with her parents for the east, where they will make an auto tour of New England, preceding the wedding of Carter H. Harrison Jr. to Lucy Brady Cook at Trenton, N. J., on August 19.

Anatol and the Double Standard.

Max—Still the same little wretch?

Anatol—Of course. I'm d—— wretched.

Max—And still suspecting her?

Anatol—Not a bit of it. I know perfectly well that she's untrue to me. She puts her arms round my neck and kisses me, and we're happy. But all the time . . . as sure as she's standing there . . . I know that she's . . .

Max—O nonsense!

Anatol—Is it!

Max—Then how do you know?

Anatol—When I feel a thing as I feel this . . . it must be true.

Max—That's unarguable, anyhow.

Anatol—Besides, girls of this sort always are unfaithful. It comes naturally to them . . . it's a sort of instinct. Just as I have two or three books that I read at a time, they must keep two or three men hanging around.

Max—But doesn't she love you?

Anatol—What difference does that make?

Max—Who's the other man?

Anatol—How do I know Some one has seen her in the shop. Some one has made eyes at her in the train going home.

Max—Rubbish!

Anatol—Why? All she wants is to have a good time without thinking about it. I ask her if she loves me. She says Yes . . . and it's perfectly true. Then . . . Am I the only man she loves? She says yes again . . . and that's true, too, for the time being. For the time being she's forgotten the other fellow. Besides . . . what else can a woman say? She can't tell you . . . No, my darling, the very moment your back is turned . . . ! Still . . . I wish I knew for certain.

Max—My dear Anatol, if she really loves you . . .

Anatol—O, innocent! I ask you what has that to do with it?

Max—A great deal, I should hope.

Anatol—Then why am I not true to her? I really love her, don't I?

Max—You're a man.

Anatol—Thank you . . . it only needed that! Of course . . . we are men and women are different. Some! If their mammas lock them up or if they're little fishes. Otherwise, my dear Max, women and men are very much alike . . . especially women. And if I swear to one of them that she's the only woman I love, is that lying to her . . . just because the night before I've been saying the same thing to another?

Max—Well . . . speak for yourself.

Anatol—Cold blooded, correct gentleman! I'm afraid dear Hilda's rather less like you than she is like me. Perhaps she isn't . . . but perhaps she is. I'd give a lot to know. I might go on my knees and swear I'd forgiven her already . . . but she's lie to me just the same. Haven't I been begged with tears a dozen times . . . for God's sake to tell them if I'm true. They won't say an angry word if I'm not . . . only tell them. Then I've lied . . . calmly and cheerfully. And quite right, too. Why should I make poor women wretched? They've believed in me and been happy.

Max—Very well, then . . .

Anatol—But I don't believe in her and I'm not happy. O . . . if some one could invent a way to make these dear damnable little creatures speak the truth!

Why Some People Laugh at Vaudeville.

GREAT NORTHERN.

Sam Hood: "I like to see so many happy women present in the audience. Some of them are thinking about their husbands; others aren't. Some of them are saying, 'I know where my husband is.' They're widows. Some of them are worrying about their husbands. Maybe he has a bad habit of coming home late at night. If he has, listen to me and I'll tell you how to break him of it. Some night when he stays out late dress yourself up in your best clothes, do your hair up in nice shape and wait for him. Then when he sneaks up behind you and puts his arms lovingly around your neck—he'll be trying to get a stand in, you know—then if his name is George say, 'O, Tom, is that you?' and I'll bet he never stays out late again.

"Have you heard the latest war news? Germany has told France that there would be no Balkan in this war for we will Russia over to Austria and if you get Hungary we'll Servia with Turkey cooked in Greece.

LA SALLE OPERA HOUSE.

Humor heard in "The Elopers":

Kelso—What did we do that last mile in?

Dunlay—You mean going up or coming down?

Kelso—What was the cause of our ascent?

Dunlay—The carburetor got crossed with the gas tank and besides you took the radiator out of the dining room when you should have taken the one from the kitchen.

Kelso—Outside of that everything was all right?

Dunlay—No, never again let me catch you putting codliver oil in that engine, understand?

Miss Kennedy—Will you buy me an ice cream sundae?

Dunlay—I don't think I'll be here Sunday. You born around here?

Miss Kennedy—O, mercy, no. My father was an English peer.

Dunlay—That's nothing, my father was an American dock.

Miss Kennedy—O, a physician; is he still practicing?

Dunlay—No, he lost his patients.

Miss Kennedy—Have you ever made love to any other girl?

Dunlay—Never.

Miss Kennedy—Then you can't practice on me. [Leaves him.]

Kelso—I thought that was a huzzamuguzza bird.

Miss Weller—What kind of a bird is that?

Kelso—That's one that flies backward to keep the dust out of his eyes.

Mr. Baber—Remember, my dear, there are very few good husbands running around loose.

Miss Kennedy—But there are plenty of bum husbands running around tight.

Dunlay (at phone to guest in room)—What's that, there are two rats fighting in your room? What did I charge you for that room? Fifty cents? What do you want for 50 cents—a bull fight?

Dunlay—You'll find him in the cellar with the rest of the fuel.

Dunlay—Boy, front—ice water to room sixty-six.

Boy—Why, I have been taking ice water to that room all day long. I've taken up twelve pitchers already.

Dunlay—Twelve pitchers; who's in that room? [Both look at register]. O, Mrs. Fish—give her all the water she wants.

McVICKER'S.

Hughes—You can't applegise to me at all. In the future when you see me on the street pass me by like a dog. Hereafter you go my way and I will go yours.

Hilton—Vat's the matter? Vas there someding wrong with my table etikett?

Hughes—O, your table manicures was someding malicious. You had the whole thing misconstrudled. The idea of a man ordering corn beef and garbage at a banquet. Vat did you thing vere ve vas, at a wake?

Hilton—I don't reciprocate.

Hughes—She had nothing to do with it.

Hilton—Who?

Hughes—Slippery Kate. You know right vell it wasn't even on the menu.

Hilton—On the who?

Hughes—On the menu.

Hilton—You mean me?

Hughes—When I say menu I don't mean you.

Hilton—Then why do you say it?

Hughes—Because I mean it.

Hilton—O, you mean it.

Hughes—O, my blood is getting full of boils. See how the presperterian is rolling off me. If you vant to see your mother again you swatch out. M. E. N. U. Y. the k is silent like in the world turtle. Menu, that is a card. Do you know vat a card is?

Hilton—Why, any fool could tell you that.

Hughes—Then you tell me.

Hilton—A cart that is a wagon with two wheels.

Hughes—O, trying to teach you something is like trying to set the ocean on fire with a match. Your brains leaks out everything that comes in.

Hilton—Is that so? I passed my swivil service extermination just the same. [Shows certificate with seal.]

Hughes—[Looks at paper over Hilton's shoulder]—Vat kind of chob is you going to get?

Hilton—I am going to be the chief expectation officer of the board of stupid advisers.

ETIQUETTE.

By Elizabeth Van Rensselaer.

Any question on etiquette will be answered for you if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

"DEAR MISS VAN RENSSELAER: Will you kindly, through the columns of THE TRIBUNE, answer the following inquiry: Is it proper form in returning formal call to leave husband's card with yours? Yours respectfully,

In making formal calls leave one of your own cards and one of your husband's for each woman in the family who is in society and one of your husband's cards for each man in the family who is in society. Do not leave cards for young girls who have not yet made their debut, nor for the young men in the family who have not taken their places in society. Let us take a hypothetical case. You call upon a woman who has a debutante daughter and no sons. Leave two of your own cards and three of your husband's. If you call upon a woman who has no daughters in society leave merely one of your own cards and two of your husband's.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: Should a prize won at cards be given to a guest of honor when there is one? R. S. V."

It is customary to provide a separate prize for the guest of honor at a card party.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: I am going to leave Chicago for Wyoming the end of next week. I intend to teach on a ranch for two or three months. I do not wish to take anything along which would be unnecessary, but I do want to take enough to appear well. I thought you would possibly know better than I what would be suitable. I have never been on a Pullman before and any advice you can give would be greatly appreciated in regard to meals, tips, etc. Also what do you think would be suitable to wear on the train? I may travel alone, or probably with another young woman.

"V. M."

In your teaching you will need only plain clothes. I should suggest one or two tailored suits, perhaps one of cloth and the other of linen, and a supply of plain shirtwaists. One fancy dress undoubtedly will serve for all affairs which you may wish to attend. It is better for you to go with a small wardrobe and provide additions as the necessity may arise than it is to buy a large stock of clothes which are liable to lose their freshness and style. Wear your linen tailored suit and a soft waist on the train if it is warm, the cloth suit if it is not warm. You will need a dark kimono to slip over your nightdress as you go to and from the dressing room. Slippers which can be easily slipped on are also necessary. Do not spend any more time than is necessary in the dressing room if there are many others with whom you have to share the convenience. Go in to breakfast at least by the time the last call is made. Do not take chances about being too late. If your father or your brother takes you to the train it will be a most profitable investment for him to tip the porter and to tell him to look after your needs. If no one makes this arrangement for you you may do as you wish about your tips, either reserving them for one lump sum at the end of the trip or making small tips along the way. For a long trip dining car tips are made in much the same manner. Ten per cent of the check is a sufficiently large tip, although one would naturally not give less than 10 cents. Remember that the orders on dining cars are generally portioned for two. Do not order too many courses, for you will be served with exceedingly large portions in each course. Feel perfectly free to enjoy the library and observation car at any time, but do not stay out on the observation car late at night unless you are with an older woman. If you and another young woman travel together order your meals together—that is, order only one portion of each course for both of you.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: Will you be good enough to tell me when a man raises his hat to a woman besides when he meets her and leaves her? A. H."

A man raises his hat when he is presented to a woman, when he meets her and takes leave of her, when he is about to address her, when she first speaks to him for whatever reason, if he passes her on a stairway or passes in front of her in a public conveyance—that is, whenever the least apology would be in order. When he offers his services in any way he raises his hat in acknowledgment of her thanks. A man removes his hat in an elevator when a woman enters it, and remains with his head uncovered during her stay. Although some men refrain from this courtesy in an elevator in an office building no man would ever think of retaining his hat in a hotel elevator when a woman enters.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: I am to be married soon. Would you be kind enough to give me the form of note to write to my friends thanking them for their gifts; also if I should sign my new name too be Mrs. John R. or just Jane R.?

J. F."

Do not think of using a form note for the acknowledgments of your wedding gifts. Write short, distinctly personal notes. Surely your friends have a right to expect a sincere acknowledgment of their gifts. Sign your name merely "Jane Rich." It is unnecessary for you to put in parentheses "Mrs. John Rich," because of course all of your friends know that you are Mrs. John Rich.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: I belong to a little literary club which was started by two intimate boy friends of mine, asking all their intimate friends. Among them is a young man whom I will call Mr. A. He brought me home from meetings several times, but he never has asked to call on me, although his manner showed he liked me. I am going to have a beach supper for some friends, the guests to include the two young men who started the club. Would I be justified in inviting Mr. A.? In coming upstairs to our apartment with a young man should I allow him to precede me or follow me? Should one's escort leave one at the front door of an apartment house or go all the way to the entrance door of the apartment?"

You may with propriety invite Mr. A. It would be inconsiderate of you not to include him in the invitation since he has been attentive to you in seeing that you are escorted home safely. You lead the way in going to your door. It is your escort's duty to see that you are safely within your own door. He should take you to the door of your own apartment and see that you are safely inside before he [illegible]

Fine Arts—Annette Kellermann in "Neptune's Daughter." Twelfth week.

Ziegfeld — "Brewster's Millions" and "The Last Concert."

Studebaker—Edward Peple's civil war drama, "The Littlest Rebel."

SUMMER PARKS.

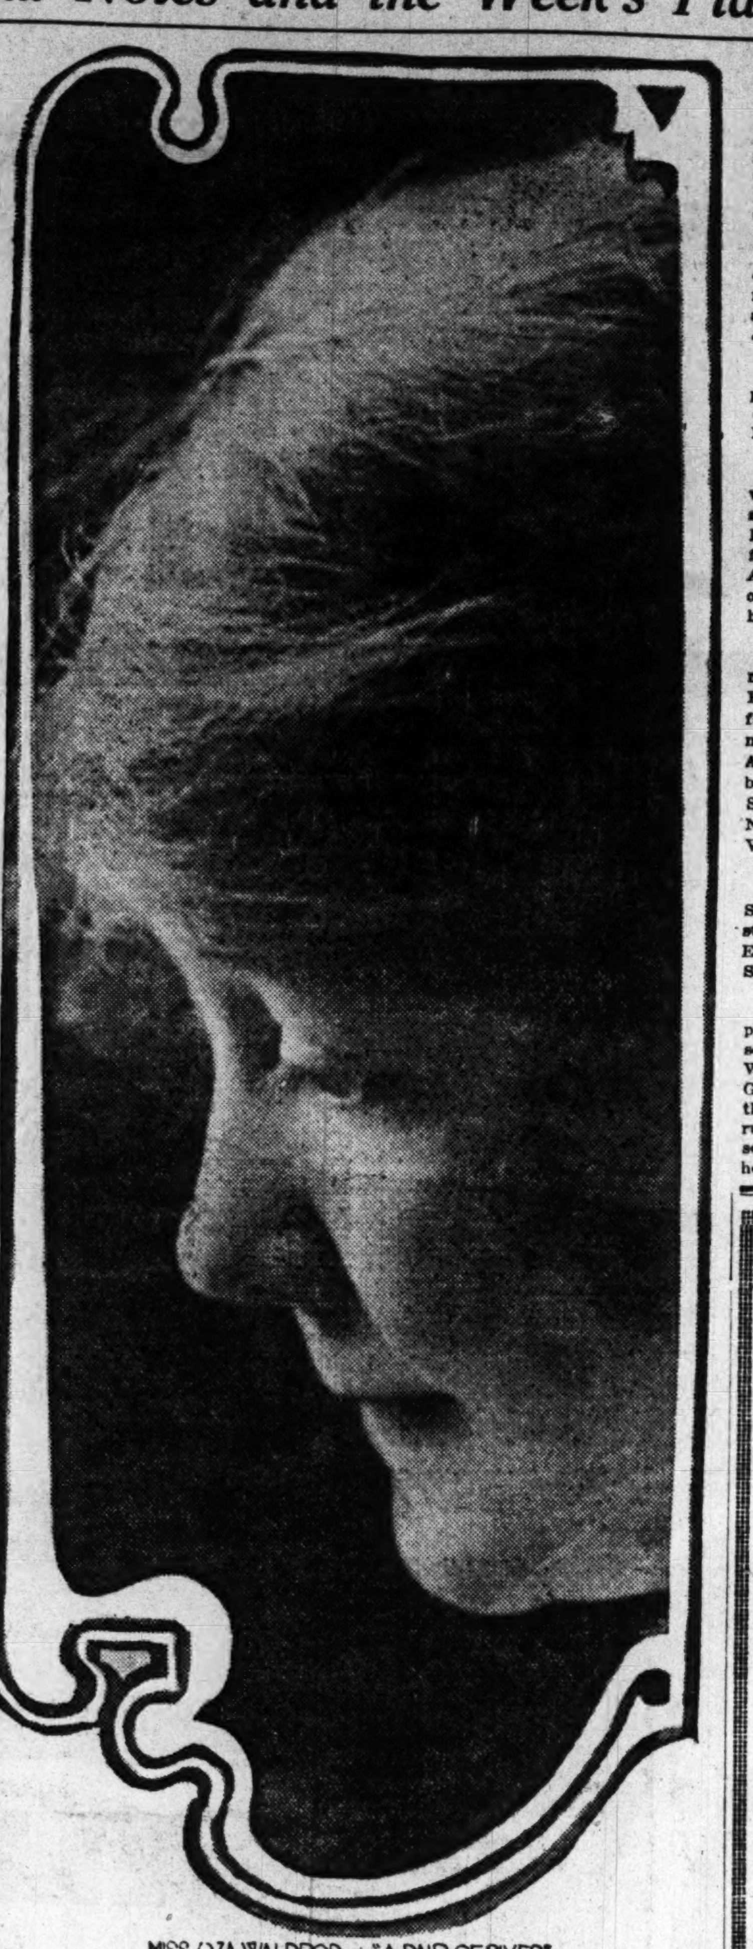
Midway gardens — The National Symphony orchestra, which gives a concert this afternoon and a three part concert every evening—at 6:45, 8:40, and 10:40 o'clock—under the direction of Max Bendix. The part of chief musical interest is the program starting evenings at 8:40 o'clock. The special features of that concert for the week will be the "request" bill Tuesday, the symphony program Wednesday (Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" will be played in its entirety), the French composers' program of Thursday, and the all Wagner program Friday. The Battagi sisters, who appear every evening in the 10:40 o'clock concert, announce a change of specialties and a new ballet—the latter arranged to the rich "Flore" waltz from Cantalani's opera of "Lorelei."

Ravinia—Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Bismarck garden—Steindel orchestra.

Riverview—Pain's "Old Mexico."

White City—Midsummer water festival and circus in free open air hippodrome.



MISS OZA WALDROP in "A PAIR OF SIXES," CORT – AUG. 8.

Lennox Pawle, who has acted in Chicago in "Marriage à la Carte," "Pomander Walk," and "The Money-Moon," has withdrawn from Cyril Maude's support in "Grumpy" and will be seen as Wilkins Micawber in the Liebler company's production of "The Highway of Life," which is Louis N. Parker's dramatization of "David Copperfield." Sir Herbert Tree is soon to produce the play in London; but Mr. Pawle's Micawber will be shown in the American venture. His part in "Grumpy," it may be explained, is not an important one, and his being in Mr. Maude's company last season for that star's first American tour was largely due to a desire to have him appear in this country in his original part in "Beauty and the Barge," which has been dropped from the Maude repertoire.

Miss Gertrude Coghlan, Arthur Stanford, and J. H. Gilmour will open their vaudeville season tomorrow in Rockford, Ill., in William De Mille's "tragedy of eating," "Food." The company will "headline" the Majestic's bill here on Aug. 10.

The engagement of "Joseph and His Brethren" will open on Saturday evening, Aug. 29, in the Auditorium, and not on Monday, the 31st, as originally announced. Brandon Tynan, who has the part of Joseph, will withdraw from the cast after the Chicago run, to star in a play of his own writing under the Liebler company's management.

Miss Emma Carus is to head a special cast in "September Morn," under the management of Harry Askin, who will be associated in the venture with Rowland & Clifford.

Miss Florence Waltz of Chicago will play a part in "Broadway Jones" the coming season. She is now rehearsing in New York.

Preparatory to its opening on Aug. 16 with attractions provided by the Progressive Burlesque circuit, a system of ventilation, capable of changing the air every few minutes is being installed at the American Music hall under the direction of E. H. Wood, its new manager. The house is being redecorated.

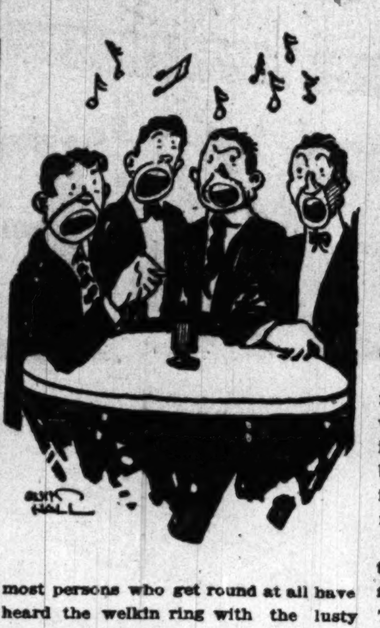
The season at the Cort theater will open next Saturday evening, with H. H. Frazee's production of Edward Peple's farce, "A Pair of Sixes." This play is now in its seventh month in New York. Among the actors and actresses who will be seen in the piece are Frank McIntyre, Sam Hardy, Richie Ling, Miss Elizabeth Nelson, Miss Oza Waldrop, and Miss May Vokes.

Miss Anna Schaefer, daughter of Jacob Schaefer, the billiardist, has gone on the stage as one of the chorus of "The Elopers," the musical comedy at the La Salle opera house.

Miss Ida St. Leon has been engaged to play the rôle of Gertrude Meyer in the second company presenting "Help Wanted" during the coming season. Miss Grace Valentine, who created the rôle of the little stenographer during the long run at the Cort theater, will again be seen in the part with the original cast headed by Henry Kolker.

Why They Sang "The Danube."

THE patriotic, racial, or tribal reaction to especial music is a phenomenon universally recognised, and is, of course, the basis of not only the national air of which each country boasts, but also of the employment of bands of music to accompany the fighting men of the world in their mil-



most persons who get round at all have heard the welkin ring with the lusty shouts of the Chinaman in response to a spirited rendering of "The Watch on the itary and naval activities, in time of peace as well as time of war. Nobody who eats out late o' nights is unacquainted with the man from Calgary who cheers when the restaurant orchestra plays "Dixie"; Rhine," or "Scots Wha' Hae"; and there is a communicative quality about the enthusiasm inspired in the breast of every true Mexican when he hears the strains of "Rule, Britannia," or the national hymn of Denmark.

An incident last Tuesday evening in the Midway Gardens was vividly illustrative. The afternoon newspapers of the day had carried flaming headlines announcing that war between Austria and Servia had begun when the soldiery of the former nation fired across the Danube at the fortifications of Belgrade, the capital of Servia. When, well down in the 8:40 o'clock program, the National Symphony orchestra struck up Strauss' deathless waltz, "The Beautiful Blue Danube," the strain was taken up vocally by a group of beardless young men at a table in one corner of the main terrace. Their quick response to the familiar melody caught the attention of the thousands present; and the guesses as to the nationality of the volunteer singers were as numerous as the nations themselves.

The argument took the form of a wager among four men who sat together, their guesses being respectively that the singers were Egyptians, Nebraskans, Liberians, and Schwabians. The last named was, of course, far fetched, as Schwabis is not far from where the Danube rises, but the man who made the guess acted as if he were only too certain that he was right.

Two of the four bettors crossed to where the singers sat, and, when the orchestra finished the number, put the question. They appeared to be crestfallen with the reply and returned to tell their companions that all bets were off. Pressed for an explanation, the emissaries said that the singers had confessed that they were chorus men rehearsing here with a burlesque troupe, and that the Strauss waltz is to be sung in one of the ensembles. All four betting men sighed and muttered, each in his turn:

"They have no country!"

"No race!"

"No patriotism!"

"No raison d'etre!"

Sold Formerly for $35 to $45

THESE are the finest clothes that it is possible to make—the kind that experts declare to be better in some respects—and equal in all—to the best custom tailor's $65 and $75 suits. They will show in every instance better quality of fabrics and equal tailoring skill. They are the product of four or five wholesale tailors who have reached the zenith of the art—whose smart advertisements are familiar landmarks in the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's Weekly, the standard magazines and the country's greatest dailies.

Inasmuch as our high-class business has increased by leaps and bounds we are obliged to carry bigger stocks than ever before in our history. Hence this feeling of conservatism in the public mind finds us with more of the higher-priced suits on hand than is customary. As the season is waning the volume must be reduced, and this leads to the most remarkable bargains we have ever offered.

So we have reduced these $35, $40 and $45 suits to $25, and will start a sale tomorrow that ought to interest every man in Chicago. The weights will do handsomely for fall and all-year-round temperature and the styles are precisely the same as they will be this fall.

Inquiries concerning motorists, motorcyclists, etc., will be answered. Address letters to "High Speed," care of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

[Note. Answers to route queries and descriptions of routes cannot be answered by mail, inasmuch as the information given in reply to an inquiry is intended to serve all motorists. Readers should retain all route information, using a scrapbook for future use. Where some small town is mentioned as desired to be reached, the county should always be stated, and, if possible, the name of the nearest place of importance.]

WEEK-END touring is becoming popular since it has been found there are many splendid trips of interest over good roads in and about Chicago. Any Saturday there is a pretty generous flocking of motor cars to the country districts—to Wisconsin, Indiana, and even to Illinois points, although the roads in this state are not so good as those of its neighbors.

And Sunday afternoon and well into the evening anybody standing on the main roads will see strings of dust covered cars jogging along into the city with tired and hungry occupants, sorry the trip is at an end and glad to reach a good bath and the cool breezee from Lake Michigan.

THE TRIBUNE has been asked in three or four letters to give a week-end trip and to publish a route to the Fox lake region. This can be accomplished in the same issue, for a trip to that territory makes a nice little journey, over fairly good roads, with accommodations galore all along the way, and the map and route will give answer to those who have made inquiry.

There are other roads into the Fox lake region, but those published are selected because of being easy to follow and of the combination of being easy to follow, good highways and attractive scenery.

The route by way of Milwaukee avenue is the most popular, naturally, but the traffic is pretty heavy. At Wheeling is the dividing point for those who wish to go to Fox lake, Gray's lake, or Antioch.

Queries and Answers.

"Will you kindly furnish me with the best route for automobile to Crystal lake near Whitehall, Mich., where the boy scouts are now in camp? How many miles is it by automobile to Crystal lake? Also can you tell me if there is a good road from Chicago to St. Louis and how long the trip would last if one did not make more than fifteen miles an hour?

"J. H., Chicago."

It is 279 miles from Chicago to Whitehall by way of South Chicago, Gary, Chesterton, Michigan City, South Bend, Niles, Pokagon, Dowagiac, Paw Paw, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, and Muskegon. You can save a little by taking the Niles road just before reaching New Carlisle, but the road is not so good. Some thirty miles may be saved if you go from Michigan City through New Buffalo, St. Joseph, South Haven, Sagatuck, Holland, and Grand Haven, but the roads are very sandy and it would require as much or more time as by way of Grand Rapids and would be harder on tires, car, and driver.

The most direct road to St. Louis is by way of Joliet, Morris, Dwight, Bloomington, Lincoln, Springfield, Litchfield, and Edwardsville. This is 340 miles and the road is mostly dirt, although generally good in dry weather. If you average fifteen miles an hour it will require about twenty-four hours; the trip can be made in good weather at an average of twenty miles an hour.

"I have a forty horse power Garford car, seven passenger, 1911 model, which is very hard to crank. I have tried batteries, but they have given little help. Can you inform me whether there is a suitable self-starter on the market that would work efficiently on a car of that model? Also, can you tell me of a good road between South Bend and South Haven, Mich.?

"S. C. C., South Bend, Ind."

There are a number of starters that can be applied to any make of car, old or new. Some of the late electric starters may be fitted to this car. It would be well to consult an automobile trade directory for the makers of these starters and write for particulars. Take the road through Niles, Dowagiac, and Decatur to Paw Paw and then make inquiries locally for a road across to South Haven.

"In THE TRIBUNE of Sunday, July 19, you tell of a small whistle put on the market for automobile use by a Chicago man. Will you please give me his name and address? L. M. C., Jerseyville, Ill."

THAT interest in road racing, instead of being on the decline, is growing in popularity is being forcibly demonstrated by the manner in which entries are coming in for the fifth annual renewal of the Elgin road contests set for Friday and Saturday, Aug. 21-22. The building of speedways in various parts of the country and the hanging up of fabulous purses by promoters of the new tracks had led many close students of the game to predict that road racing would die a natural death and that contests of that kind scheduled for this season would fail to materialize. Some of the more pessimistic ones even went so far as to claim that promoters of road races would find it impossible to secure any entries from the star drivers of the country, nearly all of whom have gone in strongly for the speedway end of the sport.

On the contrary, however, the Chicago Automobile club and the Elgin Road Racing association, joint promoters of the big Kane county classics, instead of going begging for entries are confronted with a new problem—that of starting the largest number of cars that have ever competed in the fixtures during the five years they have been run. All of which would seem to indicate clearly that road racing still possesses attractions for the crack racing drivers of the United States. What makes this condition all the more remarkable is the fact that the Elgin promoters are unable to offer purses anywhere near as tempting as those hung up by the speedway people. Indianapolis put up $25,000 for its first 500 mile race and came back the next two years with $50,000 purses, while Sioux City gave away $25,000 in prizes at its premiere on July 4. This year Elgin raised its prize money to $6,000, with other awards provided for the successful drivers in each race and for those making the fastest laps over the eight mile circuit on each day. That the amount is satisfactory to the drivers and entrants is shown by the manner in which the entry blanks are being signed up. That the Elgin is one of the leading classics of motoring contests cannot be denied and it is likely the drivers figure that the glory of taking down the Chicago Automobile Club trophy or the Elgin National trophy makes up in a great measure for the difference between a purse of $25,000 and one of $6,000.

With fourteen cars already named and with all of them entered for both races, making a total of twenty-eight entries to date, and with two weeks left in which to round up others, officials in charge of the coming meeting should have no trouble whatever in lining up at least twenty-five machines on each day of the contests. Considering the fact that some of the fastest foreign and American cars will be hurled around Elgin's eight mile course by many of the world's greatest pilots for a total distance of thirty-six laps or 305 miles, speed bugs who will be attracted to the meet should witness some of the keenest sport ever seen in this portion of the country.

One fact that sticks out prominently in connection with the Elgin races is that the private owners seem to have awakened to the possibilities of road racing. The private owner looms up as a big factor in the coming meet. In checking up the list of nominations to date, Chairman C. G. Sinsabaugh of the Chicago Automobile club's entry committee has discovered that the fourteen cars named so far have been nominated by nine different entrants, and that of that number seven are private owners—men who have come into the racing game purely for the fun of it. That these men are actuated by sportsmanlike motives is shown by the fact that nearly all of them have offered to turn over to their drivers any purses they may be successful in winning. These men include E. C. Patterson of New York and Chicago, E. J. Schroeder of New York, L. C. Erbes of Minneapolis, William Ziegler of New York, and Charles Erbstein, Frederick Robinson, and W. H. Harris of Chicago.

Mr. Patterson, who during the last two or three seasons has been a strong supporter of motor car racing, again has signed up Ralph De Palma who will drive the German Mercedes with which Lautenschlager won the recent French Grand Prix over the Lyons circuit. De Palma now is on his way to America with the car and will proceed at once to Elgin and take possession of his racing camp. Mr. Schroeder has named the Peugeot with which Jules Goux won the 1913 500 mile race on the Indianapolis speedway. No driver has been named for the car so far, but Mr. Schroeder is expected to sign up some foreign star. Mr. Erbes is backing Bob Burman who will drive the Peugeot which Boillot handled in the last international sweepstakes at Indianapolis.

Three cars have been entered by Mr. Ziegler—two English Sunbeams and a Stutz. The New Yorker signed up Harry Grant and George Babcock for the English cars, both of which have been tuning up at Elgin for the last two weeks or more. Last week Babcock sustained a broken arm when his big motor backfired, so Mr. Ziegler has started on a hunt for some driver to put in the injured pilot's place. The Stutz named by Ziegler will be handled by Frank Dearborn of New York.

Charles Erbstein, who broke into the racing game last summer at Elgin and who was in the last 500 mile race over the Indianapolis speedway with Joe Dawson in a Marmon, will be strongly represented at Elgin. The injury of Dawson at Indianapolis makes it impossible for him to drive, so Mr. Erbstein will have Lou Heinemann behind the wheel of his Marmon entry. Frederick Robinson, a Chicago theatrical man, has put in a car designed and built by himself. It is named Tahis, which in the Greek language means "quick" and it is thought the machine will live up to its name. Mortimer Roberts will drive it. W. H. Harris, another Chicagoan, purchased the famous No. 21 Marmon from Mr. Erbstein last week and will race it at Elgin with Mel Stringer in the pilot's seat. Five cars have been entered by the trade. They are two Stutzes named by the Stutz Motor company, and to be driven by Barney Oldfield and Gil Anderson; two Duesenbergs entered by Fred Duesenberg and to be piloted by Ed Richenbacher and a driver still to be picked, and the Braender Bull Dog, put in by Bill Chandler and to be handled by himself.

Chairman Joseph E. Callender still has prospects galore and several entries are expected in this week. Among those counted upon as absolutely certain to enter are the Mercer people with two and possibly three cars, the Ernie Moross outfit with three Maxwells and a couple of others; Ralph Mulford with a Peugeot, Billy Knipper with a Delage, Johnny Jenkins with two Great Westerns, Howard Wilcox with the Gray Fox, Keene with the Beaver Bullet, Kline with the King, Alex Sloan with a couple of Cases. In addition there are said to be several others who are likely to come in before the entries close.

The certainty of a big field has made it necessary to adopt the French idea of starting and instead of sending the cars away singly at intervals of thirty seconds, they will be given the word by Starter Fred Wagner in pairs, one being started on each side of the course. In this way the danger of the leaders coming around before all have started will be obviated and some spirited brushes will develop between the drivers in racing for the initial turn at Hornbeck's corner.

New FOUR Roadster

A three-seated Roadster that actually seats three grown persons in perfect comfort. Driver's seat set slightly forward. A special top, baggage compartment at rear, etc. Same general specifications as FOUR Touring Car.

No. 1 N. P.

Today—or tomorrow—go to the Studebaker store and see the new Studebaker models, FOUR and SIX.

Two types of each—five passenger SIX and seven-passenger SIX; FOUR Touring Car and FOUR Roadster.

You will find them competing with cars that sell at prices $500 higher; and you will also find them showing higher quality throughout.

Studebaker prices are lower because these cars are completely manufactured in Studebaker plants, carry but one profit, and impose no middleman's tax on the buyer.

There is only one way by which Studebaker quality can be put into a "Four" or a "Six" to sell at Studebaker prices.

That is the Studebaker way, which means complete manufacturing and the elimination of the parts middlemen and their extra profit; not the assembled or semi-manufactured way.

Complete manufacturing, its economies and the excess value it puts into the cars, represent the Studebaker ideal.

In the case of the Studebaker, millions of dollars are invested in plants, machinery and special equipment.

Our huge production and sales turn our investments into manufacturing economies—we can well afford equipment the cost of which must be prohibitive to any producer whose output is smaller than Studebaker.

For example, we maintain the largest and most completely equipped laboratories in the automobile industry which not only work out the special formulæ for Studebaker steels, but test and analyze the steels to be certain they are up to specifications.

We maintain huge heat-treating plants for the heat-treatment of vital parts, like gears, axle shafts, front axles, etc.

We make our drop forgings in our own forge shops.

We cast and machine and build complete every Studebaker motor.

We make our springs in our own spring plant.

We make our bodies and tops in our own body and top factories.

But we do not want or ask you to consider Studebaker Cars solely on price.

If you ask why they are better—why they give and always have given thorough satisfaction—consider the aims, ideals and honesty of purpose behind them; the quality of Studebaker materials; the vast extent and intensiveness of Studebaker manufacturing methods; the excellence of their engineering design; and the fact that in each and every important or vital particular these cars welcome comparison with the highest priced.

In short, we make a greater proportion of the parts for Studebaker cars than other producers make for their cars.

And being complete manufacturers, we can and do make the parts of Studebaker cars of better, stronger, longer-wearing materials; and put better value into the cars at a stated price.

Ride in the new Studebaker and you will see the result of Studebaker complete manufacturing.

If you are not expert enough to appreciate this value, ask the advice of some man who is expert.

He will tell you that the way the Studebaker sticks to the road is due to its perfect balance, and that, in turn, is due to scientific design—complete manufacturing.

He will tell you that the lack of vibration is due to perfect fit and alignment of parts—again the result of complete manufacturing.

You will learn that heat-treatment of parts makes them stronger and last longer.

And you know that light weight means economy of gasoline and oil and tires.

Through motor refinements and up-to-date designing these cars have power in excess of all requirements.

You will be delighted with the clean simplicity of the motors; their perfect accessibility; and you will see that you can care for a Studebaker with the least time and effort.

We would advise you to waste no time in seeing the new cars.

Delivery can be had at once of either model; and the best motoring season is before us.

When you shop around, keep your mental impressions of Studebaker value always before you for comparison; and remember that this value is the great result of Studebaker volume and Studebaker complete manufacturing.

THE TRIBUNE WEEKLY ALMANACK

August

AUGUST is the drowsy month of sirups and chirrups, the Calypso of the calendar. Birds moult and mostly cease their song. The cat-bird may mock and tease from a wych hazel cluster and an owl skirl at night, the tanager may call his chit cherr and the whippoorwill cry, but August hums and buzzes rather than sings. These Ogygian days are all afternoons and evenings. The fiercer heat of July is mellowed to a slumbrous warmth; the reaper whirs in the yellow grain.

The cricket's in the fence corner, the locust in the oak; corn stands tall and green; the katydid will come to sing of frost; evenings shorten and night falls quickly; it marches on the crimson west and fills the shafted woods.

These are days as they should be for Ogygian days when August swings in a hammock, watches the cumuli pass the green tree tops and listens to the hum of life at its full. The stress of production is over, the struggle to bring into life and sustain it over, seed is ripening, fledglings are winged, young rabbits know the tricks of escape. The world has provided for its continuance and August rests. Let humans do the work.

Birds flock together and become sociably communistic. The wild sunflower ripens and the gold finch comes to it. Berries are ripe; preserving time is at hand; the house wife has an eye to winter comforts; golden bantam delights the good man; his appetite grows more robust and considers the cabbage.

Jupiter swings high; Sirius is coming from the south; the harvest moon will shine on the fields of shocks; valleys are yellow and green; roadsides are yellow and purple. The cricket sings to the cool night, and drowsy August is heavy eyed.

The Gardener at Work.

HORTICULTURAL shows are the late summer excitement in neighborhoods that have gardens and in towns where professional seedsmen come together. A flower show can do more than exhibit monster peonies, asters, dahlias, new roses, and the best plants for the trade. It can acquaint the locality with the variety of annuals and perennials which thrive there, arouse a neighborly pride, and awaken a feeling in favor of private gardens. Every flower show should invite the amateur and small gardener and have a class in which he could enter.

The amateur should remember that arrangement is a prime factor in making a successful display. It is true that professional growers look keenly to points of size, shape, color, lasting qualities, etc., in awarding blue ribbons, but when a best display of phylox, pyrethrums, coreopsis, asters, or some other popular bloom is considered, the jury is swayed by tasteful arrangement. An artistic hand will never crowd flowers in a vase or jar. Select handsome specimens and arrange them with design by using their own foliage and sprays of green or introducing (if the rules allow) ferns or sprengeri or another graceful background by which the color of the flowers is shown to advantage.

Every suburban village should have its horticultural society, and its popular flower show, preferably on the handsomest grounds. Children should be urged to exhibit, and there should be enough ribbons of various classes to include the smallest good entry. This is practical missionary work in gardening, and is one of the side issues of civic improvement.

In contrast with the masses of sweet smelling purple, white, or rose hued phlox in the perennial borders, are the decorative rudbeckias. These hardy ray flowers make themselves at home in the borders, along drives, or in colonies in almost any soil or situation. The golden glow is the best known, a cheerful, sunny flower for late summer. The golden ray, an improved strain, is a beautiful rosette of the richest yellow. And there is the wildwood kind with its brown cone, and another type with purple rays and a third of lemon yellow.

Meadow spiders spin their traps among the rudbeckias and golden rod in gardens as well as in the fields. These spiders devour many insects harmful to plants. If insects are too numerous invest in a poison spray and administer as directed. Homemade sprays of paris green, a teaspoonful to a pail of water, or arsenate of lead three tablespoonfuls to a pail, are effective. Ants may be very destructive and an ant hill may be treated with carbon bisulphide by pressing a tablespoonful into holes punched in the hill. Press down the earth and the fumes will suffocate the ants.

A practical gardener cuts flowers early in the morning. He gathers seeds from his choicest plants and cuts off the faded bloom. The cosmos that looks as if it is running to greens must be pruned carefully. Driving a spade into the ground at a distance to cut off ends of spreading roots helps force the bloom. If asters are pruned now, and chrysanthemum plants trimmed, the flower crop will be richer.

The physalis Francheti, or Chinese lantern plant, is a perennial that decides to stay where it is once rooted. It grows easily from cuttings, but the seeds must be scaled and soaked before they will germinate. The coarse, dull green leafage and inconspicuous flowers do not make the gardener friendly to it in June, but when the autumn comes, and the string of gay Chinese lanterns are hung out on the stems, then it is gladly taken care of for its value as a winter decoration.

The red, cloverlike heads of the gomphrena, an everlasting, and the white silver ball, or helipterum, with a variety of straw flowers in reds, yellows, and purples, are summer flowers which commend themselves for house decorations when the snow is on the ground.

Give a little time to the vegetable garden every day. Keep on sowing string beans, and turnips, beets, and carrots should be sown for winter use.

The automobile manufacturers are now announcing their new models. These cars represent the "last word" in modern motor car construction.
Watch the different announcements—most of the manufacturers use Hyatt Quiet Bearings.
Three million Hyatt Bearings were used by prominent manufacturers last season and for 1915 even more are being used.
The continued use of Hyatt Quiet Bearings by these large manufacturers year after year is conclusive evidence of the superiority.

Two books, one about motor car bearings in general for prospective purchasers, the other for automobile owners, will be sent on request.

GOODYEAR
AKRON, OHIO
No-Rim-Cut Tires
With All-Weather Treads or Smooth

Which Will You Take?

Tires
At Extra Prices

Nowadays, 16 makes of tires are costing more than Goodyear prices.

Some makes cost one-third more.

One-third more than No-Rim-Cut tires—the world's top-place tires—the tires that outsell any other.

Consider what that means.

It means $5 to $15 extra on each tire you buy. It means one-third more tire upkeep—unless they are better tires.

It means that three of the extra-price tires cost as much as four No-Rim-Cuts.

It means that the same price—or less—would buy a half-inch wider Goodyear.

Extra prices are unjust.

No man knows of any way to build better tires than Goodyears. We spend $100,000 yearly in our efforts to find a way.

In the four ways listed at the right no other tire equals the Goodyear.

Men have bought four million Goodyears. They have tried them out. As a result, they buy more of them than of any other tire.

That any tire can be worth one-third more is simply unthinkable.

Tires
With Extra Features

In No-Rim-Cut tires—at Goodyear prices—we give you these four extra features. Not another tire at any price offers you any one of them:

The No-Rim-Cut feature—the one faultless way to end rim-cutting. It completely wipes out the greatest source of tire ruin.

Our "On-Air" cure—an extra cure, under road conditions, to save the blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric. This one exclusive process costs us $1,500 per day.

Our rubber rivets—formed in each tire by a patent method to combat tread separation. They reduce this danger by 60 per cent.

Our All-Weather tread—the tough, double-thick anti-skid. The only anti-skids which run as smoothly as plain treads. The anti-skids with deep, sharp, bulldog grips.

Those are costly features. On their account No-Rim-Cut tires used to be the high-priced tires.

But we gave you the savings due to multiplied output. No-Rim-Cut tires now cost half the old-time prices. And, with all their exclusive features, they cost you less than 16 other makes. Please find them out.

SUMMER MUSIC

Conductor Bendix Revives Gems of the '70s at Midway Gardens.

LOUIS KREIDLER – BARITONE
RAVINIA OPERA

MME. CORDELIA LATHAM
RAVINIA OPERA.

WALTER WHEATLEY – TENOR.
RAVINIA OPERA

By Ronald Webster.

WHEN "Dylan," a new opera by Josef Holbrooke and Lord Howard de Walden, was staged at the Drury Lane theater in London not long ago the reviewers disagreed. They mentioned different features of the opera. One thing, however, they all mentioned—the introduction of the cinematograph for the picturing of flying birds. They exhibited almost a childish interest in the mechanical device.

The opera was a disappointment. Not that some of the music was not good or that it was presented ill. Its theme was big enough—involving as it did the gods and the demigods. But it was by all accounts rather dreary.

Use of the cinematograph is one of the indications of the straining for "realism" on the stage. It is an advanced development of the various devices which load down opera stages all over the world. If the devices used are understood, mechanically, to the audiences, each chairholder feels inclined to explain to his neighbor just how it works. If it is mysterious, miraculous, the audience is so agog over a new triumph of invention that it loses the music.

The Luther college band of Decorah, Ia., which stopped in Chicago last spring long enough for a concert, has returned to America from Norway, where it has been helping celebrate the jubilee year of the nation. For a week the band was the official band of the exposition, and during the remainder of the time it toured Norway. An American Fourth of July celebration at Christiania was one of the most important events. A statue of Lincoln was unveiled in one of the parks. The organization gave a concert at Wicker park hall last Tuesday with as much enthusiasm as they displayed on their first visit here.

Chicago will have another opportunity to grow excited over the works of the futurists and post impressionists in music this season. Scriabin will be represented in the Chicago Symphony programs and Schönberg may get here somehow. Possibly the Flonzaleys may bring some of him over in their tour of several months. Renewed discussion. Violent argument.

A writer in a London paper comes out strongly in defense of the composers who so many think are the "bad jokes" of music. The writer does not say he enjoys their work. He merely asserts that the current idea that the modernists are making for the complete annihilation of technique is ridiculous.

"Men," he says, "who have attained the highest skill cannot be charged with maintaining that such skill is a fruitless acquisition."

The question, it seems, comes down to waiting. Perhaps they see a light. Perhaps it is a will-o'-the-wisp.

Mme. Lillian Nordica may be immortalized in two ways. She may have a statue erected to her in Central park, New York. It would be as Isolde or Brunnhilde. Her name would be on it. In another generation it would have no meaning. The other method advocated by the park commissioners is the erection of a band stand. The former scheme conforms perfectly to Prof. Velben's standards of leisure class reputability—futility, and conspicuous waste.

Louise Edvina, who will appear this season with the Chicago Grand Opera company, has created the name part in "Francesca da Rimini," a new opera by Zandonai put on at Covent Garden a few days ago. No report of its success has been received.

Just how the English are going to take the invasion of their country by the Century Opera company, planned for next season, will be interesting. Mr. Aborn seems to be going over with the idea of "showing Londoners what opera in English really is." The Englishmen are already rising a little in their chairs and exclaiming, "I say, does he think we've never seen opera in English?"

"I don't see why a visit should not be of great interest," says a London reviewer, "provided that they bring with them some operas that we want to see and that are not indissolubly mixed up with the names of 'immortal' tenors and prima donnas."

Ravinia park begins its second week of grand opera—mostly in English—tomorrow evening with Flotow's "Martha." The second and third acts will be given.

Other operas of the series during the week will be two productions of "Butterfly," "Cavalleria Rusticana," part of "Trovatore," and repetitions of the "Secret of Suzanne" and "Carmen."

The company is growing accustomed to the stage and the singing conditions. A performance of "I Pagliacci" last Wednesday showed a more facile ensemble. Samoloff, with the "fat" part of Canio, and Beatrice La Palme as Nedda, took most of the applause. The audience didn't worry much about the individual singers except as they failed to contribute—which was seldom—to the dramatic intensity of the piece. Kreidler as the clown and D'Angelo as Silvio seemed to forget the audience and remember the opera. Samoloff was the only one to sing in Italian.

The park has been breaking its attendance record and Mr. Eckstein's desire to make Ravinia the "Bayreuth" of America could not now be called a dream impossible of fulfillment.

Last Wednesday Max Bendix's National Symphony orchestra was scheduled to play a Tschaikowsky program, according to the printed sheet. Here it is: Symphony in C major, Schubert; Preludes, Liszt; and Capriccio Espagnole, Rimsky-Korsakoff. Strangely enough, not one Tschaikowsky number was on the program during the entire week.

To read Miss Mary Garden's interesting magazine memoirs or to give heed to Oscar Hammerstein's battle cry, shouted over and over and over again in his litigation with the Metropolitan opera house magnates, that he made possible the "popularity and prosperity of grand opera in America" were to gain the notion that well nigh the complete volume of French opera had its beginning when Miss Garden first went on the operatic stage in Paris, and that American knowledge of the commodity dates only from 1906, when Mr. Hammerstein opened the Manhattan opera house in New York city. Merely to mention "French opera" is to think of Massenet, Massager, De Bussy, and Saint-Saëns—and of nobody else. Macauley's New Zealander, were he now among our newspaper readers, could logically jot down an entry in his sketch book that the French had no opera until Miss Garden gave it to them and Oscar took hold of its export trade for American consumption!

But Max Bendix has gone them one better, making a program of French composers—many of them writers of opera—without calling upon De Bussy, Massager, and Saint-Saëns, and taking only one number from Massenet.

The story of Richard Wagner's "Siegfried," in words and music, will be given by Mrs. William Spencer Crosby Thursday afternoon, Aug. 6, in the Ravinia park pavilion, beginning at 2:15. The program will be the weekly "children's day" entertainment under the auspices of the Ravinia club, and children under 14 years old will be admitted to the park without charge.

Thursday afternoon, Aug. 13, a children's open air carnival will be held on the athletic ground at Ravinia park. The children are invited to attend in costume, and the parade will be led by the Allendale and Glenwood school bands.

On Sunday evening, July 26, the attendance at the concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia park was 2,817. This is not a record for Ravinia. The fact is mentioned because on the evening of July 26, one year ago, the attendance was also 2,817. This comes under the heading of remarkable coincidences.

Frederick Donaghey, who is taking a paternal interest in the Gardens, announces a sensation of gloating felt last Tuesday when he had a number of New York theatrical men at the Midway. Their delight, he says, was mingled with wonder that a place like the Gardens should be making money in so barbarian a city as Chicago. It would be difficult to conceive of a garden such as that anywhere on Broadway. Hereafter I suspect the Gardens will advertise "Bring your New York friends here and indulge in a good, satisfying gloat."

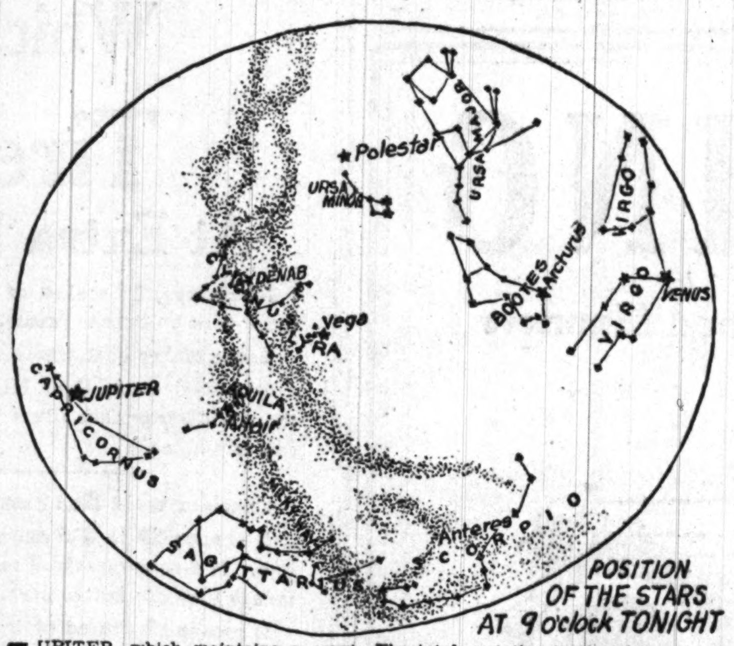
ASTRONOMY.



POSITION OF THE STARS AT 9 o'clock TONIGHT

JUPITER, which maintains a court undimmed by the full moon, although the great suns be almost extinguished by it, has eight moons. Four of them can be found with a small telescope—the four that Galileo discovered with his imperfect instrument.

When these moons pass over the surface of the planet, between it and the sun, their shadows can be seen against the great disk of the latter. When they pass behind it they disappear, reappearing after a time from the shadow.

These transits and eclipses are all carefully computed and predicted. Navigators make use of them in comparing local time with standard meridian time.

Jupiter travels outside of the earth, further away from the sun. In circling around the sun Mercury is the innermost, then Venus, then the earth, and then Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn. On beyond are Uranus and the far outpost of the solar system, Neptune. Jupiter goes around the sun in eleven years, ten months, and seventeen days. That is its year. The earth circles around in 365 days. When the earth is between the sun and Jupiter it is nearest to Jupiter. When it is on the other side of the sun it is furthest away from Jupiter. This distance is about 186,000,000 miles.

It was observed that as the earth receded from Jupiter the moons of the planet did not sweep across its surface and in and out of its shadow on time. The further the earth receded the later the satellites were in transit and eclipse. The total variation in time between the observations made when the earth was nearest Jupiter and when it was 186,000,000 miles further away in space was sixteen minutes.

The delay was due to the greater space which light had to travel. It required sixteen minutes for the evidence of the eclipse to reach across the 186,000,000 additional miles. It was evident then that light traveled at the rate of over 186,000 miles a second.

That was one way in which the velocity of light was determined. One of Jupiter's satellites makes its revolution in a little less than two days. It is Io and has a diameter of 2,452 miles. Europa is slightly less in diameter but requires over three days for its revolution. Ganymede has a diameter of over 3,500 miles and a period of over seven days. Callisto is over 3,300 miles in diameter and takes over sixteen days to make its round. The other four of Jupiter's eight moons are very small and were not discovered until recent times. The larger ones can be seen with a small telescope. It is their revolutions which are computed so carefully for the purposes of astronomer and navigator.

Jupiter now commands the sky to the east and south. If you observe it in the evening you may consider it as a great heavenly timepiece with its hands flashing across its face or disappearing behind its shadow. If opportunity leads you to a telescope you may see Io or Europa cast its shadow across the disk or swing in and out of the shadow.

AUTOMOBILE INSTRUCTION—

Think what a $10 bill will do for you if spent in the right place. It means making you an expert mechanic-chauffeur and securing you a swell job besides. NO STRINGS, NO RED TAPE, NO CHARGES FOR BREAKAGE OF PARTS. Just plain, substantial American automobile instruction that you can understand and profit by, and, what's more, $10 is the price. When you pay more you waste that extra money. You lose, in addition, some very good features which make OURS the leading automobile instruction. You couldn't get a better training, not at ten times the price. We employ our SIMPLIFIED SYSTEM of teaching which makes it very easy for any one to learn, besides saving you loads of time. We lead you to the machines themselves and not to a blackboard containing funny animal heads. We give driving instructions on beautiful new cars. Our instructors are recognized experts from German, Swedish, and American factories. NO SANE MAN, desiring to enter this desirable profession, can overlook getting our training. A good POSITION guaranteed; a state license guaranteed or money back. Make up your mind and come prepared to enroll. Office open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. and Sunday morning.

HAVE AWAKENED
FACT

BRYN MAWR HIGHLANDS

IS UNSURPASSED AS A DISTRICT FOR

APARTMENT BUILDINGS

This is made evident by the rapid sale of our Paxton-av. frontage and have resulted in the opening of

from 67th to 70th-sts., and the installation of sewer, water, gas, walks, curbs, paving, etc., all to be paid for by us.

The close proximity of this property to Jackson Park and Lake Michigan, combined with rapid transportation to the loop and the absence of antiquated buildings, makes this the most desirable residence district in Chicago.

Illinois Central express trains from Bryn Mawr station.

New street car line in 67th-st. this summer.

Three blocks to car line for South Chicago and Northern Indiana points.

To encourage immediate building, frontage is at present priced much lower than its actual value.

THINK OF IT!

A Two Family Home—BUILT AFTER YOUR OWN IDEAS, and that you can pay for the same as you now pay rent—A home that all your friends will admire. In a high class neighborhood—four car lines and the elevated station, all within 2½ blocks. In planning the development of our property situated at Ainslie and Rockwell-sts.,
Near Lincoln, Lawrence, and Western,
We instructed an expert architect to study the two family home proposition, then design the best building for the purpose regardless of cost. The results are an amazing success, not only are these buildings far superior to the ordinary "stock" design two flat building, but much to our surprise, we find they can be built for about the same price.

As a result two of these Two Family Homes have already been started, and will be followed immediately by many more. Take advantage of this opportunity while it lasts. Nothing anywhere to compete with it.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

THE THRIFT ZONE

(Private Car Excursions Tuesdays, Aug. 4 and 18.)

WITHIN A RADIUS of 400 miles of Chicago there are 28 billion of the 40 billion dollars of the Nation's Farm Property. The six states within this radius comprise the Thrift Zone of America's farming, having the smallest percentage of farmers earning less than $1,000 per year.

THE LANDS OF THE SWIGART TRACT are in the inner circle of the Thrift Zone, being only 170 miles from the heart of it. They have outstripped most lands in the percentage of increase in value in the past 10 years and will again double and triple in value before the next census.

MEN WHO OBTAIN the land now get first hold on the opportunities in this district. There are no lands so good for so little money so near Chicago. To buy them is not speculation. It is an investment in which nothing can stop the advance in value. The demand for land here in the throbbing center of the Nation guarantees rapid acquirement of agriculturists of every acre. Every acre of arable ground must be tilled to help provision our increasing millions. The time seems approaching when only intensive cultivation will suffice to feed the people. You will receive the increase in value incident to the building up and development in this new district on all sides of your land.

NOWHERE does land yield a wider diversity of crops than in the Swigart Tract. Crops of potatoes on 5 to 8 acre patches have often in one season paid for the cost of 40 acres. The story of the Swigart Tract is one of great development. Come and share in this upbuilding where you will find welcoming hands and pleasant living conditions, where the soil is good and nature speeds you on the road to competency and comfort.

WITHIN reach of most any man earning wages is this opportunity in Michigan. Practically no chance is left in other North Central States unless you have a barrel of money; but in the Swigart Tract you can buy land for $10 to $35 per acre and an average of $18 per acre; and the terms are as low as $10 to $50 down and $5 to $10 per month on 40 acres. Think of the market leverage of these lands, located within such a short distance of Chicago by both lake and rail.

LOOK AT THE ASSETS of this tract in Mason, Manistee, Lake and Wexford Counties; the water supply in creeks, springs, lakes, rivers and plentiful rainfall; gently rolling, well drained lands; a mild, even climate, good roads, schools, churches, and an excellent class of settlers; five railroads, new towns throughout the tract, and on its edge Ludington and Manistee, with 25,000 consumers. The natural advantages are attracting ever-increasing attention. Home and land seekers, especially farmers, are coming in large numbers from all parts of the United States. The liberal contract that goes with these lands adds to the inducements. Every purchase is doubly secured, because after a part is paid, if you should die, the farm will be deeded to your family free.

OF INTEREST to every one who is looking for better profits, broader opportunities and a good land opportunity is a 72 page BOOKLET about the Swigart Tract of more than 50,000 acres and its central location in Michigan's Fruit Belt. You won't be satisfied until you see this splendid country, and when you do take the short trip you will find that there are no exaggerated statements in the literature. A large map is also yours—free for the asking. Write or call for them.

COME WITH ME on one of the special excursions on Aug. 4th or 18th. I furnish the automobiles and guides free and will convey you over many parts of the Tract; round trip fare, $8.30; rebated on purchase; you are back in Chicago 7:20 a. m. BUSINESS CHANCES.

LAST OCTOBER I PURCHASED THE model of a household article; it took four months to get dies and find the source where I could buy my materials so that I could assemble the article at a low price.

I am now assembling this article, which is needed in every home because it is the most useful ever produced for the purpose; it costs to assemble 30 cents and retails for $1; have done considerable business in a small way; every department store in the loop handles the article and I am receiving orders every day, but the field is practically untouched. This is one of the best propositions offered in many years, and if one or more men who understand the selling end are looking for something that will prove a big money maker, this is the opportunity. I am going to give this business away for $3,000, as I have an opportunity to return to the business I am experienced in. I can prove to anyone interested that the business will pay for itself in a very short time if handled by someone who understands the selling end.

This business is open for investigation to anyone interested, but I have no time to waste on the curious. Address N 53, Tribune.

A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy.

SPECIAL VALUES NOW

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been entirely taken apart, each part examined, and if necessary replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory; the entire car repainted and refinished like new; all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is as good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively, as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performances of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service values these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.
